REFACE.

THREE things are simply necessary unto any man's having of true religion and godliness; sound principles of divine truth known, the favoury of that knowledge in the heart, and the power of that savoury in a man's worship and walk. There are no found principles of faving truth, but in and from God's written word. There is no right favour of those principles, but in and by faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus, 2 Tim. i. 13. and iii. 15. It is by this favour of the knowledge of Christ, as it is called, 2 Cor. ii. 14. that the power of godliness is impressed on the heart, and expressed in the life of a believer. If the principles of truth be not from God's word, there can be no true religion; if the truth professed be consonant to God's word, and saith and love be wanting, it may be a man's notion and opinion, but it is not the man's religion; and if the power of known truth be not in his walk and conversation, neither should be himself, nor sught any other think, that fuch a man hath any religion at all.

They have done good service to the common-wealth of learning, who, leaving the unprofitable, speculative, and notional philosophy, have set upon the experimental. And any man may fee, that theology bath been, especially by the school-men, as much corrupted; and that it is to be cured by reducing it unto practice and experience. For certainly religion confisis not so much in the notions of tru; h in the mind, (in which the devils, the most irreligious of all creatures, exceed all men), as in the faith and love of truth in the heart, and in the fruits of that faith in the life.

There are two forts of mysteries spoke of in the New Testament; the mystery of godliness, which centers in Jesus Christ, the Son of God, I Tim. iii. 16.; and the mystery of iniquity. which centers in Antichrist, the man of fin, and the fon of A 2 per-

perdition, 2 Theff. ii. 3. 7. Thefe two mysteries are constant and direct contraries. Whoever is ignorant, or an unbeliever of the mystery of godliness, may easily be drawn, or driven, to be a believer of the mystery of iniquity. So it was foretold, 2 Theff. ii 10, 11, 12.; and accordingly we daily fee this awful judgment of God executed upon many. Neither is any thing more needful to make a man a real hater of Popery, than to be a sincere believer on Jesus Christ. It is true, that the excessive pride of the Pope, and his prelates, the cruelty of his domination, the frontless profaneness of his synagogue, and the visible worldly crost of his religion, is note than enough to make him and it biteful to Pagans, Jews, Turks, and Infidels. Yet to hate Popery spiritually, as it is a gross corruption of true Christianity (of which he falsly arrogates the name), is only found with the elect of God: Rev. xiii. 8 And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, (that is, the beaft), whose names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb flain from the foundation of the world. Andto the same purpose is that in Rev. xvii. 8.

It was not the clearness of light and knowledge, (in which this age doth much exceed the former), but the power of known truth on the hearts of Christ's witnesses against Antichrist, that carried them so honourably through the siery trial.

It is unaccountable hypocrify and felly in such as pretend to be followers of such martyrs for Christ, in their cause and testimony, and yet do mock that saith, and love, and communion with God, which were their support in their sufferings for it. If it be possible, it is very rare, and highly imprebable, that a stranger to, much more a mocker at the power of godliness, should suffer extremity, and that chearfully, for the form of it.

We have also in these last and perilous times, some antichrists, that do deride both the mystery of godliness, and the mystery of iniquity. They have no faith to take up the glory of the mystery of godliness: but they have serse and reason rough to take up the folly and knavery of the mystery of iniquity: Afort of men, to whom may be applied what the evil spirit said to the vagabond Jews, exercists, Asts xix. 15. Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye? Which a witter minister took for his text, and raised this, more ingenious han grave, dostrine from it, "That there are some men so

44 bad, that the devil bimself does not know what to make of 44 them." These men I menn, do not halt betwixt God and Baal, betwixt Christ and Antichrist; but oppose both. If they escape Antichrist's rage in this world, they shall not escape the wrath of the Son of God in the next. They are sinch as have both heaven and hell against them, and sight against both. But whatever disturbance the church of Christ may meet with, and whatever danger and loss particular mens souls may sustain by other damnable heresics; yet the grand trial of the New Testement church, and the chief plague of the latter days, is from Antichrist. And no wise Christian can expect the sufficement of the prophecies of the glory of the church of Christ, but in and by the ruin of Antichrist, and of his throne of iniquity.

And though Antichrist's interest in this nation seems to be pretty well excluded by Protestant laws and rulers, and yet more by the plain interest of the nation, as to all its valuable concerns; yet where the mystery of godlines is not duly esteemed, no man nor nation is secured from the malignant influence of the mystery of iniquity. And though Antichrists throne seems to be fixed by long possession, and the blinders of mist of the kings in Europe; yet there is that rottenness in its foundations, and that weight of wrath threatened in the word of God, as will sink it as a milstone in the sea, in due time.

It was with an eye to both these mysteries, that what you read, was preached some years since, and is now published.

It is neither from unacquaintedness with the genius of the present age, nor with my small talent, that I put forth these plain ordinary sermons: I well know, that they are not suited to the spirit of the day.

Nor foould any importunity have prevailed (though I was not without some of the nearest and most pressing kind), if I had not some considence towards God, that his truth is herein declared, (how weakly sever), and some hope that this work may be accepted with God through Jesus Christ, and may be of some use to his people; which I leave with the Lord, who alone giveth the increase.

It was praife-worthy charity in a great divine, now at ret with the Lord, to fay, "He hoped that fine were much chies" ed to the grace of God to whom the grace of God was little of

" liged." To which I would add my defires, that fome opposers and perverters of the grace of God, may yet fall under that power of his grace, as shall make them know the grace of God in truth, Col. i. 6. and preach that faith they now feels to destroy, Gal. i. 23.

The edification and comfort of any believer, or the conviction of any unbeliever, will overpay the labour of this fervice. This is all I defign and defire. I have neither fought patrons nor vouchers, befules the Spirit of God speaking in the scriptures of truth. At this bar all men and all destrines must fland and be judged.

LORD'S PRAYER.

In John xvii. 24.

SERMONI.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

O U have heard many a good text taken out of the word of God; but though all be good, there is none better than this. Love the text, and love above all, the bleffed first speaker of it; and you will be the fitter to profit by what you hear spoken in his name from it.

The best of all sermons, in chap. xiv, xv, xvi, is concluded with the best of all prayers in this chap. xvii. In this prayer, properly the Lord's prayer, (for that in Matth. vi. 9. is rather the pattern given for our praying, than the Lord's prayer), there are but few petitions, but they are all great ones. He prays,

1. For himself and his own glory, ver. 1, to 6. 2. Then for his people, to the end of this chapter. This ver. 24. contains his last petition for them. And passing the compellation Father, five times used in this prayer, thrice singly, as in ver. 1, 5, and 24. twice with an addition, Holy Father, ver. 11. Righteous Father, ver. 25. I take up two things in this petition.

1. The manner of our Lord's asking, I will; a fingular way of praying.

2. The matter of Christ's prayer. And in it are four things.

1. The party he prays for; they whom thou hast given me. Only Jesus Christ could pray thus for the cleck, as elect.

- 2. The blessing he prays for to them: that they may be with me where I am. Where was Christ when he said this? He was going to the garden, to his agony, to be taken that night, and to be crucissed next morning, and laid in his grave the next evening. But here our Lord is praying as one in heaven. See ver.

 11, 12. And now I am no more in the world, but these are in the world, and I come to thee. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name. And he prays to have his people with him in heaven. He loved them so well, that he came to the world where they were; he loved them so well, that he endured what they deserved: and here he expressed his love in desiring that they may be with him where he is. Christ and his people must be together.
- 3. In the matter of this prayer of Christ, we have the end why Christ prays for this blessing to them; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me. Why would Christ have his people with him where he is? That they may behold his glory. Are they to receive no glory of their own? Yes, a great deal, surely; yea, they have got some already, verse 22. The glory which thou gavest me (to give), I have given them; and a great deal more they are to receive in heaven: but it stands in, and is advanced by their beholding of Christ's glory. Had they not beheld Christ's glory before? John i. 14. We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, 2 Cor. iii. 18. We all with open face behold as in a glass the glory of the Lord. Isaiah, chap. vi. save his glory, and spake of him, John xii. 41. Why then doth our Lord speak of the necessity of his people's being with him where he is, that they might behold his glory, since he can manifest his glory, and they by grace can behold it, even when they are where they are, and not yet where he is? The reason is this, Because believers now, though by faith they can see something of Christ's glory, yet it is but a very little they do, or can see. The light is small, and their eye but weak; but in that day that our Lord prays for, the discoveries of his glory will be greater, and the seeing eye of the gloristed will be stronger, than now we can conceive.

4. In the matter of this prayer, we have the argument on which our Lord prays for this bleffing to his people: For thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. You know, that this phrase, before the foundation of the world, is an usual scripture word for eternity: for the foundation of the world and time began together; creatures and time began together. Time is properly the measure of the duration of a creature; but God inhabiteth eternity, Ifa. Ivii. 15. Creatures dwell or fojourn in time. So that this argument of our Lord's is, For thou lovedst me from eternity. And it hath a mighty force in it. If our Lord had faid, "I pray that they may be with me " where I am, for thou lovedst them before the founda-" tion of the world:" he had spoke what he had oft told them, for they were given to Christ in love. But the argument is stronger, as Christ expresseth it. For thou lovedst me. "I love them, and would have them "where I am; they love me, and would be with me " where I am; thou lovest them, and wilt have them " where I am." But here is one argument more, For thou lovedst me. Jesus Christ the Son of God, as in--Vol. II. trufted trusted with the office of a Saviour, and charged with the chosen, was, and is the object of the Father's eternal delight and love; and on this love the falvation of all the elect stands more firm than the pillars of heaven or earth.

S much for the words of this verse. And from this little glance I have given you of them, you may plainly perceive, that here is a rich and deep mine, better than of gold that perisheth. The Lord help us to dig and find treasure, and to be enriched by it.

HEAD I. To begin with the first thing in the ten, the manner of Christ's praying here, I will: a to gular manner: About it I would premise three things.

1. This is a way and manner of praying, that we never read the like of it used by any faint in the word. Some of them have been very familiar with God, and the Lord hath encouraged them much by his condescendence to them; yet nothing of this I will is to be heard or read of in their prayers. I will is too high for a supplicant at God's footstool. Abraham was a great intimate with God, the first believer honoured with the noble name of the friend of God: yet this great friend, when pleading for Sodom, Gen. xviii. with what deep humility is his confidence mixed? Aain, when pleading for Ishmael, Gen. xvii. 18. he faith, O that Ishmael might live in thy fight! Nothing like his I will. Abraham's grandfon Jacob came a little turer to this, Gen. xxxii. 26. Let me go, (faith the ogol), for the day breaketh; Jacob answers, I will of let thee go, except thou bless me; " Give me thy bliffing, and go when thou wilt." When he had blefling, he got an halting thigh, and a humand neart whilit he lived, as he hints in Gen. xxxii. 30. ne feen God face to face, and my life is preserved. a word or thought of this, " I have feen God face stace, I have wreftled with him hand to hand, and mave prevailed." No; he rather wonders that he got alive out of God's hands, Right Jacobs, true Mraels, in and on their greatest prevailings with God, and bleffings from him, are lowly, humble believers, yea, humbled by God's advancing of them. Mofes, that great wrestler with God for Israel, though he expressed a holy resolvedness, yet nothing appears like this I will. Exod. xxxii. 10. Let me alone, (faith the Lord), that my wrath may wan hot against them, and that I may confume them. It is strange, that one man should as it were hold the Lord's hands, that one man's faith should stop the execution of a just sentence against a finful people. Surely you may conclude, that the Lord is easy to be increated. Again in Exodus xxxiii. 15. Moses said, If thy presence go not with me (or us), carry us not up hence. It is as good for us to die here, as to go any whither without thy presence. The wilderness, though waste and howling; and Canaan, though the glory of all lands, are alike to Mofes without God's presence. Again, in Numb. xiv. 12. Moses hath a great offer from the Lord; I will destroy this people, and make of thee a greater nation, and mightier than they. Moses, in his zeal to God's glory, refuseth this proffer, and pleads still, and prevails; yet never I will is in all his importunity. No believer ever did, or ought to speak so to God; they should all ask according to his will, and forget and deny their own will. Yet Christ did fay, I will, and might well fay fo.

2. This I will is not in a promife to us, but in a prayer to his Father. When the Lord promifeth to do, or give good to his people, it is very becoming to use this style, I will do, or give, or be so and so to my people. And it is this I will in a promise that faith fixeth on; as Jacob did, Gen. xxxii. 12. Thou faids, I will furely do thee good. But our Lord is here praying; though I own that there is a great promise inferior.

3. There is nothing like this in all the account we have of Christ's prayers at other times, and other occasions. We find, that our blessed Saviour was much given to prayer alone, Bless him for it, and love secret prayer the better, that he used it himself, and thereby hallowed it to our use. How our Lord spent those nights in the mountain in prayer, and what he prayed for, and how, we cannot tell, except by that in Heb. v. 7. There are prayers and supplications offered up, with strong crying and tears. Believers, you, sometimes when your hearts are full, want to be far from all company, that you may pour out your complaint to the Lord. Bleffed Jefus did so in the days of his flesh, and filled the filent night with his crying; and watered the cold earth with his tears, more precious than the dew of Hermon, or any moisture (next to his blood) that ever fell on God's earth fince the creation. Never were fuch finless and precious tears in God's bottle, Pfalm lvi. 8. Let yours drop, believers, and mix in the same bottle with his; and on this account fow them in hope, and you shall reap in joy, Psalm exxvi. 5. But for Christ's prayers recorded in the gospel, we find our Lord prayed very humbly, though confidently. When he prays in his agony, not a word of I will; but, Abha, let this cup pass from me, if thou wilt; nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done. Christians, behold the amazing difference betwist Chritt's way of praying against his own hell, (so I may call it), and his praying for our heaven. When praying for himself, it is, Father, if it be thy will, let this cup pass from me. And no wonder; for every drop in that cup, was wrath, and curse, and death. One drop of it is everlasting poison to all that taste it, but to Jesus the Prince of life. This cup he drank chearfully: John xviii. 11. The eup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it? But when Christ is praying for his people's heaven, it is, Father, I will that they may be with me where I am. Again, when our Lord is dying on the cross, he prays, Father, forgive them, for they know 110t

not what they do. And again, just at dying, Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit, Luke xxii. 34. and 46. All humble supplications; none of them to high and lofty (but yet it well became him) as this I will. I own, that Christ, in one instance on the cross, put forth his divine power, and acted like a King and God, Luke xxiii. 42, 43. One of the ma-lefactors that was crucified with him, (the happiest death ever man had, next to dying for Christ, was to die with the Saviour, and to die receiving Christ's grace, and Christ's pass to heaven), whatever Thomas meant in his words, John xi. 16. Let us go, that we may die with him; this happy malefactor had the best of it fulfilled on him: he died with Christ, and got eternal life on the same day. Surely that word was eminently fulfilled in this man, Eccl. vii. 1. Better is the day ofdeath, than the day of one's birth. This man prays marvelloufly, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom, Our Lord answers more marvelloufly, Verity I fay unto thee, To day shalt thou he with me in paradise. As it Christ had said, "Can thy faith take me up as a king, and the disposer of heaven, " notwithstanding this thick and dark vail that is now "upon me? I will act as a God and Saviour to thee:" To-day shalt thou be with me in paradise. These words have no small aspect to this text, I will that they be with me where I am.

Now let us fee what may be in this singular word in Christ's prayer, I will. No faint ever prayed so; Christ himself in this prayer only here useth this word. There must be some singular things that made our Lord use this word in prayer, I will; and them I would look into.

1. We may lawfully conceive, that herein there is a breaking out of his divine glory as the Son of God equal with the Father, as in Phil. ii. 6,---10.; where the apostle marketh three things about Christ, none of which must be forgotten by Christians. 1. The divine dignity of his person, ver. 6. 2. The depth of his lowand humbled state, ver. 7, 8. 3. The height of his exalted state, ver. 9, 10, 11. So doth the apossile to the Hebrews, chap. i. 3. Now, tho' Christ's humbled and exalted state had, and have their several and distinct appearances; yet as his divine dignity was still the same in both states, in his lowest and at his highest, so there were now and then some beamings of his glory, even in his lowest state, John ii. 11. and in his triumphant entry to Jerusalem, even when he was going to be crucised. So we may think, that this singular word, I will, is used by Christ to display his divine glory; for it is a word that no mere man may use.

2, Our Lord had promifed it to his disciples in John ziv. 2, 3.; and therefore prays thus for it. And we must think, that the doctrine delivered by Christ in his last fermon of consolation, and this last prayer of his, though in the first place designed for his apostles, yet are the common portion of all believers on Jesus Christ. Now Christ had promised, John xiv. 2, 3. that where he was, there his people should be also. If a poor believer have at any time a firm hold on a promife of God, how will he cleave to it, plead upon it, and urge it? as 2 Sam. vii. 27, 28, 29. But who can conceive what confidence of faith Jefus Christ the Son of God had, and did use, in pleading with his Father for the fulfilling of all his own promifes to his people? Besides, all Christ's promises to his people, were made by him in his Father's name. No wonder then that our Lord fays, I will.

3. Christ here gives us a copy and pattern of his intercession in heaven, that so much is spoke of. Christ here speaks as within the vail, ver. 4, 11, 12. as if he had done all his work, and were no more in the world. He had done so much, had but a little more to do; which also was speedily to be dispatched. Christ's intercession in heaven, is a kind and powerful remembrance of his people, and of all their concerns, manual contents.

naged with state and majesty; not as a supplicant at the footstool, but as a crowned prince on the throne, at the right hand of the Father. So it is expressed, Rom. viii. 34. Heb. i. 3. viii. 2. x. 12, 13. and xii. 2. This may be one reason of this great I will.

- 4. Here our Lord is making his will; and therefore I will is fitly put in. Christ is making his last will and testament, and praying it over to his Father, which he sealed next day with his blood; and here he tells what he wills to his people, even that they may be with him where he is. And nothing greater or better can be willed for them. Biessed for evermore are they that have this willed and bequeathed to them. And you have a word like this in Luke xxii. 29. I appoint unto you a kingdom: "I bequeath, "dispose it, make it over to you;" as the word may be rendered.
- 5. Our Lord had the price of this glory in his hand, ready now to lay down; and therefore he demands the purchase; for Christ was taken this night, and died next day. The price of the redeemed and of their falvation, a price agreed upon in the everlafting covenant, a price of infinite value in itself, a price the Father's wisdom and justice demanded, a price the Son promifed to lay down in the fulnels of time, a price on the payment whereof fo great things were promifed to Christ and his feed; this price is now in Christ's hand ready, presently to be told down. No wonder then, if Christ demand the purchase in this high word, I will. Believers, it passeth all your thoughts, it passeth the highest flights of your saith, to conceive that high affurance and confidence that our Lord Jesus had of the acceptance and success of that facrifice of himfelf that he was now upon offering to his Father. Hence cometh this great I will.

6. This I will is but an echo to the known will of his Father. It doth not become us to fay in our prayers, I will, because we do not perfectly know God's will; and when our desires clash with his will, we do but dash against a rock. But Christ knew perfcetly, that the thing he prays for, was the will of his Father, John vi 38, 39, 40. When a believer hath a fure knowledge of God's will, his faith may plead boldly on it. We read of one bold word of blessed Luther. He hearing of the dangerous sickness of an eminent minister of the gospel, prayed for him, prevailed with the Lord for his life; and wrote to him, that he was affured, that the Lord would restore him, and preserve him to outlive Luther; which came to pass. In the close of this letter, he writes Fiat voluntas mea; mea, Domine, quia tua. " Let my will " be done; mine, Lord, because thine."

7. Laftly, This I will in Christ's prayer for his people, shews how much his heart was fet upon the eternal happiness of his people. He prays for it with all his heart. On this sweet theme I would offer a few things.

1/1, Let us consider how Christ's love and will was on the necessary price of their falvation. How dear foever it was to him, whatever it cost him, his love was on laying it down; Luke xii. 50. I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straitened (or pained) till it be accomplished? and it was a baptism in his own blood; and Luke xxii. 15. With desire I have defired to eat this paffover with you before I fuffer : and it was his last meal. Love to his Father, and love to his sheep, made our Lord long greatly to pay the price of redemption.

There are feveral thoughts in mens hearts about Christ's dying. 1. Some think of Christ's death as brought about by the wicked hands of finners. This is a poor thought, if there be no more. This thought is natural to any that read the history of his death. Carnal men may hate Judas that betrayed him, Pilate that condemned him, the priests that cried Crucify bim, and the people that did it. If this be all, I may fay, the devils have a higher thought of Christ's death, and that that comes nearer to the truth, than this forry one. 2. Some go further, and think of Christ's death as it was a fulfilling of the purpose and word of God concerning him. This Christ teacheth us in Luke xxiv. 26, 44, 46; and the apolles frequently in their preaching of Christ. 3. There is a higher thought of Christ's death; and that is, That Christ died, by the stroke of God's law and justice, for his people. Justice roused itself against our Lord: Zech. xiii. 7. Awake, O fword, against my shepherd, and against the man that is my fellow, saith the Lord of ho, is: Smite the Shepherd. This sword was drawn and furbished, and did enter into his soul: Isa. liii. 5. He was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities. Better were it that a man had never heard of Christ and of his death, than to hear, and not to know that his death was for his fins. This is Paul's first doctrine he taught; and he is an ignorant and proud preacher that follows not this pattern: I Cor. xv. 3. For I delivered unto you first of all, that which I also received, that Christ died for our sins, according to the scriptures. 4. The best thought of Christ's death is, That he died out of love to his people. Love made him come in the way of justice. Justice and the law saith as it were, "Thou, or they " must die. They have sinned, the law must be sul-"filled, justice must be satisfied." Blessed Jesus anfwers, "I love them too well to let them die; I will " rather die for them, that they may live." Christ's death is still laid on his love, John x. Gal. ii. 20. Eph. v. 25, 26. He loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, Rev. i. 5.; that is, He loved us fo that he shed his own blood for our fins; and then in the same love he washed us from our fins, in and by that blood which he shed in love. O such love! such blood! fuch washing! Here is falvation, and here only. It is a damning dream to expect it any where elfe.

2dly, Confider, as Christ's love was much set on the paying the price of redemption, so was his love and will as much set on the persons of the redeemed. He laid down the price, in love to the purchase. How can it enter into a man's thoughts, that the Son of God should lay down so great a price, and not know what he was to take up for it? that he should die, and not know for whom, nor who should be the better for it? His dying was in love; and did he not know whom he loved? His love is still spoke of as distinguishing and particular; for his body, his people, his speep, whom he knew, John 3.

3dly, the ways and means of bringing his redeemed to glory, were also much in Christ's love and will: John. xvii. 6. 26. I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it; that the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them; and John x. 16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold, (are not of the jews, but of the elect Gentiles): them also I must bring, and they shall bear my voice; and there shall be one fold, and one shepherd. Every mean of grace, every blessing of the means, every drop of grace you receive, as Christ is the giver, so his love and will is in the bestowing it on you. All things that accompany salvation, are given with the love and will of Christ.

4thly, Lailly, Christ's will is upon the end itself, eternal glory. It is first in his design, though it be last in our enjoyment, as in this text. He will have his people with him where be is.

APPLICATION. There is one thing I would exhort you to from this doctrine, That Christ's love and will is fixed on the eternal glory of his people; and it is this. Let believers learn to own their eternal falvation as springing from the will of Christ, as well as from the blood of Christ. There was a saving will in Christ in shedding his saving blood: Heb. x. 10. By the which will we are fanclisted, (i. e. justified and and faved, in the style of that epistle, specially) thro' the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. What this will is, is declared in the foregoing verses; to be the Father's will commanding the true sacrifice, and the Son's will in offering this commanded facrifice. By this will we are faved; this will, thus fixed, thus accomplished in Christ's death.

There are three great advantages, which we shall reap by this looking on heaven, the prize of our cal-

ing, as willed by Jesus Christ.

1. It will fir you up to praife and glorify him. He that took on him the burden of our fouls, and the care of our falvation, should furely bear the burden of all our songs for falvation, and for the hope of it. So the apostle sings, Rev. i. 5. Hearty praise to Jesus Christ for falvation can never be given, unless menknow that all their falvation is owing to him alone; to his will, and to his blood. If a man ascribe any bit of his falvation to any thing or person besides Christ, that thing or person will bear away, or rob somewhat of the glory of falvation. But since all salvation is from Christ, all the glory of it should be given to him.

- 2. This will make your faith in Christ strong. What is strong faith? Christians usually think, that strong faith hath in it peace, joy, and comfort. But these are but the essets of it; and separable also, as in Psal. xxii. 1. Never was faith near so strong in any faint, as it was so the man Christ on the cross; and yet no joy or comfort was tasted by him then. But as to faith in believers, strong faith is when a believer gets far in, into the love and will of Jesus Christ. Now, this doctrine opens up Christ's love and will about our salvation; let us then enter into it. Faith makes several approaches to Christ for and about salvation.

1/l, It feeketh, and findeth, and feeth atoning, reaconciling blood, flowing from Christ's love: Rom. iii. 25. God hath fet him forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood. Eph. i. 7. In whom we have redemption through his blood.

adly, Faith feeth life springing and growing out of Christ's grave. Alas! many are busy about Moses's grave, and have no business with Christ's grave. A believer seeth eternal life springing from Christ's death and grave. adiy, Faith goes further; and through this blood of atonement, and this life giving death, it enters into Christ's love and will that was in his redeeming. As there was life to us in his death, fo there was love to us in his dying for us, Gal. ii. 20. Rev. i. 5. But can faith go any further? Yes. Only one step more; and that is to the highest fountain of all this; even God's eternal purpose which he purposed in Jesus Christ our Lord, Eph. iii. 11. So that faith begins at Christ's death, rifeth with him in his resurrection, seeth the virtue and power of all in Christ's love, and then rifeth to the love of the Father that fent him, to that purpose of grace from which the Savious and all salvation doth proceed. Can faith go any further? No. Here faith is at a stand. The believer is faved, and yet finks and is overwhelmed in this depth; and, like one swallowed up, cries out, O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! Rom. xi. 33. When faith gets a view of the unlearchable riches of God's grace in, by, and through Jesus Christ, then the believer longs to be in heaven, to behold the fountain head of all grice and glory. Faith longs to cease to be faith. This is a strange and strong act of faith, a strange defire in a believer, "O when shall I cease to be a believer, and " become a feer! when shall the glass be done away, " and the full-eyed vision of glory succeed! I Cor.

"ceafe, and love fill their room?"
3. This feeing of Christ's heart and will about your falvation, will enable you to pray and labour rightly

« xiii. 10, 11, 12. When shall both faith and hope rightly for glory. What is it to do it rightly? It is to labour with courage, and to labour with humility. And Christians work prospereth, when those are united, as they always should be. How boldly may a believer say, I would be in heaven since Christ wills it? And how humbly should he say, I would be there; since his own will about it signifies nothing, and Christ's will is all?

Obj. How shall I know that I am in Christ's will for falvation? If I did know it, then I would give thanks, I would believe firmly, and would labour hard to obtain the possession of this glory.

Anjw. To this I offer three things. t. Consider how they behaved themselves, that with their own ears heard those very words from Christ's own month. It is a vain thought that readily rifeth in all our hearts, that if we had been present, and had heard Christ praying thus for us in a special, particular way, that we might be with him where he is, that then we would believe our falvation if we were in the faddest distress. But now confider what great encouragement to faith Christ gave them. He told them, chap. xiv. 2, 3. I go to prepare a place for you. I will come again, and receive you unto myfelf, that where I am, there ye may be also. What more could they defire, than to have Christ telling them to their faces, "You and I must "indeed part for a little while; but you and I shall quickly meet again, never to part more?" They did also with their ears hear Cheist praying over his promife to them, to his Father, I will that they be with me where I am. Could such believers under all those advantages, so great, so singular, ever stagger again? Yes. Almost as foon as this encouraging fermon and prayer is ended, their faith was almost at an end too: John xvi. 31, 32. Jesus answered them, Do ye now believe? Behold, the bour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered, every man to his own, and shall leave me alone. I speak this, to check the vanity of that thought in Christians, that if they had bu. but sufficient ground of the assurance of Christ's love, and of eternal glory, they would believe in every difficulty and trial. Yet you see how they behaved that had such grounds of faith from Christ's own lips, whist bodily present with them, which you cannot expect or defire. And I hope none of you will imagine, that if he had been in those good mens places, and had had their helps, you would have behaved better than they did. Grounds of faith, if never so great, yet if not attended with the influence of the Spirit of faith, will never keep faith in life and vigour.

Anfw. 2. What reason have you to doubt your interest in this prayer of Christ? You may say, I am so vile and unworthy, that I cannot believe that Christ willed me to be with him. If this be all, it is nothing, yea worse than nothing. 1. Hath not Christ willed eternal glory to many as bad as ever you were? Did he ever will heaven for worthiness in the persons that are to receive it? Is it not always willed to the praise of his own grace and love as the giver, and never as a recompence to the worth and loveliness of the receiver? 2. Christ will mend you ere he bring you to beaven. And a great work it is to make you meet for it, Col. i. 12.; a work that muit be done, and that he only can do, and he can eafily do it. 3. Right preparation for glory, flows from the faith of Christ's good-will to give it. It is a weak and ignorant, but common thought of Christians, that they ought not to look for heaven, nor trust Christ for eternal glory, till they be well advanced in holiness, and meetness for it. But as the first fandification of our natures flows from our faith and trust in Christ for acceptance, fo our farther fanctification and meetness for glory flows from the renewed and repeated exercise of faith on him. The hope of glory is purifying, 1 John iii. 3.

Aufw. 3. Every believer hath the witness in himfelf, that he hath an interest in Christ's heart and will in this prayer: 1 John v. 10. He that believeth en the Son of God, bath the witness in himself. The aposse is speaking of the many witnesses that are given to Jesus Christ as the Saviour. Three in heaven, ver. 7. three on earth, ver. 8. All are divine witnesses, and sufficient grounds of faith in Jesus Christ, ver. 9. Now, saith the aposse, ver. 10. He that believeth on the Son of God, (that trusts his soul, and its salvation, to this so well attested Saviour), he hath the witness (or testimony) in himself. 1. There are witnesses in heaven. 2. Witnesses on earth. 3. A testimony in the heart of a believer in Christ. Whoever believeth on Christ, that faith is an evidence sufficient (if he will require it to speak), and will regard its testimony: and both of them require actings of faith, to persuade him that he hath an interest in Christ's prayer here. On this I would glance at four things, and conclude.

t. Believers in Christ, what do you do when you believe? O that all believers did but know what they do when they believe! Do ye not, in every distinct act of faith, betrust your guilty perishing soul to the saving arm of Jesus Christ, upon the warrant of all that grace, mercy, and power, that belongs to Christ in his office of a Saviour? And is not this his willing of eternal glory, a great and glorious beam of that grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which ye believe to be faved? Acts xv. 11.

2. How came you by this your faith? Is it not his gift? He is the author of it, Heb. xii. 2. It is given on Christ's behalf, Phil. i. 29. Whenever you have an evidence in your heart, (and it is your own fault if you have it not daily), that you have true faith in Jesus Christ; if it be but weak, and cannot mount so high as it ought, raise it by this consideration, Whence came this spark of faith to be kindled in my heart? Did it naturally grow in my heart? No. Time was when I was without it, Eph. ii. 12. and loved to be without it. Did Satan plant it? No. I find him to be the great enemy of it; and I never felt his enmity.

mity, till I began to trust Jesus Christ; and it is that in me he mainly affaults. Did ministers, and the means of grace, plant faith in me? No. I enjoyed them when no faith was wrought in me; and when it is wrought, all their power, without Christ's grace and Spirit in concurring, cannot raise this faith to ast and exercise. Therefore, surely, this faith came from Jesus Christ himself. Was it not from the work, and will, and love of Christ? How easy and native is the inference? If faith in Christ be the work of his love, how warrantably may I look, by that faith, for all the good that this love purposeth, promiseth, and prayeth for to me?

3. Can you call him to witness with a good confcience, that your great desire and will is to be with Christ in heaven? If the Lord should try you with this question, "Name that one thing that you would "have above all;" every believer hath his answer ready; it is, "Lord, that I may be ever with thee, "where thou art;" as David said, Psalm xxvii. 4. of God's house on earth. This I inser, If thy love be set on being with Christ where he is, be affured that Christ's love is set on the same blessing for thee; yea, thy desire after it, slows from his desire of it for thee.

4. Are you willing, yea pleased and delighted, to hold your title to eternal glory, by the will and testament of Jesus Christ? Are you willing to have and hold the crown by this tenure only, that it was bought by his blood, and willed to you by histestament? Every believer would be in heaven, because Christ is there; and is pleased to get and keep his place there, as willed to him by Jesus Christ. Heaven is a lovely name, and a more lovely thing; but not at all known by many, and but little by the best; but yet believers look for it, and expect it, as the gift of Cod throf Jesus Christ our Lord, Rom. vi. 23. They plead for it as such; at last they receive it as grace, and eternally wear the crown as a crown of grace, as well as a crown of glory. The glorified faint, as foon as he receives this crown, casts it at Christ's feet, Rev. iv. 10. or fets it on Christ's head, as if ashamed to wear a crown, where Christ the only Worthy is. Upon Christ's head are many crowns, Rev. xix. iz. His Father puts a crown on him, Heb. ii. 9. crowned him with glory and honour; his mother, the church, crowns him, Cant. iii. 11. with a crown of falvation; and every faved person puts on Christ's head the crown of the glory of their particular falvation. To conclude: They that are not willing to give the glory of all falvation to Jesus Christ, shall never receive any falvation from him. But for you that are willing to receive all from him, and are delighted to render the glory of all to him, his heart is towards you; his best wishes are for your good; and he will give you what he hath prepared for you, which is exceedingly above all that can be told you.

SERMON II.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

THOSE great and faving words of our Lord Jefus Christ, have been taken up into two heads.

1. The manner of Christ's praying: I will. Of this last day.

Vol. II. D HEAD

HEAD II. The matter of Christ's prayer. And therein I took up four things. 1. The person he prays for; they whom thou hast given me. 2. The bleshing he prays for to them; that they may be with me subere I am. 3. The end our Lord prays for this blefling to them for; that they may behall my glory which then hast given me. 4. The argument our Lord prefleth this fuir by; for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

The first of these I would now speak to: The defunction and name of the persons Christ here prays for : They whom thou hast given me. No cian but Jesus Christ, who is more than a man, date say in prayer, I will; nor pray for persons under this name as Christ did. All our prayers are to be out of one book; and we pray without book in a bad fense, when we go beyond it. The only book I mean, is God's written will in the holy scriptures. By this we are taught what to pray for, and how we should pray: and beyoud this we cannot lawfully ask any thing; neither need we more for direction, but only the fame Spirit that writ them, to affect us in the using of them, Rom. viii. 26.; that we may pray in the Holy Ghost, Jude, ver. 20. and in the Spirit, Eph. vi. 18. But our Lord Jefus Christ could not only pray out of God's revealed will in the scriptures, (for he tettified of the scriptures, as they do of him, John v. 39.); but he could, and did pray out of the book of God's fecret will. He prayed out of the book of life, and was acquainted with the original of the covenant. And thus he prays here for them that were given him.

From this I would raife three dostrines, and speak to one of them at this time.

OBS. 1. There is a felect company of the children of men given by the Father to the Son.

OBs. 2. This company given by the Father to the Son was, and is fully and exactly known by Jefus Christ.

Ozc.

OBS. 3. That Jefus Christ is nearly concerned about their eternal falvation; as his praying for it here witneffeth.

OBS. 1. There was a felect company of mankind given by the Father to his Son Jefus Christ, to be faved by bim.

This truth is feveral ways declared to us in the word; and yet more by Jefus Christ himself, than by any other; and yet more in this prayer, than any where elfe by him. And, if we may so conceive, this great depth of God was specially fit to be mentioned, when the receiver of them is speaking his heart about them to the giver of them. This is named fix times in this short chapter. In ver. 2. As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as theu hast given him. In ver. 6. we have it twice: I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word. In ver. 9. I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine. Ver. 11. Holy Father, keep through thine own name, these whom thou hast given me. And here again in ver. 24. They whom thou hast given me. There is a twofold giving of men to the Son by the Father. One is eternal, in the purpose of his grace; and this is mainly meant here. The other is in time; when the Father by his Spirit draws men to Christ, John vi. 44, 45. All the elect are given from eternity to the Son, to be redeemed by his blood; all the redeemed are in due time drawn by the Father to the Son, to be kept to eternal life.

On this giving of men to Christ, I would speak a 1. To the nature of it. And, 2. To the ends of it.

I. As to the nature of it. This giving of men to the Son to be redeemed and faved, is the fame thing

with election and predestination, Eph. i. 4. He hath chosen us in Christ before the foundation of the world. Ver. 5. Having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself. And ver. 11. In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will. The difference betwith these two words is very small. Election points at the distinction of the persons on whom this grace sell from eternity. Predestination fixeth the end they were appointed to, 1 Thess. v. 9. Giving them to Christ, points forth the grand trustee with this great charge. The meaning of this word, giving of men to Christ, so oft used by our Lord, and hallowed by his using of it, hath these five things in it.

1. That there were divine transactions between the Father and Son about the saving of men. There was a counsel of peace between them both, Zech. vi. 13.; oft and plainly revealed in the word, yet a mystery unsearchable to all men, but firmly to be believed, reverently to be adored, and cautiously to be improved by us.

2. That there was but a felect company of mankind that this counsel was about. Our Lord, who knew them best, still speaks thus of them, especially in this prayer: as hath been declared. He still speaks of them by way of distinction from the world. Whatever men may say of universal redemption, surely universal election is a contradiction in words. Election must be of a fixed determinate number. There is no election, if there be no passing by. If all be taken, there are none chosen. If there be an election, there is a rest, a remnant, (and this rest is a multitude), Rom. xi. 7. How great this number of the elect is, Christ and his Father knew; and the last day will declare, when they shall be brought altogether, and obtain the kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world, and be adjudged to it by Christ, as they are the bleffed of his Father, Matth. xxv. 34.

3. That this counsel about their salvation was from eternity. Time-election is as great a blunder as universal election. How of is the eternity of it afferted in the word? Eph. i. 4. 2 Thess. ii. 13. 2 Tim. i. 9. Election is an immanent act of God about creatures; not on them, nor with them. It is in a transaction betwixt the Father and the Son, about men that were not, but were only to be; and to reap the benefit of it in time and to eternity.

4. It follows, that this grace of election must be unchangeable, immutable, and unalterable. It never changeth, it never fails of its deligned effect. All God's counsels are so: Isa. xxv. 1. Thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. His counsel stands for ever, the thoughts of his heart to all generations, Psal. xxxiii. 11. He is in one mind, and who can turn him? and what his foul desireth, even that he doth. For he performeth the thing which is appointed for me, Job xxiii. 13, 14. Now, of this number of the elect given by the Father to the Son, there is no paring from it, no adding to it. The book of life admits of no corrections, blotting out; no additions, no new editions.

5. It is also implied, that in this giving of men to the Son, the Son of God, our Lord Jesus Christ, hath a special interest. Thereby they are made his charge; and he the Captain of their salvation, to bring these sons of election-grace to eternal glory, Heb. ii. 10.

II. Of the ends of this giving of men thus to Christ by the Father. It is a glorious act of God, and it is on glorious defigns and ends. Of some of these, from the word, I would speak in these sour particulars.

r. Herein is a most clear displaying of absolute sovereignty in Jehovah. The glorious God is most zealous for the glory of this name of his sovereignty, as what most nearly concerns the glory of his Godhead; and proud vain men are most averse to the owning of The apollle Paul is on this same doctrine in Rom. ix. and builds it on this fame foundation, ver. 11,----10. He flarts two strong objections against it; as carnal minds are fertile in vain arguings against divine counfels. And O that all advocates for them had been fatisfied with Paul's answers, which are the only and ftrongest bulwarks of the Holy Ghost about this doctrine! Object. 1. is in ver. 14. Is there unrighteousness with God? Did God love Jacob, and hate Elia, before they had either done good or evil? ver. 11, 12, Where is the righteousness of this? Jacob had done no good to deserve love; Esau had done no evil to deferve hatred. How does the apostle answer it? 1. By an abhorrence of the charge: God forbid. we cannot see into the depth of God's countels, let us fill justify God, as Jer. xii. 1.; and admire and adore the depth we cannot fathom, Rom. xi. 33. 2. He answers with a reason taken from God's old saving to Moses, ver. 15. Now, if Paul had been of some mens minds, he would have answered. That God forefaw, that though Jacob had done no good when he was in the womb, yet that in time he would be a holy min, a wrefiler with God, and a great believer; and therefore God loved him, and therefore there was no unrighteousness with God. And so as to Efua, he would have faid, God forefaw that he would prove a protane man, would full his birth right for a mess of pottage, grieve the hearts of his godly father and mother by his marriage, and hate to the death he godly brother Jacob; and therefore God hated Elau, and therefore there was no unrighteousness with God. But Paul instead of hinting any thing like this, gives an answer inconfiftent with, and subverfive of this notion. In ver. 15. For he faith to Meles, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassfion. See the apolitie's inference from, and application of this word of God, ver. 16. So then; it is not cf

of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that sheweth mercy. And on the case of reprobate Pharaoh, ver. 27. he again infers, ver. 18. Therefore bath he mercy on whom he will have mercy: ond whom he will, he hardeneth. He plainly layeth the fovereign will and pleafure of God, as the fixed foundation of the counfels of God about mens eternal flate. Object. 2. In ver. 19. Thou wilt fay then unto me, Why doth he yet find fault? for who hath refifted bis will? A plaufible strong like objection, in every natural man's heart. How doth he answer it? ver. 20. Nay, but, O man, who art thou that replioft against God? He calls it, ver. 19. a saying to Paul; here in ver. 20. he calls it a replying against God. But is challenging the objector, an answer to the objection? Yes, in part it is; as if Paul had fald, "Dost thou know neither God nor thyself, that thou " cavillest against his will and counsels?" Thus Elibu answered Job, chap. xxxiii. 12, 13. Behold, in this thou art not just: I will answer thee, that God is greater than man. Why dost thou strive against hom? for he giveth not account (or he answereth not) of any of his matters. And after Paul had checked the arrogance of the objector, he again lays the fame ground of God's absolute sovereignty, ver. 20 .--- 33. with many fcriptures brought to the fame purpofe.

2. The fecond end of God's giving men to Jesus Christ, is, to glorify his free, infinite, and everlasting love to them that he gives. So in Eph. i. 4, 5, 6. The love of the Father shines in giving us to Christ to be redeemed; the love of the Son shines in his receiving of us; and these two loves (if I may call them so) do not eclipse, but colligaten one another, and make a glorious light to the eyes of a believer. Election is always in love, and from it, or with it. And this love hath no cause, but in the heart of the lover: He loves because he loves, Deut. vii. 7, 3. It had no beginning, it hath no intermission, and it shall have no ending. It is from everlassing to everlassing, Pial.

- ciii. 17. It is an everlassing love, Jer xxxi. 3.; therefore he draws with loving kindness, (or extended loving kindness unto thec). And he never leaves off to draw thus, till he hath drawn them to heaven, and till he hath crowned them with loving kindness and tender mercies, Psal. ciii. 4. Here doth this blessed love shine, in giving men to Christ; and here believers should behold it.
- 3. Another end of God the Father's giving of men to his Son, is, that there may be a glorious and fure salvation brought about for them that are thus given in fovereign pleafure and love. If Adam had stood in that state wherein he was created, (I know not if it be allowable to wish that it had been so), it would have been but a poor low happiness that he would have conveyed to his posterity, in regard of what comes by the fecond Adam to his offspring. That it was uncertain, is evident by the iffue. The first Adam was intrusted with his own and all his natural posterity's happiness, as with this charge, "So shall it fare with thee, and all thine, as thy behaviour "is," In this behaviour commanded, he failed, fell himself, and dragged us all with him into the same pit of fin and misery. But now it hath pleased the Father to lodge the happiness of his elect in his Son's hand, where it is both more fure and more glorious than the former.
- 4. This giving of men to the Son, is in order to the raifing up a great name of glory and honour to Jesus Christ. Great is his glory in being the repairer of this greatest breach which sin made betwixt God and man. This the apostle remarks in Rom. viii. 29. For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren. Of this surther when we come to speak of Christ's glory, in this text; and shall now only mention a little of Christ's concern in them that are given to him.

All the redcemed, and all their concerns for their falvation, are lodged in Christ's hand, and in his only. Their perfons, and every thing that pertains to them, are given to him.

2. All the impediments of their falvation are laid on Christ, that by him they may be removed. These are many and great, as you know. There is fin, and the law with its curse for fin, and the holy justice and wrath of God, and the power of hell and death. When a finner's eyes are opened to fee those impediments of falvation, it is no wonder he say with the disciples, Who then can be faved? All these impediments Christ did remove. But how? By taking them on himself, and removing them out of our way. For all the impediments of our falvation were impediments laid in Christ's way to his glory. He must not enter into his own glory, till he had removed the impediments of the elect's falvation. There could be no impediments in Chrisl's way to his glory, without his relation to his people. As he was the Son of God, cternal glory was his natural right and poffession; but when he comes to be Surety and Mediator, he muft first suffer, ere he enter into his glory, Luke xxiv. 26. 46. He must purge our sins by kimself, Heb. i. 3. He must put away sin by the facilifice of himself, Heb. ix. 26. He must through death destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, Heb, ii. 14. He must be made under the law, that he may redeem them that were under the law, Gal. iv. 4, 5. He redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a curse for us, Gal. iii. 13. He must make an entrance to the hotsest of all for us, by his blood; he must confecrate the way for us by his flesh, Heb. x. 19, 20. He must enter into the holy place by his own blood, having obtained eternal redemption for us, Heb. ix. 12. Thus, by our Lord Jesus Christ, all the gates of hell are shut on the elect, and none can open them; and all the gates of heaven are opened, and none can thut them on them that are given him.

28 SERM. II. 3. All the parts and pieces of salvation are in Christ's hand, and do come to us by him. The acceptance of our perfens, is in and through this beloved, Eph. i. 6. The forgiveness of our sins is through his blood, Eph. i. 7. Our quickening, when dead in fins, cur rifing, and fitting in heavenly places, is with Christ and in him, Eph ii. 4, 5, 6. Our title and right to heaven is fingly owing to him. What right bath a finner to heaven? No more, and no other, than he hath to Jesus Christ. If he be united to Christ by faith in him, he is an heir of God, and an heir of glory, a joint heir with Christ, Rom. viii, 17. Nay, our fanctification, which is begun glory, 2 Cor. iii. 18. is but a beam of this Sun of Righteousness darted in upon our fouls. Unless Christ had been made fanctification to us, there had never been a fanctified man or woman in the world.

4. The adual possession of the kingdom is owing to Jesus Christ. We have a right to it in him; our charter of it is fealed by his blood; we have the earnest of it by his Spirit; we are kept to it, and it kept for us, by his power; and at last we receive it out of his own hand, John x. 28. I give unto them eternal life. It is too great, and too good a gift, to be given by any but bleffed Jesus.

I would conclude with a few words of application. 1. Learn to fee with wonder and adoration the high spring of the well of life and salvation for poor men. It is in the Father's giving of men to the Son. Nothing is before it, and all the bleffings of grace and glory flow from it. From hence is the creating of the world, that these men might be born in it; from hence came the permitting and ordering of Adam's fall, that the Redeemer might be needful; from this Christ comes into the world, to redeem them; from this comes the gospel, as a light to seek those lost ones; from this cometh the Spirit, to make the gospel effcaual.

fectual, that they who are ordained to eternal life, may believe, Acts xiii. 48.

2. Labour to fee your own concern in this giving to the Son. It is but a deep and dangerous speculation without this care. Many poor questions are in people's heads, and many poor ways of answering them are in mens hearts. Some would fain know if they have any grace and true holinefs; others go farther, and they would fain know if they have faith, the fpring of holiness; some would fain know their title and right to heaven. There is an allowed room and place for these inquiries, and the like. But how few, even of true Christians, ask this question, Was I given by the Father to the Son? It is a question that may be made, and may be answered to satisfaction. Christ tells his disciples it, Luke x. 20. Paul knew it, I Theff v. 9. Peter bids us give diligence to make our calling and election fure, 2 Pet. i. 10. But because there is some difficulty and danger in managing this inquiry, I would offer a few things about it.

heart, that fatisfaction in this matter would be of great advantage to your fouls. 1. This would bring you to the top of the mount. As Moses on the top of Pifgah faw the earthly Canaan; so you, from the fight of your election-grace, may find it both an easy and a comfortable thing, to view all the streams of grace and mercy towards you. You would then fee whence they fpring, and whither they run. 2. This fight would keep you low and humble. The most humbling thought is this, "I was of mere fovereign " grace given by the Father to the Son." A false pretender to this bleffing may be proud; but the true believer of it is always humbled by it. Whence is it that there is fo much pride amongst Christians? why are they puffed up to foon and fo much? Is it not al-

what we are, have, or do. 3. The knowledge of this blessing of electing love, is of great use in extreme trials. We are called to lay our account with them; the Lord brings them on us; and we need all the armour of God against them, Eph. vi. to.; and the hope of salvation is a helmet in the evil day, to Thess. V. 8. 9. And this knowledge that we are appointed to salvation, is the ground of this hope. Christ comforts the hearts of his people with this, Luke vii. 32. Fear not, little flock; for it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Christ tells Ananias, that Paul was a chosen vessel, who was to do and suffer much for his name, Acts ix. 15, 16.; Ananias tells it Paul; and Paul repeats it, in the midst of his sufferings, in a great assembly, Acts xxii. 14, 15.

Advice 2. For as great advantages as this knowledge hath in it, think not, attempt not the attaining of it by a fudden leap; but you must ascend to it by degrees. It was a good faying, I think, of the bleffed martyr Mr. Bradford, " No man thould go to the " univerfity of predeftination, till he be well trained " up in the grammar-school of faith and repentance." If this, or the like method, be neglected, no good can, but much hurt will ensue. God's decrees are some way like the mount that must not be touched; but you must first worthip at a distance, and then make a reverend and awful approach. This is not only hely ground, but it is unfearchable by us. Now know, that though electing love hath no cause nor ground for it without God himfelf, yet it hath great and noble fruits, and in the decree of the end, falvation, there is a wife defign of fit means and ways to compals this end: 2 Theff. ii. 13. But we are bound to give thanks always to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, because God hath from the beginning chosen you to falvation, through sanclification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth; and 1 Pet. i. 2. Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through fanclification of the Spirit unto obedience, and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ. There is a work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope, whereby the election of God may be known, t Thess. i. 3, 4. You must not leap immediately up to the purpose of God, but climb up thereto by the steps he hash prescribed in his revealed will.

Advice 3. You must be at great pains about this. This knowledge of your own concern in this giving to the Son, is not easily acquired; wherefore the apostle faith, 2 Peter i. 10. Give diligence (and verse 5. Give all diligence) to make your calling and election fure. God's part in your calling and election is sure enough; and needs none of your labour to make it surer. But to make it sure to yourselves, and to make the knowledge thereof sure and clear to you, diligence is needful, and diligence will do it. Alas! who bestow any diligence about this greatest concern? Search out the fruits and marks of election: and when you find any of them, then, and not before, climb up this high tree of the Father's giving you to Jesus Christ.

Advice 4. Be not discouraged if it doth not yet appear to you, that you were given by the Father to the Son. It may be, though you do not fee it. Many of the given do not for a long time know it; yea, I fee no great danger in faying, that not a few of the given to the Son may be in darkness, and doubts, and fears about it, till the last and brightest day declare it, and till the last sentence proclaims it, Come, ye bleffed of my Father, (bleffed by this giving), inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world, Math. xxv. 34. It is wifely ordered by the Lord, that all that are given to the Son, do not (tho' they should endeavour it) know that they were given : and that they that are not given, cannot know it; that the book of life is not always legible to all believers, and that the book of death cannot be read by any unbeliever. It would be a miferable world, if the reprobate could be as fure of their being past by, as the elect may be of their being chosen to falvation. If therefore any of you be in the dark about your own election, be not discouraged; it may be, though you do not know it. And to fuch discouraged souls I would ipeak a few words.

Object. It may be some of you may say, that this is strange doctrine.

Anfw. I am forry that this doctrine is fo rarely taught; and I am fure, that it is not only the doctrine of Christ, and of his apostles; but that the work of the gospel in conversion of sinners, and in the edification, growth, and holiness of faints, did prosper more, when such doctrine was more commonly taught than now. Discouraged souls about this doctrine. answer these.

- 1. Can you hear of this giving of some by the Father to the Son, and blefs the giver, the Father; and the receiver, the Son; and count all the given a happy remnant? A heart grumbling and replying against this tovereign grace of God, I dare not fay is a fure token of one not given, but it is furely a very bad thing. But, on the contrary, it is a hopeful fign of an interest in this great bleffing, when a poor creature, in his deepest distress and fears about his own talvation, bath a high value for electing love, and reckons them bleffed indeed that are sharers thereof. He admires and adores this defign, even when doubttal of his own interest therein.
- 2. Can you be fure that you were not given to the Son? No, furely. God hath not, will not reveal it. Thy heart is blind and deceitful; do not trust it. Satan knows it not, and is a lyar, especially when he pretends to teach thee God's fecret purpofes. The elevil was never on God's counfel; why should you regard his whifpers? He is a reprobate, condemned (pirit, raging against God, and strives to insuse his own spirit and temper into sinners. Say then, " If I 45 know not that I was given to the Son, I cannot s know, I should not conclude, none can prove, that st I was not given to him." a. Is

3. Is Christ as God's gift precious to you? I Per. ii. 6, 7, 8. Then it is sure you were given to Christ? It is a deep secret, who are given by the Father to the Son; but it is an open plain truth, that the Father hath sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world, I John iv. 14. How do you like him; how do you esteem and love him? Say then, "Although I am "not sure that I was given to Christ, I am sure that "Christ is come as a Saviour, just such a one as I "need."

4. Can you give yourselves to Jesus Christ to be saved by him? Then were you given to him, to be redeemed by him. Your faith on him, speaks your election in him. True faith is the faith of God's elect's Titus i. 1. Why so called, but because all, and only God's elect, get it, and have it; and because election may be known by it; because faith flows from electing love, and should lead the believer up to this love as its original and spring? Answer then, thou that knows not that thou walt given to Christ by the Father, dost thou give thyself to Christ? Seest thou no hand in heaven nor earth, to intrust thy foul in. but Christ's? Hast thou so seen him in his skill and good-will to fave lost finners, that thou halt, daily dost, and resolvest still to bring, and lay, and leave thy perishing soul on Jesus Christ, as on him that speaketh in righteousness, mighty to save? Isa. Ixiii. 1. Then thou wast given to Jesus Christ. Go on in trusting him, and in living by faith on him; and he will make you know, that he loved you, and gave himfelf for you, Gal. ii. 20. And if thou knowest that he gave himself for thee in time, conclude, that thou wast given to him by the Father from eternity, and that thou shalt to eternity be with him where he is.

SERMON III.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which then hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the soundation of the world.

PETER gives a good testimony to Jesus Christ, in John vi. 68. Thou hast the words of eternal life. And here these words are eminently. Christ himsels is eternal life, I John i. 2. And in this text we have him that was and is essential, eternal life, praying for and willing of communicated eternal life to all his people.

The first thing I took up in the matter of Christ's prayer in this verse, was the name and description of them he prays for; they whom thou hast given me. From this part of the verse I named three doctrines.

1. That there was a felect company of mankind given by the Father to the Son, to be redeemed and faved. On this I fpoke last day.

OBSERV. 2. This company given to Christ are well known to him. Christ knows them all, particularly, fully, exactly. Christ doth not here pray, as we ought, for the cleck, on the general truth revealed in the word, that there is a body of the cleck, though we know not who they be; but Christ hath them all now as in his eye and heart particularly. Paul was in his eye, and all that were to believe on him through grace. Why are we commanded to pray for all men, though Christ did not, John xvii. 9, 10.? Because we know not particularly who are the elect, but Christ did.

On this truth I would offer a few things in proof of it, and then apply it. For this doctrine looks like a deep and barren point; yet it is profitable.

1. For proof of this, that the elect are known to Jesus Christ. Let us see what he himself speaks of it, John x. Once in that parable, ver. 3. He calleth bis own sheep by name, and leadeth them out. You will never believe, till Christ call you by name. Again, in the doctrine taught by him on the parable, ver. 14. I am the good Shepherd, (O how well doth it become Christ to commend himself! You will never love him, till Christ himself commend himself to you), and know my sheep. And ver. 27. My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me. Ver. 28. And I give unto them eternal life. Well doth Christ know to whom he gives eternal life. Woe to them to whom he will fay, I never knew you, Matth. vii. 24. Little better is that word in John x. 26. But ye believe not; because ye are not of my sheep, as I said unto you. Christ knew who were his sheep, and who not; who were gathered into his fold, and who were yet straying as lost sheep on the mountains: verse 16. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold; them also I must bring, and they shall hear my voice. The grounds of this truth are.

1st, Christ, as God, knoweth all things, and therefore knows who are given to him. It is a pity, that when the godhead of the Son shines so very brightly in the new testament, any should doubt and deny it. And it is pity also, that the deniers of this rock of the church of Christ should not renounce the name of Christians; or that any true Christian should afford this honourable name to such apostates. Peter, when asked by his Master about his love to him, John xxi. 17. answers by a humble appeal to his all-knowing.

He that knows all things, must know who were given

adly, The Son of God was a party concerned in this transaction. As the Father was the giver of the elect, the Son was the receiver of them. Will any fay, that the Father knew not whom he gave, when his foreknowledge is so expresly told in Rom. viii. 29.? It is equally abfurd to fay, that the Son knew not whom he received. And as the Father's giving was of particular, diffinct, and diffinguished persons; so was the Son's receiving of fuch persons. Hence our Lord fays of them in his prayer, ver 9, to. I pray for them; I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine. And all mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glerified in them. This transaction betwist the Father and Son, was a bufinefs, as of high fovereignty about mankind, and of infinite love to the given, so was it passed in infinite wisdom. The manifold wisdom of God is in this eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord, Eph. iii. 9, 10, 11. It is a high reflection on all the glory of God in this transaction, to say, that the Father knew not particularly whom he gave to the Son, or that the Son knew not who were given to him.

adly, Christ's knowing who were given to him, is the ground of his undertaking and dispatching the work of redemption. This work he undertook in love; this love is still acted on persons, Gal ii. 20. Rev. i. 5. These persons must be known to Christ, if so beloved by him.

4thly, It is this knowledge in Christ that is the ground of Christ's patience and pains on the elect. If any will fay, that Christ, in dying, designed no more for Peter than for Judas, (God forgive them, and open their eyes); I hope they will not fay, but Christ did more for Peter than for Judas. The vilible difference that is betwist Christ's way of dealing with men, flows from his knowing of them that are given to him. There are some that Christ deals with in and by the gospel; and, upon their first resusal, he leaves them, and Christ and they never meet till the last day: others he waits long upon, and yet he leaves them at last. But there are some that Christ deals with; and though they refuse him again and again, yet he will never leave them, till he hath gained their hearts, and faved them. Paul thought he was the rarest instance of this: I Tim. i. 16. Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first (in me the chief sinner) Jesus Christ might show forth all long-suffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting. Yet we may fay, that there are some in heaven, and some on earth, that have been as great patterns as Paul; tho' they were not so filled with the Holy Ghost as he; nor Christ's grace in calling them set so on a candleflick for all ages, as it was in his cafe. It may be Paul never heard Christ preach, nor faw his face, though he was brought up at Jerusalem in Christ's time, Acts xxii. 3. and xxvi. 4. It is like he heard no more of him, but by the common report, and by the flanders of the Pharifees, Christ's constant enemies. It was but blind zeal of the law that locked him up in unbelief, and made him hate Christ's name and people. But how many have been fince Paul, that have lived long under the light of the gospel, whom the Lord have striven long with, and they have as long striven against him, whom yet he hath subdued at last? Bleffed be his name; and may such instances be multiplied to his praise. This way is taken by Christ with some, according to his charge from his Father, John vi. 39. And this is the Father's will which hath fent me, that of all which he hath given me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day.

5thly, This knowing of them who are given to him, is the ground of the confidence of Christ as Mediator, as to the frecess of his work; both of his work of redemption of them by his blood, and of the work of his Spirit, in applying it to the fouls and confciences of the redeemed. So he proclaims it, John vi. 37. All that the Father giveth me, shall come to me. "I am fure, would he fay, of every one of them, "fooner or later." As long as there is one given, not yet come to Christ, there is one yet to believe on him. Christ might well promise this to himself; for the Father had promised it, Isa. liii. 10, 11. He shall fee his feed, he shall prolong his days, and the pleasure of the Lord shall prosper in his hand. He shall see of the travel of his foul, and shall be fatisfied: by his knowledge shall my righteous servant justify many; for he shall bear their iniquities. The latter part of John vi. 37. is Christ's promise to us, Him that cometh to me, I will in nowife cast out. Why do none but the given come to Christ? Because none can come unless they be drawn by the Father, John vi. 44, 45. Behold this bleffed order. The Father gives the elect to his Son, to be redeemed; the Son, in love, lays down his life for them, and redeems them. The Father draws them to Christ, and makes them believers: Christ receives them as given, redeemed and drawn; and thus are they faved. Christ knows them well, and therefore welcomes them.

APPLICATION. 1. This truth, That Christ knows all that are given to him, should feed and strengthen our faith, as to all the elect. Christ knows them; therefore they shall be faved. The apostle 2 Tim. ii. 18, 19. brings in this as a ground of faith, even when damnable errors creep in, and overthrow the faith of some: Nevertheless, the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his. The Lord-giver knows who are his, and whom he gives; and the Lord-receiver knows who are his; and whom he receives. The Lord knows better who are his, than the devil knows who are his, for many that the devil had as his, (as all natural men are, Eph. ii. 2, 3),

2, 3), and thought he was fure of as his, have been refcued by the Lord. But never did the devil prevail fully against any that are Christ's. It is a happy parenthesis in Matth. xxiv. 24. when our Lord is warning of dangerous times, by falfe christs, and of their great success in deceiving, he faith, that they shall deceive (if it were possible) the very elect. But it is impossible, because they are elect. There are two cases of the elect that this truth should strengthen our faith in, 1. As to the uncalled elect. Many of them are yet uncalled, and lying in the common pit of nature; but they shall be called. The gospel will be taken away from that place where none such are. All God's pains in the gospel are taken for the elects fakes, as Paul's pains were, 2 Tim. ii. 10. The Lord encouraged Paul to ftay and labour in Corinth, by this argument, For I have much people in this city, Acts xviii. 9, 10. Some are converted already, and many more are to be converted. 2. In case of backsliding and apostasy: a fad, but no very rare case. Some that have given great witness of the truth of the grace of God in them, have, through the power of corruption, the prevalency of temptation, and the Lord's leaving of them, failen foully, and lain long. Yet, if they be Christ's, his mark is on them, and they shall be recovered.

2. Believers, from this truth, have ground of strong consolation, both in praising and in praying: Heb. vi. 17, 18. The immutability of his counsel is declared, that we might have a strong consolation, who have sted for refuge to lay hold upon the hope set before us. Have you fled for refuge to Jesus Christ? Do you know it? Hath the Lord revealed it to you, that you have sought your only refuge in the shadow of Christ's wings? Then how should you rejoice and give thanks for your election? Thus the apostle did usually, Eph. i. 3, 4. 2 Thess. ii. 13. I dare not say, that no believer can be heartily thankful for Christ's grace, before he fully and surely know its highest spring: but I am sure that that believer praiseth best, that knows best that he was given to the Son. The receivings of the glorified will be the greatest; their praises will be the highest; and their knowledge of eternal love as the fpring of all their grace and glory, will be the clearest. And as this doth raise praise, so doth it raise mighty prayer. Our Lord prays for his people under this name, Thine and mine, John xvii. 9, 10. David prays for himfelf, under this name. Pfal. cxix. 94. I am thine, fave me. The clearer your knowledge be of your interest in God, and in his love, the more mighty will your pleadings with him

And fo much for the fecond point.

OBSERV. 3. Christ's heart is set on the bliss of all that the Father hath given to him. And this he expreffeth in this defire.

On this point, I would, 1. Give some proofs of this truth. 2. Show whence this heart-concern for their blifs doth flow.

1. Proofs of this truth, That Christ's heart is fet on the blifs and eternal falvation of his people, are thefe five.

1. Chrift's covenanting for them proves this. In that day (if a day may be talked of in eternity; but we are time-creatures, and have no fit words for eternity) when this bleffed company were given by the Father to the Son, the Son did undertake to do all things needful to be done, to bring them to eternal glory. He undertook and promifed to take on him their natures; and in that nature to bear their fins; and, by the farrifice of that nature for their fins, to make an expiation of their fins. In a word, he promifed to do all he was required to do, and he did all he promifed to the Father, for the falvation of his people. Whenever we look to this treaty, we must gather, Surely the Son of God had a great mind to the happiness of his people. 2. Chrift's

2. Christ's chearful laying down his life for their redemption, proves how his heart was set on their salvation. It was his errand in coming into the world: John x. 10. I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly. Believees get a greater, higher, and more noble life by the second Adam, than they lost by the first Adam. This is the meaning of that much more twice mentioned by the apostle when comparing these two heads, Rom. 15. 17. But how doth Christ give, and his people receive this life? Even by his death. He laid down his life for his sheep, John x. 11. 15. Therefore his sather loved him, ver. 17. And thereby he proved his love to the salvation of his people, John x. 13.

his love to the falvation of his people, John xv. 13.
3. He proves his love to their falvation, by his feating and confirming the covenant, the charter of their falvation, with his own blood. Compare Gal iii. 15, 16, 17. with Heb. ix. 15, 16, 17. It is called the blood of the everlasting covenant, Heb. xiii. 20. Christ's blood was not only redeeming and purchasing blood, a just and full price both for the heirs and for the inheritance; but it was fealing blood, and confirming of that covenant, in and by which the inheritance was fecured to the heirs, and the heirs secured for the inheritance. Alas! many have the Bible, and use it but little; and many use it amiss, because they know not its right name. It is well and warrantably, from its contents, called, in its title-page, in all languages and translations, The Old and New Testament of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. But how few, in reading this title, mind the use and virtue of the blood of Jesus, which turned the covenant of God's grace into the testament of Christ, and thereby sealed and confirmed all the good words and good things in that covenant? It was a happy word we find in the Book of martyre. that some in the dawning of the light of the gospel in this land, near two hundred years ago, used, in calling the New Testament (a great rarity in those days) The blood of Christ. You never rightly read the gospel, nor do you understand the design of it, nor rightly believe one promise in it, till in heart you can say, "This gospel is the only charter of my sal-"vation, sealed with the blood of my only Saviour." If any be for another Saviour than Christ, and for another security and charter for salvation than his thus sealed testament, on their eternal peril be it. Let them try, and perish. For, as God is true, perish they shall, even all that take that course, Acis iv. 12.

4. Christ proves his love to his people's salvation by his intercession for them. Of which this chapter is a great instance. And whereof we have so much spoke in Rom. viii. 34. Heb. vii. 25. and ix. 24. and I John ii. I. This is his business in heaven. By this he prepares their place for them, John xiv. 2, 3.; and on it assures them of their possessing of it.

5. Christ gives his Spirit to his people, to prove his concern about their falvation. And we may allude to Isa. v. 4. What could have been done more? He covenanted with the Father from eternity about their falvation. He bought it for them, and them for it, in the fulness of time. The day of Christ's redeeming his people, was the flower of time, the greatest and noblest thing done since God set the clock of time a going; for his glorious return is to be at the end of time. He turned the covenant of their falvation into a testament by his blood; and did in that testament leave all the grace and glory bought by his blood as a legacy to his people. He, when he had done this, went to heaven with his blood, Heb. ix. 12. that it might speak before God, Heb. xii. 24. for all bleffings to his people. And till they get full possession of glory, he gives to them his Spirit. All that are his have his Spirit, as furely as it is, that if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his, Rom. viii. 9. 15. Gal. iv. 6. This gift of the Spirit is a marvellous gift. None can know ir, but they that receive it: John xiv. 17. The Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him : but we know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be on you. I John iv. 13. Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, because he hath given us of his Spirit. This gift is always given in mere love and grace, and is a fure proof of God's special love. This gift of the Spirit is an earnest of heaven, 2 Cor. i. 22. God bath sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts; and 2 Cor. v. 5. And Eph. i. 13, 14. he is called that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory. He is called the first-fruits of the Spirit, Rom. viii. 23. This gift is an enriching gift. How great things doth he in and on the man! How much good doth he bring along with himself! He reveals Christ to the soul, John xvi. 14, 15.; draws the foul to Christ, unites him with Christ; dwells in the believer, and feals him to the day of redemption, Eph. iv. 30.; comforts him till that day comes. Hence called the Comforter by our Lord, John xiv. 16, 26, xv. 26, and xvi. 7. Yet for all the richness of this gift of the Spirit, this you must know, that as foon as a man receives this gift, he fees and finds himfelf to be a poor, empty, and needy creature. When this eye-falve of Christ anoints a man's eyes, then he feeth what he did not before; that he is wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and na-ked, Rev. iii. 17, 18. Therefore is the Spirit of Christ in believers a Spirit of grace and of supplication, Zech. xiii. 10.; a Spirit of adoption, crying, Abba, Father, Rom. viii. 15. and Gal. iv. 6. If no man can fay, that Jefus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghoft, 1 Cor. xii. 3.; furely no man can call the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Abba Father, but by the Holy Ghost. The first word of the new creature is Abba. But many believers live long ere they can say Abba confidently. They do not consider duly, that as this relation is granted by the Lord; so it Vol. II. G thould should be pleaded by believers, without any regard to worth in us, but only to his own free grace and love in Jesus Christ. The Spirit of Christ in believers is a Spirit of prayer, a Spirit of begging in a child at its heavenly Father's door. The believer finds manifold daily wants; he knows none can relieve and fupply his wants, but his God by Jefus Christ, Phil. iv. 19. He hath an inftinct, and fome ability by the Spirit to beg and wait. The operation of the Spirit in believers, the communion of the Holy Ghost, is a great mystery. He works more on them, than they feel and know; and they feel more than they can express in words; and they express more, than any that have not received the same Spirit of faith (2 Cor. iv. 13.) can understand. But this we know, that whenfoever the Spirit of Christ applies his grace and power to the heart of a finner, there is fomething wrought that day, that shall last to eternity. There is, by that finger of God, that impression made upon the foul, and that mark left upon it, that shall never wear out, and that fin and Satan shall never be able to blot out again; but it shall remain, and grow, and be feen at the coming of Christ at the last day, Phil. i. 6.

II. Why is Christ's heart so set upon his people's glory in beaven?

1. Because of his near interest in them. His interest in his church and people, is greater and closer than we can conceive. The Holy Ghoft useth many fimilitudes to help our thoughts. Of them I would name only two of the plainest and most common. One is, of Christ's being the head, and the church his body and members; Eph. i. 22, 23. iv. 15, 16. and Col. ii. 19. Another is, the marriage-union of man and wife; and especially of the first married couple, Adam and Eve, our first parents, Eph. v. 25 .--- 32. And you may well think, that it was a fit match. When the first man was made, God took a part of this man's body, and made of it a woman to be a wife to him. So is the church, Christ's bride, taken out of Christ's fide; not in a fleep, (as it was with the first Adam, Gen. ii. 21, 22) but in and by his death. As Eve was made a most excellent woman, both for endowments of body and mind; to Adam in innocency did doubtless love her perfectly. She was of him, from him, for him, and made to be with him. All this is but a shadow of the church, Christ's bride. The first Adam's love to his rare wife, was nothing to Christ's love to his bride. Yea, Christ is not only the head of the body, and the husband thereof, but Christ is to the church, as our fouls are to our bodies, 1 Cor. vi. 17. All the life, power, and ability of our bodies, naturally flows from the foul dwelling in it. If the foul be never fo happy, (as the fpirits of just nien made perfect are, Heb. xii. 23.), yet it hath a happy longing in its glorified state for its re-union with the body. So Christ, the quickening Spirit, (as Paul calls him, I Cor. xv. 45), hath a great happy defire of having his glorified body with him where he is.

2. Christ is much concerned about glory to his people, because of his engagements for and to his people. There is a treble engagement of Christ that he lieth under for bringing his people to heaven. 1. The command of his Father, John vi. 38, 39, 40. And this commandment is eternal life; and this Chrift knew, and revealed it, John xii. 49, 50. 2. His promite to his Father in the everlasting covenant. 2. His promife to us in the gospel, 1 Joh ii. 25. He hath engaged to his Father, that none that are given to him shall ever perish; and he hath promised often and plainly to us in the gospel, that none that believe on him shall ever be ashamed. And wofully would a believer in Christ be ashamed, if he came short of heaven.

3. The greatness of Christ's love to his people, makes him so much concerned about their complete G 2 falvation.

falvation. Christ's love is so great, that it passeth knowledge; and some Christians love to Christ is so weak, that it is hardly seen and selt by them. It is not every one that can give Peter's answer unto Christ's question, John xxi. 15, 16, 17. Lord thou knowest all things, then knowest that I love thee. Now, we know concerning love, that it natively lieth in wishing well to the beloved. Doth Christ love his people? How can he but wish them well? And how can he wish them better, than to be with him where he is?

Application. I. Is Jefus Christ so much concerned for the glory and b'effedness of his people? Then see how sweetly we come to heaven. It is by Christ's blessed will; his blood paying the price, and giving us the right and tide to glory; and his heart and good-will giving pessession of it. Thus are we faved, both furely and sweetly.

2. How firmly should we believe on Jesus Christ. and trust him for falvation? It is no small reproach to him, that is fo often done by that unbelief and doubting that is fo usual to some Christians. Christ minds our falvation heartily, and we believe feebly; he faying, I will have them with me where I am; and we often faying, Lord, thou wilt not bring me where thou art. Is it not finful in us, and dishonourable to Christ, for us to be faying, Thou woi't not, when he is faying, I will? We should trust our falvation on Jefus Christ, not only as on him that only can fave, and that is able to fave perfectly; but as on him that hath more good-will to fave, than we can have willingness to be faved by him. None had ever been faved by him, none had ever been brought to heaven, unless Christ had had more willingness to bring them thither, than they had to be led thinher by him. He must in all things have the pre-eminence, Col. i. 18, and in this especially. Unbelief is in all doubtings of Christ's good-will to fave. Whatever may be faid of the leper's faith, in Matth. viii. 2. Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean; no perishing some can be quite excused, that shall put an if on Christ's willingness to save one that employs him in his office of saving, wherein his glory is so concerned, and his heart so deeply engaged. We should give him the glory that is due to him; to believe that the willingness to save is greater in the Saviour, than willingness to be saved is in the sonner. For Christ's good-will to save, is the cause of any desire of salvation in any: Psalm ex. 3. Thy people shall be willing in the day of thy power. When he hath a mind to save, he doth work this willingness in men to be saved by him; and they will own it to proceed from his willingness, when they become strong believers; and will see it and know it perfectly, when they get full salvation.

3. How strongly should believers love the Lord Jesus Christ? Is his heart so set on thy heaven? How silled with love to him ought thy heart to be? Woe to them that love him not, I Cor. xvi. 22. And in no better case are they that think they love him enough, and such as love any thing as well, and that hate not all things in comparison with him, Luke xiv. 26. To love Christ as thou dost thy life, will not be enough. It is higher and greater love that Christ doth deferve and require, and will only accept.

4. How patiently and quietly should we submit to Christ's conduct and guiding us in the way to heaven? Is his heart set on bringing you thither? Let him guide you in the way as he pleaseth. Doth he say peremptorily, I will have them with me where I am? Let him guide you as he will, while you are in the world. When a believer is satisfied by faith, that Christ wills glory to him in the end, he will sind it easy to submit to Christ's conduct by the way. He may indeed, in some trials of his saith, be put to say, "This is a dark path I am led to walk in:" but saith will say, "But I am in Christ's hand; this is his way "of leading me; every step that Christ leads the hese lieving traveller in, must lead to heaven." He best knows the way; and the wisdom of the Christian lieth in following Christ whithersoever he goeth, and leadeth him. Though thou feest not heaven, the end; though thou knowest not the path he leads thee in: though the path, to thy fenfe, looks liker the way to hell, than to heaven: yet if Christ leadeth thee, and if theu be in his hand, it is impossible, but that Christ thy guide will bring thee to heaven, as thy home.

SERMON IV.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

HIS chapter contains the best part of the gof-pel. If the ge pel be good news from heaven, (as furely it is), the best part of those good news is what the Saviour fends up to heaven in this prayer. And what he fends up in this prayer, he brought down from heaven, from his Father, John vi. 38. I have made some entrance on this verse 24. the fixeetoft of this prayer, if comparison may be made, where every word is most sweet and excellent. I have spoke unto the manuer of Christ's praying, I will. The manner is fingular, and the matter most excellent. The manner of Christ's praying here, is more like a commander, than a supplicant. What specialties there were in the person that made it, and in the feafon that drew forth this high word, you have heard.

The matter of Christ's prayer in this verse, I took up in four; and have spoke to the first of them, to wit, the description of the party he prayeth for. In this chapter, our Lord not only describeth them he prayed for, but expresly denieth that he prayed for any besides them, ver. 9, 10. I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou hast given me, for they are thine. And all mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glorified in them. From this description of them Christ prayed for in this verse, and in other parts of this chapter, I have spoke unto these three points. 1. That there is a select determinate company of men, that were given by the Father to the Son, to be redeemed and faved by him. 2. That this company was particularly and exactly known by Jefus Christ. 3. That Christ's heart was fixed and resolved on the eternal salvation of all them that were given to him. And here he expresseth it highly, in this I will.

The fecond thing in the matter of Christ's prayer, followeth to be spoke unto; and that is, the blessing he prayeth for unto them. It is, that they may be with me where I am. There are three things here, that I would first take notice of and explain; and then speak to the words themselves; and give you from them, the doctrines which I intend to infilt more largely upon.

1. The first thing I take notice of, is this alfo, and what is its fignification. 2. What is this to be notice Christ, as distinct from other scripture-words about Christ and his people. 3. What it is to be with Christ where he is.

I. Concerning this word alp. It doth not in the least hint, that there are any that he defires may be with him where he is, belides those that were given him: but it is only his praying for another, and greater bleffing, to them that were given to him. Our Lord had prayed for many and great things for them before in this chapter and prayer. He had prayed his Father to keep them, to fanclify them, and to make them all one in the Father and in the Son. "But " (would our Lord fay) there is fomething more than "all this I would have for them;" I would have them to be with me where I am. Hence

Observ. Nothing short of, nothing less than heaven, and eternal glory in it, doth flint and limit Christ's heart and prayers for his people. For all he hath done for them, for all he hath given to them, (and there is a great deal of both), there is still this also in his heart for them. I will that they also may be with me where I am. "I will not only go where they are, but I will " also have them where I am." Nothing less than " everlasting bleffedness to his people, doth limit "Christ's will and prayers for them. He prays for every thing to them, and for this also. When the apostle is speaking to believers in Heb vi. 4,---9. he gives a very gracious infinuation, after a most fearful alarm. When he had spoke some of the most terrible words in the scripture, upon a supposition of an utter apostafy from Christianity, after great attainments: If such as have been enlightened, &c. do fall away, their case is desperate; they are soil that bring forth nothing but briers and thorns, are near unto curfing, and their end is to be burned. But, beloved, (faith he, ver. 9.), we are perfuaded better things of you, and things that accompany falvation, though we thus speak. All the grace that Christ giveth, all the grace that believers receive and act in this life, are but things that accompany falvation, that do pertain unto the state of falvation, and prepare for the full enjoyment of falvation in heaven.

There are feveral forts of gifts that Christ gives, and believers receive, in this life, that pertain to falvation. As.

1. Their right and title to heaven. And that is Christ himself possessed by faith; dwelling in their hearts by faith, Eph. iii. 17.; Christ in them the hope of glory, Col. i. 27. That day that Christ entered into their hearts, the hope of glory began to dawa. And the deeper he enter into the heart of any, the greater is the hope, so as to make the believer rejoice in hope of the glory of God, Rom. v. 2.

2. The Lord giveth also meetness for heaven; and that is wrought by his Spirit and grace on his people: Col. i. 12. Giving thanks unto the Father, webich hath made us meet to be made partakers of the inberitance of the faints in light. This meetnels for partiking is inseparable from a right and title to glory; at least fo far, that no believer can have a comfortable view of his right, without fome experience of his meetness for enjoying the inheritance. This same apostle faith to this same purpose in 2 Cor. v. 5. Now he that hath wrought us for the felf-same thing, is God; who hath also given unto us the earnest of the Spirit. He hath been at great pains on us, and hath used many means and methods with us. And what hath all this been for? It hath only been the Lord's gracious and wife way of polishing and framing us for heaven.

3. There is the earnest of the inheritance that Christ gives, and Christians receive sometimes, Eph. i. 13, 14. This pertains to glory nearly. It is like the first-fruits of that good land, frequently spoke of in the word; and might be more often taited by believers, were it not for their laziness and unbelief when they want it; and their bad guiding of it, when at any time they enjoy a little of it.

APPLICATION. Imitate our Lord Jesus Child

in your praying for yourfelves. Imitate him,

1. In all your askings. There are some spiritual blessings that believers are very desirous of. Conscience terrifies you, and then you cry, O for the sprink-Vol. II.

ling of the blood of Jesus, and for peace with God thereby, and peace within! O for victory over sin, and for strength to walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing! All good prayers. But if all this were granted you, remember to pray on this also for glorv. Beg pardon and heaven also, holiness and heaven also. Ask any good thing which you want, and which he hath promised. Ask every thing, and heaven also, Let your prayers for yourselves be as large as Christ's are for you.

2. Remember this als in all your receivings, as well as in your askings. His fulness is infinite, his bounty is great; but his people are but narrow veffels, and cannot receive much: and are leaky veffels, and cannot keep long what they receive. Is he kind, large-hearted, and open handed to you? (is no believer dare deny). Blefs him, and beg heaven alie. Jacob was a meck, lowly, humble man, and faith, Gen. xxxii 10. I am not worthy of the least, (or, I am less than the least) of all the mercies, and of all the truth which thou haft shewed unto the servant. This man looks on the least mercy as a great mountain, and on himself as a little mole-hill. You would think, furely this humble man will not stand with God for any thing; yet he will weep and make supplication, as in Hof. xii. 3, 4. and wrestle all night, and say, (doubtless with his eyes full of tears, and his heart full of faith and love), I will not let thee go, except thou blefs me. Receive all his grace and bounty with all the fense you can reach, of your own unworthiness; yet still remember this also. Be not fatisfied so as not to defire eternal glory. Make use of all experiences of his grace to you, to quicken both your defire and your faith of eternal life. Let that well of water in you, which Christ's grace hath made in you, spring up into everlasting life, John iv. 14.

II. The tecond word that is next to be explained, is, with me: I will that they be with me. It may be fome of them were with Christ when he prayed

thus; it may be all the eleven aposses were there. But their being with Christ in the garden, was but a small matter. Christ was then at his lowest; then was the cloud thickest, and the eclipse darkest on the Son of God. It is another, and better place and ease, that Christ prays to have them with him in, than this.

There are three words concerning Christ and his people, in the scripture, that are very good and gracious; but this in the text is beyond them all.

1. We find, that his people are faid to be in him, 1 John v. 20. and 2 Cor. v. 17.

2. Another word is, that Christ is said to be in bis feeple, 2 Cor. xiii. 5. We are in Christ by faith; and Christ dwells in our hearts by faith, Eph. iii. 17. So John xvii. 22.

3. And Christ is said to be with his people. This was amongst the last words of Christ, when going to heaver, Matth. xxviii. 20. And lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. "Though ye "shall never see my sace any more, till I bring you "to heaven, yet I am with you always." But this "word of being with Christ, is above all those three, for as great as they are. This is far better, Phil. i. 23.

III. The third word to be explained in the text is, where I am : That they may be with me where I am. Where was Christ when he faid these words? He was either in the garden, or going to it. For what is in these four chapters, xiv, xv, xvi, xvii. was, in all appearance, spoken by our Lord, partly at his last supper, partly immediately after it; as may be gathered from John xiv. 31. Arise, let us go hence. Christ was on the earth when he faid this; but furely he meant heaven in this word, where I am. He was just upon leaving the world, and on going to heaven; as he speaks, John xvi. 28. I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father. And John xvii. 11, 12. he speaks as if no more in the world: And now I am no II 2 more more in the world, but these are in the world. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name. So like is this bleffed prayer to the intercession of our great High Priest in heaven. Now let us consider how far this bleffing of being with Christ where he is, is above and beyond all he had done for, and faid before to his people; and yet they were very confiderable.

1. Our Lord Jesus Christ was made what his people are. He was made all that we are, except fin. There was no difference betwixt Christ and another man, as he came into the world, but only in this, (and it was his glory, and our falvation), that he was fintels. But all his people are fragen in iniquity, and in fin did their mother conceive them, Pfalm li. 5. Are the children partakers of flesh and blood? He also him-self likewise took part of the same. He took on him the feed of Abraham. Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren, Hebrews ii. 14,

2. Isfus Christ was not only made what his people were, but he came where they are. He came into the world, their dwelling-place, and came down from heaven into the earth, John vi. 33. Never did any person come down from heaven but Jesus Christ. Neither could be come down from heaven, if he had not been God; for that body he took to himself, was formed in the lowest parts of the earth, Pfal. cxxxix. 15. (as well as the body of other men), though in a fingular manner. What marvellous grace and love was here, that the eternal Son of God would not only take on him his peoples nature, but would come and dwell where they dwelt, and that with delight? See Prov. viii. 30, 31. Then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing acways before him, as the Son with the Father. It is very like to that in John i. 1, 2. In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. Vec.

Ver. 14. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us. But fee farther what is faid, Prov. viii. 21. Rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth, and my delights were with the fons of men. When was this? From everlasting, or ever the earth was, ver. 23. While as yet he had not made the earth, ver. 26. How marvellous is this expression, that God's Son, the eternal Wifdom of the Father, did eternally rejoice in the babitable part of the earth, when there was no earth; and that his delights were with the fons of men, when there was no man, nor fon of man, in the earth? But the habitable part of the earth, though not yet made, was the place he was to come into, for redeeming his people. And as he delighted in it from eternity, he came triumphantly into it, in the fulness of time: Heb. x. 7. Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God. He also loved the ground his bride was to tread on, the earth where they were to live in, and where in time he was to court the heart and win the love of his people.

3. Our Lord went where his people deferved to go. There is a good fense of that harth-like word, He descended into hell. It is a popish fable, to imagine, that Christ, after he died, went down into the place of the damned, either to fuffer, or to do any thing there. His humiliation was accomplished in his dying, and lying in the grave for a time. But if we take it in this fense, that that stroke of divine justice that his people by fin had deferved, Christ did feel and bear; this is the usual voice of the golpel. The sword of justice was roused, furbished, and drawn against Jesus Christ, and his foul pierced thereby, Zech. xiii. 7. He was apprehended, accused, arraigned, condemned, and executed, most unjustly and wickedly by men, but most righteously by God. Meas putting of Christ to death, was the most unjust and wicked all that ever was done in the world. But the Lord Jehovah's part in it, was most just and righteous. If you have ears to hear it, this is a fure truth. Never did a damned

tioner deserve hell more justly, nor was, or shall be that into it more righteously, than the spotless Lamb or God deserved the stroke of divine justice for the sus of his people laid upon him. It was indeed infinite grace and love in the Father, to substitute his only begotten Son to be the Saviour of sinners, I John iv. 9, 10. It was infinite grace in our Lord Jesus Christ, to condescend to be the facrifice for sinners, 2 Cor. viii. 9. But when both are done, justice was glorised in the execution of this facrifice, Rom. iii. 25, 26.

4. Our Lord also went whither he had a mind to bring us; and that is, to heaven. And yet all this is thort of being with him where he is. On this, consider, 1. How he went, and left his people: Luke xxiv. 50, 51. And he led them out as far as to Bethany; and he lift up his hands, and bleffed them. And it came to pass, while he bleffed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into beaven. A bleffed way of going hence. Our bleffed Lord came into the world, 73 the greatest bleshing that ever it got. He blessed his people while he was with them, and bleffed them at parting, and will return again to blefs them more. The last use our Lord made of his lips on earth (11.12) which grace was poured, Psalm xlv. 2.), the last life he made of his holy hands, was to bless his people; and the force and virtue of that bleffing remains to this day, and will until his return. He went away bleffing, and will come again bleffing. He aftended with a shout, Pfalm xlvii. 5.; and he shall bemself de-Good from beaven with a front, I Theff iv. 16. 2. 10 the forerunner, Heb. vi. 20.; to prepa e a place for us, John xiv. 2, 3.; to make interreffice for w, lieb. is. 24.; to mind our concerns while we are here, and to welcome us to heaven when he calls us honce. You may think, that it is far more comfortable for believers now to die, having Christ in heaven before them, than it was for believers to die before he came into the world, as many did; or to die, and leave Christ in the world, as it may be some did: though his faving grace is the fame in all the states he was in. But now we die to be with him. Phil. i. 22. to be subere he is, John xiv. 2, 3.

5. Christ is with his people even while they are here in the world. This is also a great blefling, out short of this being with him where he is. There are two feasons when this presence of Christ with his people is known. 1. When they are at their beit. When is a Christian at his best? Every one can anfwer, It is when most of Christ's presence is enjoyed. 2. When is he at his worst? When in great ashelion, Ifa. xliii. 2. Paul found this prefence: 2 Tim. iv. 16. 17. At my first answer no man stood with me, but all men for jook me. He had never a triend then and there. but Jefus Christ. Notwithstanding the Lord stood with me, and strengthened me, When a believer is greatly tempted, then is he in a bad condition. Peter was warned both of his danger and relief, Luke axii. 31, 32. Paul had this exercise, 2 Cor. xu. 7, 8, 9. and relief under it; and makes this use of it, Mest gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities. that the power of Christ may rest upon me. As if he had faid, "I have got a troublefome visit from the " devil; but it bath been the occasion of a gracious " visit from Christ. And if the one come first, and "the other follow, the first is to be patiently borne, and the other to be thankfully received." There is also a presence of Christ with his people, even in their flumblings. Though he be diffeleafed with them for their falling, yet he hath a double care about them. One is, that they may not fall utterly: Pfal. xxxvii. 24. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cars down; for the Lord upholdeth him with his band. Another care of Christ about his stumbling chi'dren, is, to take them up again. Lastly, Christ's recole have his presence with them in dying. And it is a preciot.

precious and needful bleffing. Will Christ withdraw his gracious help and prefence from his people, when it is so very needful? Paul calls dying a sweet name. 1 Theff. iv. 14. fleeping in Jesus. It is a dark place, and a cold pillow, that this fleep is taken on. But it is the sweetest sleep that ever the believer took. The body is freed from all pain and trouble, and will be fweetly awakened at the last day. And till then the Spirit is not only with him that gave it, Eccl. xii. 7. but with him that redeemed it, Pfal. xxxi, 5.

But now what Christ prays for here, is far beyond all those. He was made what we are; came where we were; fuffered what we deferved; went to heaven for us; gives his presence with us here, in life and death. But more than all is this, I will have them where I am.

There are two points of doctrine that I would speak to from this word.

DOCT. 1. To be with Christ where he is, is Christ's, and the believer's beaven; that beaven that Christ gives, and that believers receive.

DOCT. 2. That our Lord's will is fet upon his people's enjoying of this bleffedness.

I would at this time conclude with three words of application of what hath been faid.

1. Behold how greatly Christ loves his people. This prayer of his for them, flowed from his boundless love. He cannot be pleased without them, and they cannot be happy without him. All the glory and blifs that Christ is possessed of, doth not fully satisfy him, till he have all his people with him. His church is his body, the fulness of him that filleth all in all, Eph. i. 23.

2. Behold how happy are his people. Moses sung this of old, Deut. xxxiii. 29. Happy art thou, O Ifrael! Who is like unto thee, O people saved by the Lord? Much more may we fay fo, when Christ hath appeared, who hath abolified death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel, 2 Tim. i. 10.

2. Learn to pray moderately for the lives of Christ's people. There are fome of the godly that are very ufeful by their gifts and grace; and, if spared, might be of great profit to the church of Christ. Such we should be loth to lose, and their lives we may pray for: yet it must be done moderately. Who can reli but Christ and we are praying counter to one another? He may be faying in heaven, " Father I will " have fuch a one to be with me where I am;" and we faying on earth, " Lord we would have him to " be with us where we are:" we faying, "We can-not spare him as yet;" and Christ saying, "I will "be no longer without him." It is the force of this prayer of Christ, "I will have them to be with me "where I am," that is the cause of the death of the godly. It is the force of this prayer that carries away To many of the faints in our day. Christ is faying in heaven, "I will have them where I am. They are "despised in the world, and badly used on the earth : "Father, let us have them where we are." Should not we pray modeftly for their lives, while we know not his fecret will? and should not we believingly fubmit to his will, when he reveals it? Say, "Let " them go from us, fince Christ calls them to be with "him." It is his will, and their great advantage, Phil. i. 23.

There

SERMON V.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou loveds me before the foundation of the world.

I Entered last day upon the second thing I took up in the matter of Christ's prayer in this verse; which was the blessing Christ prays for to his people, in these words, That they also may be with me where I am. In opening of them, I did speak a little, 1. To the sorce of this word also. 2. What it is to be with Christ. 3. What to be with him where he is. And then raised two points of destrine. 1. That the persect blessed she for the church and people of God, is in being with Christ where he is. 2. That it is Christ's will that all his people should partake of, and possess this blessed seeds.

To the first of these I would speak, viz.

Doct. 1. That the perfect and compleat bleffedness of the church and people of God, stands in being with Christ where he is.

Thus Christ expresses it, John xiv. 3. That where I am, there ye may be also; and John xii. 26. If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be. The apostle sums up the blessedness of the church at the last day in this, 1 Thess. iv. 17. And so shall we ever be with the Lord. So also in 2 Cor. v. 6. 8, it is called being present with the Lord. And in Phil. i. 23, it is called being with Christ.

. There are four things I would premife concerning this matter, that may be of use to regulate your thoughts in hearing and studying the word of God about heaven.

1. This bleffedness is greatly in the dark to us. It is an enjoyment within the vail, as Heb. vi. 19. And it is necessarily so. The thing we desire to be informed in, is, What it is to be with Christ where he is? And here every thing is dark and deep. What Christ is, where he is, what it is to be with him, who can tell or know? When the beloved disciple, who lay in Christ's bosom on earth, is speaking of this blifs, in I John iii. 2. he faith, Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know, that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is. Why! Did never John fee him as he is? No. They that saw him in his humbled state, faw him under a vail, which his work rendered necessary for a time. And believers, that now fee him by faith, fee him not as he is; but only fee him as painted forth to us in and by the gofpel, as Gal. iii. 1. No man can know what it is to fee Christ as he is, till he do see him as he is; and that is not till he appears. To this belongs that word, 1 Cor. ii. 9 Eye hath not feen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. Heaven will be a bleffed furprise to all that possess it. It will be found to be far beyond all the most large desires, and the highest expectations, that ever were raised in their hearts. So will hell be to all the heirs of wrath, vally above all their fearful expectations, Heb. x. 27.; and the foretaltes of it, that are great in some wicked men: Pfal. xc. 11. Who knoweth the power of thine anger? even according to thy fear, fo is thy wrath. No man can over-fear God's wrath; and no man can over-rate the glory to come. In that matter, the Lord doth exceedingly abundant above all that we ask or think, Eph. iii. 20. 2. There

2. There is some light about this in the word, that helps us to know fomewhat of this blifs of being with Christ where he is. There are three special ends the Spirit of God defigns, in making any mention of the heavenly state and glory. 1. To dispurage this world, and all things either enjoyed or expected in it; and that both as to the worldling, as Pfal. xvii. 14, 15. where the portion of the ungodly in this life, and the bleffedness of the righteous in that to come, are expressed. So doth our Lord compare the two flates, to disparage the present, and to prefer the future, Luke xx. 34, 35, 36, and Matth. vi. 19, 20. And heaven is also spoke of, in comparison with, and preserve above the best state of Christians in this world, 2 Cor. v. 1, 2. and Phil. i. 23. 2. Heaven is spoke of in the word, to invite and allare men to feek it. It is the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. And all should press towards this mark, Phil. iii. 14. They should run fo as they may obtain it, 1 Cor. ix. 24. as being the one thing needful, and that good part, or portion, Luke x. 42. 3. The word speaks of heaven, and the glory to come, to encourage the people of God, and heirs of glory, under all their trials and troubles in this life. If it had not been for this, the Lord might have kept the glory to come, amongst many other fecret things that belong to kim, Deut. xxix 29. But he knew, that through much tribulation his people must enter into the kingdom of God, Acts xiv. 22.; and that the hope of glory was a proper and needful cordial to support their hearts in all their forrows. And be ye affored of it, that if ever ye be in the depths of diffres, (and who is fecured against them?), ye will find, that nothing short of the believing views and lively hope of glory, will be able to keep you from finking. I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living, taid David, Pfal. x wil. 15. And they have littleo f David's spirit, that think that David had no better land of the living in his eye there, than the land of Canaan, in which he lived as a stranger, though he were the King of it. So also faith Paul of himfelf, and of all believers in Christ, I Cor. xv. 29. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. For these ends the Lord speaks of heaven in the word; and not to gratify the curiofity of men, but rather to check it.

3. This I would premife, that this light that shines in the word about heaven, is only a light to be feen by the eye of faith. None but a believer can know rightly what the word speaks of heaven. Unbelievers are blind, and cannot fee far off, 2 Peter i, 5.; but the believer doth fee afar off, Heb. xi, 13. The word is light in itself, and shines in that light, as the fun is light in itself: fo that, if all the world were blind, the light of the fun would be no less in itself than it is; but it would be a light to none; for it is light to none, but to them that have eyes. Even fo it is with the light of the word. It thines brightly in itself, but the blind unbeliever feeth nothing of it. He is both blind and vailed, 2 Cor. iv. 3, 4.

4. Lastly, This I would premise, that the experience of believers in this life, is a great help to them in knowing what heaven is. Now, let us join all these four together: There is no full and perfect knowing what heaven is, till we be in it; There is no right knowing of heaven, but in the light of the word; That light in the word can only be taken up and perceived by the eye of faith; And this faith is much ilrengthened by experience. If believers themselves had not fomewhat of this experience and spiritual feeling, they would be much more in the dark about the glory to be enjoyed in heaven than they are.

On this head of spiritual experience, I shall not mention any great and extraordinary enjoyments which the Lord, in his grace and wildom, is pleafed in fome fpecial feafons to indulge some of his people with.

But I would only fpeak of some ordinary ones, which lie level with the experience of all true believers, and tree of great advantage to them, as in many other things, so specially to raise and keep up right and high thoughts of heaven. As

- high thoughts of heaven. As,

 1. The revelation of Jesus Christ. This works faith; faith, union with Christ; union works communion with him; communion is the believer's blifs. This foring of all, the revelation of Jefus Christ, is of two forts. 1. The revealing of Jesus Christ in and by the gospel. This all that have the gospel have. and many have no more; and they all perish that have no more. 2. The revealing of Christ to the heart, by the Spirit of Christ, trayed for, Eph. i. 17. This Paul got, Gal. i. 16. He revealed his Son in me. It is certain, that a man may read oft all the new teftament, and hear the most able ministers preach Christ all his days, and yet remain ignorant of Jesus Christ, and perish. The apostle in Eph. i. 17, 18. joineth the knowledge of Christ, and the knowledge of heaven, together. He prayeth, That the God of our Lord Jefes Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto them to Spirit of wijdom and revelation, in the knowleage of bun: the eyes of their understanding being enlightened: that they might know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritarce in the faints. Doth heaven fland in being wit! Christ cobere he is? How is it possible that that I an should know what heaven is, who knows remo Christ is? And none can know Christ, without evelution, Mat. xi. 27. and that by the grac ... the Spirit of Christ, working on the heart in and by the light of the word of Chriff.
 - 2. The experience of believing in Jesus Christ, and of living by faith on him, G2l. ii. 20. is a great help to the knowing of heaven. We know, that there is no faith of this fort in heaven. Faith is the traveller's, the runner's looking to Jesus, while the race is not yet finished, Heb. xii. 2. But the glorified above lock on, and behold him so as we cannot distinctly apprehend, 2 Cor. v. 7. Ior we walk by faith, not by fight.

fight. And they above walk by fight, not by faith. You may fay, that fince there is fuch a difference betwist the two flates, of faith and fight; how then can the experience of believing afford any light and help to know what heaven is? In answer to this, I would have you consider, 1. That faith, though opposed to fight, yet is it, in its exercise, a fort of spiritual seeing. So is it oft expressed, both with respect to the author of it, and the actings of it. See how it is wrought by its author, 2 Cor. iv. 6. For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hat's shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the face of Jesus Christ. And as it is wrought by light, faith acts in seeing. Thus the great old-testament believers are fail by their faith to have feen the promises (i. e. the bleffings promised) afar off, Heb. xi. 13. And it is a looking at things not feen, 2 Cor. iv. 18.; that is, things not prefently peffeffed, nor fully known. Faith is indeed described in Heb. xi. 1. to be the evidence of things not feen. And that description, (rather than descrition), as it doth determine what the nature of the objects of faith are, things not feen; to doth it plainly express, that the act of faith is drawn forth by an evidence of these unfeen things. And this evidence and demonstration is in the word of God, which the believer feeth, is persuaded by, and rests upon. "I know not, faith "he, all the great and good things that God hath " promifed; but I know God hath promifed them; "and though they be hidden in the promise, yet be-" cause they are secured thereby, I will embrace them " in the promife, until performance come." As it is expressed in ver. 13. These all died in faith (But how lived they? By faith also.), not having received the promises, (i. e. in their accomplishment; but the promifes themselves they had, for on them their faith stood); but having feen them afar off, and were perfuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth. Here is an account of old testament believers faith, that is enough to shame and humble most new testament believers. If we be helped at any time to fet our Amen of faith to the promife of eternal life, we think it is a good length. But alas! when do we find this feeing afar off, this persuasion, this embracing, this consessing and declaring plainly that we feek and look for this heavenly country? as in ver. 10, 14. 2. Consider, more particularly, faith in Jesus Christ. It always, (1.) Riseth from a discovery of him. (2.) Acts in an approzeh to him. Hence fo oft by himself faith is called coming to him, John vi. 37, 44, 45. (3.) And in that act intends and feeks eternal life in and by him. Confider the native and immediate effect of faith. is union with Christ. He draws to bring them near, they believe to be near to him. His drawing and their coming, makes it up. Is then the state of glory, in being with Christ where he is? Surely, then, such as are united to him by faith, and have him dwelling in their hearts by faith, Eph. iii. 17. and are living daily by faith on him, Gal. ii. 20. must have a great help to know better what it is to be with Christ where he is, than any unbeliever can.
3. There is the experience of communion with

3. There is the experience of communion with Christ, that is a farther and nearer help to believers to know what it is to be with Christ where he is. When Christ is revealed, he is believed on; when he is believed on, Christ and the believer are united; when the union is made, communion follows. This communion stands in these four.

1st, In a mutual interest of the persons united. Communion is that whereby Christ is ours, and we are his; as Cant. ii. 16. My beloved is mine, and I am bis. All that Christ is, is ours for our salvation; and all that is ours, is his for his glory and service: that as Christ hath all right to dispose of us, and of all that is ours, because we are his; so we have a right to partake of Christ, and of all that is his, for our salvation.

vation, because he is ours. Communion is in the improvement of this mutual right and interest. I would name some of the bleffed fruits of this interest.

- (1.) By virtue of this interest, Christ's righteonfness is a believer's for his perfect justification. The righteouspels is perfect, and so is the justification. The glorified faint was more perfectly justified, than Paul was in the day he was made a believer on Christ. If perfect righteoufness be the ground on which a believing finner is justified, (as the gospel plainly declares), the justification must be perfect also. If justification be fought by the law, and by works, the feeker of justification must still be doing, and can never have done; but is indeed undoing himfelf, dishonouring Christ, Gal. ii. 21. and frastrating the grace of God; and not only rendering his justification imperfect, (for the law made nothing perfect, Heb. vii. 19), but impossible, Rom. viii. 3. It is impossible for God's holy law to justify a sinner; and never was appointed for that end, but rather to condemn, Rom. iii. 19.; to stop sinners mouths, and to bind them over to the judgment of God; till the righteousness of God, without the law, come on them, to absolve them, Rom, iii. 20, 21, 22.
- (2.) By virtue of this interest in Christ, the believer receives the Spirit of Christ for his fanctification: not indeed for his perfect fanctification, but for the perfecting of fanctification. Christ's righteousness is never applied imperfectly; for to whomsoever it is imputed, it is made over wholly, and to all the intents and purposes it was wrought out, and brought in, by Christ for. But the Spirit of Christ is imparted to believers, in measure, and in various degrees, as he seeth good: Eph. iv. 7. Unto every one of us is grace given, according to the measure of the gift of Christ. By this potent principle, the Spirit of Christ, fauctification is even, at first, universal in the whole man, and compleat in parts: 2 Cor. v. 17. If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are past a-Vol. II. К t0.27 ;

way; beheld, all things are become new. He is a new man; is born again; hath a new nature, a new mind, a new understanding, a new conscience, a new heart and affections, and a new tife. But though all be new in the believer, there is nothing in him that is perfeelly new. He needs daily to pray, as Pfalm li. 10. Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right fpirit within me. Yet, notwithstanding of all the weakness of this new creature, the mixture and neighbourhood of the flesh, its contrary, and of all oppoficin it meets with from it, and of the low thate it is oft brought into by the captivating power of fin; yet doth the power of Christ's Spirit not only preserve the holy seed in the heart, but doth raise it up again, and will certainly perfect it. There was never a sav-ing work of Christ wrought in the heart of a poor sinner, that Christ ever less to be matter of triumph to the Jevil. Christ is a wife builder: when he lays the foundation, he knows what the perfecting of it will cost him, is provided with it, and resolved to lay it cut, and to finish his work: Phil. i. 6. Being confident of this very thing, that he which bath begun a good work in you, will perform (or finish) it until the day of Jesus Christ.

(3) By virtue of this interest in Christ, believers

(3) By virtue of this interest in Christ, believers have all Christ's sulness for their supply. He is all in all to them, Col. iii. 11. It pleased the Father, that in him should all fulness dwell, Col. i. 19. And surely this lodging of all fulness should please, and doth highly please all believers: John i. 16. And of (or out of) his sulness have all we received, and grace for grace. Eph. iv. 7. Unto every one of us is given grace excerding to the measure of the gift of Christ. Whence ha! Paul and John all their grace? Out of Christ's fulness. Whence was it that they received so much grace be, and others? It was according to the measure of the cift of Christ. But the stock and treasure is common to all believers. They are partakers of Christ, Heb. iii. 14. and called to the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord, I Cor. i. 9. The apostle in Col. ii. 8, 9, 10. giveth a needful warning, Beware left any man spoil you through philosophy and vain deceit. But how shall we know and differn the fnare? It is after the tradition of men, after the rudiments (or elements, or principles) of the world, and not after Christ. His argument to inforce this warning, is deep and flrong. verse 9. For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the godhead bodily. It dwelleth really, substantially, in this one man, Jesus Christ. So that they do deceive you, that direct you to any for supply but to him. If ye would be filled with all the fulness of God, as Eph. iii. 19. you must feek it, and find it in him, in whom all the fulness of the godhead dwelleth bodily. And this shall not be in vain: And ye are complete in him, verse 10. Never did, never could a believer use this fulness suitably to all its worth in itself, and to the gracious right he hath to use it.

But what is there in believers that Christ hath communion with? All good is in him, and this is the believers all; and therefore it is easy to understand what their communion with Christ is, and what his communications to them are. He clothes and covers them with his righteousness, sanctifies them by his Spirit, and supplies them our of his fulness. But is there any thing in his people that Christ hath communion with? I answer, Yes, there is; and that it is all in them, that either is confiftent with their union with him, or that flows from that union.

(1.) Of the first force is all the bad that is remaining in them. For as the grace of union with, and relation to Christ, was not suspended and delayed till they were faultless; so this grace when dispensed, doth not presently remove faultiness, as it will when this union and communion is perfect, which Christ here prays for. Christ's body is made up of finful members; and they are, even while fin and infirmity cleaves to them, united to a finless, glorious head. And it is the great glory of his grace, that he takes fuch members into K 2

union with himself, and maintains that union by communion with them as their need requires, till the bleffed day comes that is here prayed for, when this umove fault and infirmity in his people. To deny that Christ hath any interest, and concern, and work about what is bad in his people, is to deny our fellowthip with him, in those things wherein we are most needy of it, and most fensibly benefited by it: for our own finfulness and infirmity is better known to us, and fensed by us, than his righteousuess and perfect tulness: neither is the latter so well known to us, as by its gracious application to our relief under the former. So our sinfulness (I mean, that that remains in believers, even in the best of them) serves for magnifying his forgiving grace. He that bids us forgive our brother that sumeth against us, not only seven times, but seventy times seven, Matth. xviii. 21, 22. doth forgive his people many more times, and many firs, even all of them, Pfalm ciii. 3.; all our trespasses, Col. ii. 13. And how bleffed is that communion, when the blood of fprinkling speaks peace and pardon to a troubled conscience! Our corruptions and spiritual diseases are the subjects of Chill's care. And his care about them, is to cure them, and to keep his people from dying under them. The greatest hand is used by tender parents, about their fick and wounded children. That man never knew the guilt of fin rightly, that thinks that any thing less or else than the blood of the Son of God can cleanse from it, I John i. 7. And that man never faw the corruption and plague of his heart rightly, that is not perfuaded, that only the great physician, Christ, can cure it. And no man can employ him rightly for the one, and not for both. And they do but deceive themselves in their religion, whose main heart-exercise is not with Christ for both. Alas! there are many disquieted consciences, and many defiled hearts and lives, in many that are called Christians; and some of them are oft complaining, and fometimes finking in their complainings; and that because they do not believe, and lay this truth to heart, that the cleanfing and purging the confcience from the guilt of fin, and the purifying of the heart and life from the dominion of fin, are Christ's proper works. The first he doth by the sprinkling of his blood, the other by the power of his Spirit, I Cor. vi. 11. Tit. iii. 4 .--- 7. And all that use any other means for these ends, not only labour in vain, but fin greatly against God, who hath made Christ unto us wisdom, and rightecusness, and sanctification, and redemption; that no sless should given in his presence; and that he that glorieth, might glory in the Lord, 1 Cor. i. 29, 30, 31.

Not only are our infirmities, finfulness, and diseases, under the gracious care and cure of our Lord Jefus Christ; but our persons, our souls, our bodies, and all our lots and concerns, are at his disposal, to his glory and fervice. And every believer, in every diftinct acting of faith, doth yield up himfelf, and all he is and hath, unto Christ's dominion. " Grant me "thy falvation according to thy promife, and guide " me in the way according to thy will:" Pfal. cxix.

94. I am thine, fave thou me.

(2.) Christ hath communion with his own good in them. All that is in us that is our own, is bad: and all that is good in us, is of his giving and working. All our graces, are his fruits, Cant. iv. 16. and v. r. They are all of Christ's planting, watering, and ripening: and he feeds on them as his pleafant fruits. All the spiritual services and duties that believers perform, are all of them fruit growing from their abiding in the vine, Christ, John xv. 4, 5. and are pleasing to him. And furely when it is so, the believer finds fweet profit by it: Rev. iii. 20. I will fup with him, and he with me. It is easy to conceive how we may feast with him; for he hath all. But how can he feast with us, who are nothing, and have nothing? He doth it two ways. I. He feasts with his people on his own store of grace he brings with him. As David skid, t Chron. xxix. 14. Of thine own have we given thee; so doth Christ say, "It is of mine own " I feast with thee, O believer. All thy faith, love, "repentance, fervice, are my gifts, my grace, that I bring with me, and am delighted in." 2. Christ may be faid to feast with his people, in and by that pleasure he hath, not only to give, but to see them feed on what he brings with him. Would you feast Jesus Christ, believers? Feed on him with holy hunger. Is a kind mother delighted with her hungry babe's sucking at her breasts? Is it not as a feast to a charitable man, to fee a person eat heartily of the food he gives him? Much more is it a feast to our Lord, to fee flarving finners feeding on the bread of life, and drinking of the water of life? Hear his voice, Cant. v. 1. I am come into my garden, my fifter, my spouse; I have gathered my myrrh with my spice, I have eaten my honey comb with my honey, I have drunk my wine with my milk: eat, O friends, drink, yea, drink abundantly, O beloved. "It is all mine, all of my prepar-"ing; use it freely, feed plentifully; you are high"ly welcome." But, alas! most Christians may give the answer that follows, ver. 2. I fleep, but my beart waketh. Christ's gracious offers and invitations are heard by us, as betwixt fleeping and waking: and fo is it feen in the forry entertainment we give them, and hence follows the poor life that many of us lead.

So much for the first thing in communion, mutual intereft.

2d/y, This communion hath converse in it. It stands, not only in the mutual interest that each hath in another, but also in converse one with another. This is what the apostle hath in a John i. 3. where we have two cummunions or fellowships spoke of; the fellowship of Christians with one another, and the fellowship that Christians have with the Father and Son: and that this second fellowship is mutual as hinted in ver. 7. If we walk in the light, as he is in the light, light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jefus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin. They then that know best by experience, what it is to be with Christ on earth, in walking with him and in him, will know best what it is to be with him where he is. The greatest enjoyments of Christ here, are the best helps to conceive of what is to be received in heaven.

adly, This converse breeds likeness to Christ. The nearer a man is to Christ, the more converse he hatti with him; the more like he grows to Christ. Compare 2 Cor. iii. 18. with I John iii. 2. Paul speaks of Christians in this life, John of the same persons in the next life; and both speak of likeness to Christ, and as wrought the fame way, by feeing and beholding of his glory. Perfect likenels to Christ, flows from a perfect beholding of his glory; and a begun likeness to him, from a begun beholding of his glory by faith. The apostle in 2 Cor. iii. 7. speaks of the glory of the countenance of Mofes, which was fuch, that the children of Ifrael could not steelfastly behold his face, which glory was to be done away. In this, the apostle respects that passage in Exod. xxxiv. 29 .--- 35. It is this, that Mofes, returning from the mount, after his fecond forty days about there, had, by his long converse with God, a beam of heavenly glory impressed on his face. Whether it continued all his life after, or not, the word is filent about it; and therefore we should not be positive. But this may fafely be drawn from it, that the more near and continued that our converse with Christ on earth be, the more heavenly likeness to Christ is impressed on the foul. Hath not this been known to many, that when they had been long struggling and striving with, and bewailing of a body of death, and of strong corruptions and distempers, that rendered them unlike to Christ, and lothsome in their own eyes; if he be pleafed (as oft he doth) to draw near to them, and to cause them to approach to him, as Plal, lxv. 4. how fuddenly fuddenly and how sweetly is likeness to Christ wrought in the soul! True nearness to Christ, and converse with him, bath always this essect. Communion with Christ, if real, is always the life of grace, and the bane of corruption. And let all examine and judge their enjoyments, by this sure and plain test. Have you any thing that you call communion with Christ? Doth it not, in some measure, mortify your lusts, and enliven the grace of God in you? It it do not work both in you, it is not of the right fort.

4thly, This converse with Christ, and this likeness to him, breeds love and delight. It is not possible it should be otherwise. So great mercies in themselves, so great blessings to us, and so much of God's love to us, thining in the giving of them, must raise love and delight. This is one of the fruits of communion with Christ; Cant. ii. 3. I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste.

The tree of life, Jesus Christ, hath a refreshing shade to the weary scorched traveller; and he hath fruit for the hungry soul. Sit down under his shadow, eat of his fruit, and you must find it sweet to your taste. O taste and see that the Lord is good, Psal. xxxiv. 8. If so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious, 1 Pet. ii. 3. See how the same apostle speaks of the communion that believers have with Christ, 1 Pet. i. 8, 9. Whem having not seen, ye love; in whom though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye resoice with joy unspeakable, and full of glory.

So that ye may perceive, that what the Lord is pleased to assort to his people here, in communion with Christ, gives a great help to believers to know better, what it is to be with Christ where he is, than any unbeliever can; and that they who have the greatest experience of these things, have an advantage in this matter beyond ordinary believers.

So much of these four things that I thought sit to premise. That the glory of the heavenly state is greatly

greatly in the dark to Christians while on earth; That the only light wherein any thing of it can be known, is the light of the word; That this light of the word is light only to the eye of faith; and, lastly, That faith is helped in this discovery, by experience.

It now follows, to speak unto this that heaven stands in, in being with Christ where he is. And this

I would give in these four things.

1. It stands in perfect immediate presence with Christ. All the presence that Christ affords, and his people now enjoy here, is, in regard of this, but absence from the Lord: 2 Cor. v. 6. 8. Knowing that whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord. We are confident, I fry, and witting rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord. I am fure, that there are few Christians, but think, that if they did but enjoy that of Christ that Paul did often, they would think it a great prefence. But Paul counts, that as long as he dwelt in the body, he was but absent from the Lord. Perfect prefence is, when all on both fides is present; all of Christ, and all of the Christian. But now all of Christ is not with us; and all of us is not with him. On his part, we have Christ's Spirit, word, and grace. On our part, there is prefent with him, our hearts, and the workings of our faith, and love, and desire, towards him. But this presence is imperfect, and mixed with much distance and absence. And this fort of presence with Christ, is but mediate. There are some midses, glasses, and helps, which, though useful now, will be useless one day, 1 Cor. xiii. 10, 11, 12. Yet this impersed presence, and mediate, is more excellent in itself, and more valued by every one that hath talled it, than the utmost that this world, and the things of it, can give to a worldling, Pfal. iv. 6, 9.

2. This being with Christ where he is, hath in it perfect and full fruition and enjoyment of Christ. Vol. II. And

And here, words and thoughts thrink far below the greatness of this matter. What it is to enjoy Christ. who can tell? Believers are partakers of Christ, are in him, and he in them. Faith, when ftrong, grafps at him, and cleaves to him. Love, when flaming, embraces him straitly; bolds him fast, and will not let him go, Cant. iii. 4. When Christ's love to us burns and thines, and our love to him is kindled thereby, how fweet is this enjoyment? But all this is far thort of what shall be enjoyed, when we shall be with him cobere be is. The difference is far greater betwist these two, than there is betwist the loving husband and the beloved wife, entertaining correspondence tiv letters to one unother, in different and far diffant countries. Thereby they communicate their heart, and love, and mind, to one another. And this is vely comfortable; especially when this intercourse may be speedy, and in an inflant, as it is betwixt Christ and believers: Ifa. Lav. 24. And it fball come to tais, (and bleffed be he that this often comes to pass), that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will bear. There is no length of time required to carry the believer's mind to Christ in beaven; and as speedily can he send his mind to them again. But this is far short of the comfort of seeing face to face.

3. This prefence, this enjoyment, is in the best flate and place. It is robere he is. And furely our Lord is well lodged above. All the prefence we have with, and enjoyment we have of Christ, is not where be is, but where we are. And here we are on the daughill of this earth; having fin cleaving to us to provoke him, and milery on us to grieve us. Hence it is both amazing grace in him to grant any thing of his presence and fellowship to us; and hence all three we enjoy of it, is attended with manifold imperfections, interarable from our flate while we are where we are, and not to be removed from us till we are rulere be is.

4. This is to be for ever. The greatest blessing hath the longest duration; if duration were a proper word to be used of eternity, which is justly called a perpetual now. Christ's presence now where we are, is a choice blessing. Believers would fain have ir, when they are without it; and would fain have more of it, when they have a little of it; and when they have much of it, they would fain keep it. But they cannot always have his presence when they would; nor can they always keep it, when they have got it. It may please him to awake, and leave them, Cant. iii. 5. and viii. 4. even when they are best pleased with his company. And even then he is our beloved, and his love to us the fame, when standing behind our wall, when looking forth at the window, showing himfelf (or flourishing) through the lattice; as when his left hand is under our head, and his right hand doth embrace us, Cant. ii. 6, 9. Christ's sweetest visits to his people where they are, are oft imbittered (to fay fo) with the thoughts and fears of his withdrawing. "Now, faith the believer, I have a clear sky; but "how foon may the weather change, and clouds re-" turn again!" But in the state of glory above, when we shall be with him where he is, no fears, no ground, or suspicion of any such thing, shall ever enter into the heart of any of the glorified. The flate of grace is a fure state, of God's making. No vessel of grace and mercy shall ever be emptied of it. But it is not a fure state to every believer's thinking; for fears of miscarrying may be, where no real danger is. But the state of glory is not only sure and unchangeable, as it is of God's gracious making, but it is so as to every glorified person's thinking. No pillars in the upper house can shake, Rev. iii. 12. Pillars in the lower house may shake, but never are removed. But in heaven, there is no danger, no fear, nor any cause of either, to eternity. We shall be ever with the Lord, i Theff. iv. 17.

APPLICATION. 1. See how great Christ's interest is in our falvation; how justly he is called our Saviour. He hath bought and redeemed the kingdom for the heirs, and the heirs for the kingdom. He as flain is made the way to it, Heb. x. 19, 20. He is the guide to heaven, and captain of our falvation, Heb. ii. 10. He wils it to them in his testament, Luke xxii. 29.; welcomes them to beaven, when he calls them by death, Acts vii. 59.; and he, as fully enjoyed, is heaven itself.

2. Wonder not at this, that few are saved. From his dostrine you may fee the causes thereof. We find Christ teaching this doctrine of the fewness of the faved, in Matth. xix. 23. 26. Mark x. 23.---27. and Luke xviii. 24.---27. It is thrice recorded, and on the fame occasion, and with the same sense of it, in his disciples. The occasion of Christ's teaching it, was the great zeal of a young rich man, in asking of cur Lord the way to heaven, and his fudden recoiling when Christ touched his idol. On this occasion Christ teacheth, How hardly shall they that have riches, enter into the kingdom of God! His disciples were assonished at his words. But Jefus anjwereth again, and faith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches, to enter into the kingdom of God! Mark x. 23, 24. Upon Christ's repeating and explaining his words, it is faid, ver. 26. And they were aftonished out of measure, saying among themselves, Who then can be faved? Why were they so astonished, and exceedingly amazed? as it is faid in Matth. xix. 25. Were there not many poor people, that had no riches, nor any temptation to trust in them, (and such the difciples themselves were), who might be faved? Their amazement feems to have its rife from this, that if one snare, as that of riches, did so endanger a man's falvation, what greater danger were all men exposed to, by manifold temptations, and diforders of their erts? But as to the doctrine before us, that being ... Christ where he is, is heaven, I may justly confirm from it what Christ taught, that few shall be faved. For few know what it is, nor the way to it; and indeed no natural man can know what they and indeed no natural man can know what they are. When our Lord is again preaching this doctrine, in that noted place, Matth. vii. 13, 14. he faith, Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate, and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. According to the frame of mens spirits, they frame thoughts of heaven, and of the way to it. The Turks paradife is brutish; the Popish paradife is little better. The natural philosophers conceptions of heaven are more manly, though carnal. Only a true Christian can have a right thought of heaven; because he knows Jefus Chrift, and communion with him. Chrift himself is the way to heaven, as he is a slain Redeemer; and Christ himself is heaven itself, as he is a glorified, enjoyed Redeemer. All this is unintelligible and incredible to every natural man. Can ever that man count it bleffedness to be with Christ above, who counts it a piece of mifery to be in his company on earth? And is it possible that such can be faved, that neither know what heaven is, nor the way to it, and do diflike and hate both the way and the end, as revealed in the word, and as impressed on the hearts of all the godly in all ages?

3. Lastly, Would you secure heaven to yourselves?

See to get into Christ by faith; seek acquaintance with him, press after communion with him. Let all your thoughts of heaven, all your care to secure your possessing of it, and all your exercise in pressing towards it, let all center in this one person, Jesus Christ. Alas! how many poor Christians are there, who go aukwardly to work about salvation? how poorly they sare? how forrowfully they live? and how many of them die in darkness? and all because they mind not

Christ

Christ rightly, as the way, the truth, and the life! They do attend on all the ordinances of the gospel; they would fain be in heaven; they often muse and think on it; and wonder at the greatness of the prize; and fometimes have fome good hope, through grace, that they shall possess it. But with many these are but like the morning-cloud and the early dew; and their doubts and darkness return upon them; because they do not remember Jesus Christ, and live by faith on him, as the only way to heaven, and as he enjoyed, is the Christians heaven, and as he brings all the fons to glory. You need no more to fecure your right to eternal life, than to be possessed of Christ by faith; and you need no better eternal life, than to be with Christ where he is. He himself describes it by this, that they may be with me where I am. And furely Christ best knows what heaven is; since he bought it, prepared it, and possessed it, for his people. And he knows the way to it; for he is both the way and the guide to it. Hear his voice, therefore, and follow him, and he will give you eternal life; and ye shall never perish, neither Shall any man (or devil, or thing) pluck you out of his band, John x. 27, 28, 29, Rom. Viii. 25,--- 29.

SERMON VI.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

HERE are four marvellous things about falvation, that should be often thought on by us.

1. That there is so high a Saviour as Christ is, and so great a salvation as heaven is, provided for salten man. There was no such provision made for standing Adam, to keep him from falling; no such provision for the sallen angels, to restore them to their first estate. But for sallen man this provision is made; not for all, but for a numerous remnant, according to the el-ction of grace; and that to bring them to a far better essate than that Adam sell from by sin.

2. That the knowledge of this Saviour, and of this falvariou, is kept from multitudes as needy thereof as any that have it. The Pagans, Indians in the eaft and weif, are as needy of the gofpel as you, and no more unworthy and undeferving than you; yet you have gospel-light, and they live and perish in gross carkness. This is only from his fovereign pleasure, as our Lord owns it, Luke x. 21. And that fovereignty thines, and is by us to be owned equally, both in dispensing and with-holding the outward means of falvation, and also in dispensing and with-holding the inward effectual grace, and blessing of the means.

3. It is marvellous, (though both very finful and usual), that this Saviour and his falvation are so greatly despited, by the most part of them who need him and it extremely, and have the gospel-offer made daily to them. Alas! few mind him, and few care for the great falvation he brings with him, and offers so freely to men. No man under the gospel miscarries eternally, no man or woman perisheth, without Jesus Christ, but such as do not in heart care for him and his falvation. And justly do they deserve to perish, and dreadfully shall their perdition be.

4. It is marvellous, that this bleffed Saviour and his great falvation are yet given to a multitude of refusers. All by nature are unworthy, many reject the offer often; yet grace prevails at last on some of them. and makes them willing. There are many in the world (but they were thought on by him before the world was made) from whom Christ will take no refusal, though they give him many; as Jer. xxii. 21. I spake unto thee in thy prosperity, but thou saids, I will not bear: this bath been thy manner from thy youth, that thou obeyedst not my voice. Yet to many fuch there is a time of love fixed; and when it comes, they are spoken for, spoken to, dealt with, and prevailed upon. I cannot fay, but they that are early brought to Christ, have some special advantages, both in their being prevented from gross sins, and sad wanderings, and in the opportunities of ferving Christ by his grace given them. But I am fure, that the longer any fland out in rebellion against Christ, when they are fubdued, they should most of all men admire the grace of their conqueror. Paul, though called when a young man, yet counts that Jesus Christ did shew forth in him all long-suffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting, 1 Tim. i, 16. Yet, doubtless, Christ hath drawn forth more long-fuffering to many finners, than he did on Paul in his unregeneracy.

Of this Saviour and of his falvation I have been speaking from this part of this excellent prayer. I have been often commending this chapter to you; and though I hope none are so feolish as to think that when they have got this chapter by heart, (and I know not any chapter in God's word more worthy of a room in the heart and memory, than this), they may make a prayer of it, as of one of David's pfalms; yet I am fure we may pray upon it; for though many of the words in it be only fit to be uttered in prayer by the bleffed mouth that first spoke them; yet all of them may be food for the faith of every believer.

I have spoke of the manner of this prayer; Father,

I will.

I have also entered upon the matter of it; and have taken up four things therein. 1. The description of those he prays for: Those whom thou hast given me. None but Christ can describe those they pray for, this way. He only had the book of life before him in prayer. It is a great mercy, if we get spiritual light to read our own name in that book; but it is not allowed us, either to defire or expect to read any other name therein, but our own. 2. The bleffing thar Christ prays for to such persons. And it is expressed thus, That they may be with me where I am. Whence I did draw two points of doctrine.

Ors. 1. That the perfect blessedness of the people of God, stands in being with Christ where he is. On this

I spoke last day.

OBS. 2. It is Christ's will to have his people posses-fed of this blifs of being with him where he is.

Thus faith our Lord, Father, I will that they whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am. Thus he faith of all them, without distinction or exception. This prayer is univerfal, for his whole body of the elect; and particular, for every individual member of that body. As they cannot be perfectly happy, till they be with him where he is, (and that they all know); fo our Lord gets not all his will and mind about them, till they are thus with him. And this we should believe. The meaning of this will of Christ about his people's blifs, is in thefe. 1. It is our Lord's heart's defire.

defire. 2. It is his delight to have them with him. 3. It is his fixed purpose and resolution. His heart is fixed in this, that he will have them all with him. 4. It is his will declared to his Father, in such a manner and feafon, and with fuch circumstances, as add great weight to it. 5. It is his will revealed unto us in his written word; and therefore is of great use to believe and rejoice in it. But who can tell (even when Christ hath told us it) what this his will is? The will of the Son of God, the will of a dying Redeemer, the will of a man personally united to the Son of God; how far doth it exceed all our thoughts?

In handling of this point, I would,

1. Prove that it is Christ's will.

2. Shew why it is fe. And then,

3. Apply it.

I. That it is Christ's will to have his people with him where he is, appears from these two. 1. The price he paid for them; and, 2. The pains he takes on them.

1. The great and dear price he paid for them. The price was of infinite value, and the purchase was great. He bought the heirs for the inheritance, and the inheritance for the heirs. Christ in redeeming had respect unto both; and himself, as slaw, was the price for both. He bought us and our forfeited inheritance, as he oft declares. And this doth prove, that it is his will and mind that they should posses it. What wife or houest man is at cost to purchase that for another that he will not let him poffets? When our Lord laid down his life, yea staked down his crown and glory, and bore fo much diffress, and all for the, that he might at last have all his people with him retere be is; fure we must conclude, that Christ's heart and mind was greatly fet upon it. The grand view of the good-will of Christ to the faving his people, and having them in beaven, is to be had on his cross.

cross. The death of the Saviour proclaims his good-will to fave. He knew he must fave us by dying, and we know that we are faved by his death. Therefore he had a desire and delight to die for his people. It pleased the Lord to bruise him, Isa. liii. 10; and Christ was pleased to be bruised, Heb. x. 5,---10.

2. The second proof is: The great pains that Christ

2. The fecond proof is: The great pains that Christ takes on his people to bring them to heaven, proves that his heart is fet on their possessing of it. On this proof I would infift in a few particulars.

1/2, Christ draws them to himself whom he mind? to fave. By nature they are far off from Christ, and from faivation. By his grace they are brought near, Eph. ii. 13. Christ and salvation are inseparable. When Christ entered into Zaccheus's heart by faith, then falvation came into his house, Luke xix. 9, 10. Christ's drawing of a sinner, is his working of faith; and the finner's believing on Christ, is his coming to Christ. Thus the nearness is obtained. Christ is the author and finisher of faith, Heb. xii. 2. But this way of working of faith is a great mystery, John id. 8. Believers themselves find their own faith a great myftery to themselves. They often know better the fruits and effects of their feith, than they know the actings of it. And again, they may know better what they do, and what way their hearts ast towards Christ, when they believe, than they know what Christ was doing with them, when he was working faith in them, and making them believers. For usually Christ's work in drawing men to himself, is so terrible, that they cannot think that any good is meant to them. Little did Paul know what Christ meant by his first visit and words to him, Acts ix. 3,---9.; but well knew he afterwards, Gal. i. 15, 16. and oft did he tell it, Acts xxii, and xxvi. The fum of all he faid was this: "I was a bitter enemy to Jesus Christ; yet he was es pleased to make me a believer on him, and called " the to preach him, and faith in him, to the perish-"ing world." When Christ is drawing his chosen by the cords of love, (as Hofea xi. 4.), usually they are jealous that these cords of love are but the gins of an enemy. How is it possible that the charge of fin on the conscience, the discovery of the abominations in the man's heart, and the binding of him over to the righteous judgment of God, (Rom. iii. 19.), can be looked on as gracious methods of Christ for drawing men to him? Yet afterwards they know, that all this was done in love, and for their good. Of all the fins the Lord's people are guilty of, this is the greatest, and should be deeply repented of, even the rebellion against, and resistance they made to the faving grace and drawing arm of Jefus Christ. That we walk after the imagination of our own hearts, that we love to wander, that we live in fin, and love and commit it; all these things are proper and natural to finners; fo that tho' all should abhor it, yet none should wonder at it. But when Christ is drawing perishing sinners to himself, that he may fave them; when he is plucking them out of the fire that will burn them, and out of the water that will drown them; then for men to oppose and resist him, (as all do till his grace make them willing), hath fomewhat in it beyond the common finfulness of men: yea it is a fin beyond the possibility of the devil, the father of fin and of finners; for the grace of God was never in the offer of the fallen angels, nor did it ever make any affault upon them. Yea the reprobates, though many of them finfully refift the general drawing of Christ by the gospel, and his Spirit's dealing with them, as in Acts vii. 51. Te sliff-necked, and uncircumcifed in heart and ears, ye de always resist the Holy Ghost: as your fathers did, so do ye; by which they draw on dreadful guilt, and destruction, and are made inexcufable; as our Lord tells them, John xv. 22, 24. If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had fin: but now they have no cloke for their sin, viz. their sin of unbelief: yet they never result the faving arm and design of Christ to save them; as many of the elect do for a while, till the Lord's Lord's day of power come, which always prevails over all refistance. For, sure, another fort of grace was applied unto blaspheming Saul, than on the traitor Judas; and on Peter stumbling, than on Judas falling. Herein Christ abundantly proves his mind and goodwill to fave his people, in his drawing them to himfelf, that he may fave them. So faith he in John xii. 32. And 1, If I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me. And this he faid in one of his faddest hours, as ver. 27, 28. The devil, and wicked world, (that lieth in his arms, as in t John v. 19. The whole world lieth in wickedness, or or in that wicked one), they thought, that if they could once get rid of Christ, and slay him, that they should never more be troubled with Christ, nor with believers on him. But they were utterly disappointed: and this Christ foretels; and it was bleffedly fulfilled, and will be till his fecond coming. It is as if he had faid, "They def-" pife the virtue and grace of a living Saviour; and " think if they had flain him, there would be an end " of him and of his interest on earth. But when "they have done what they would, they shall find "themselves farther from their purpose; for I will put forth the virtue of my death, in drawing mul-"titudes unto me." And it is not unlike, but that within a few weeks after his death, and within a few days after his ascension, there was a greater multitude of sinners drawn to Christ by faith, than were in all the few years he lived and preached on the earth.

So much for this first proof of Christ's will and mind to fave his people, from his drawing them unto himself, or his working faith on him in them.

2dly, Another proof of this is from his making them meet to possesses, Col. i. 12. Take heed in this matter. No man is meet for Christ till he be in him. But he that is in Christ, is meet for heaven; and none shall possess it, but he that is made meet for it; and that is a divine work. Christ is meet for sinners, to save them. See how meet he is made of God, i Cor. i. 30. He is made all we want for falvation. Christ had no work in the world but for finners. And none will employ Christ in his faving calling and office, but convinced and fenfible finners. None but such can see their need of Christ; and such as fee no need of Christ, can never employ him by faith: for believing is nothing but a needy lost finner's trusting this able Saviour with his falvation. Christ came to feek and to fave that which was lost, Luke xix. 10. And the loft man comes to, and feeks falvation from Christ, and gets it. If a man disown his own name, a finner, he therein difowns Christ's name, a Saviour of finners. If men pretend to use Christ as a Physician, and subscribe not their true name to their petitions, a lost, fick sinner, bleeding to death by the sting of sin and of the law, he will have nothing to do with them. He will fay to them, "I came to fave finners; but you are whole and righ-"teous folks, and think you can fave yourfelves.

"It is but a little that alls you, and you think you " can foon cure it. But if you try your own art, you " perish; and your wound is deadly, and no balm can heal it but mine." Now, no man is meet for Christ, till he gets Christ. But a man must be made meet for heaven, before he gets it. No man can get this meetnefs but by Christ; and Christ's working of this meetness, is the proof I give of Christ's mind to give glory to them in whom he works it.

A little on this, What this meetness for heaven is; wherein it flands; and how Christ works it in his people.

This meetness to possess heaven, is twofold; a meetness as to the state of the person; and a meetness as to his nature and frame, that is to be the possessor of heaven. And the apostle in that scripture named, Col. i. 12, 13, 14 hints at both plainly enough.

(1.) Meetness in the flate of the person for posselfing of heaven, flands in two things. He must be re-

Conciled

conciled to the Lord of this good land of heaven, and he must be related to this inheritance. Both come by Jefus Chrift. Enemies and frrangers are unmeet to possels it; and none such shall, to eternity. Yet all men by nature are both enemies to God, and unrelated to heaven. But Christ changeth the state of them whom he minds to fave, and thus maketh them meet to possess the inheritance. They are made friends, and reconciled to God, by the grace of justification; they are made children and heirs, and to related to the inheritance, by the grace of adoption. And both are by Jefus Christ; as in Rom. v. 8, 9, 10. and viii. 14, 17. Gal. iii. 26. and iv. 5, 6. Can an enemy expect an inheritance from his enemy? And this is the natural state that God and man stand in to one another. Can a stranger expect an inheritance in a strange country, where he hath no friend nor relation to leave him any thing, and when the man is fo poor that he can purchase nothing? The apostle ia Eph ii. 12. tells them what they were by nature, and what they should remember still: That at that time ye were without Christ; and what followed on it? They were aliens from the commonwealth of Ifrael, and strangers from the covenant of promise, (Ifrael's peculiar right, Rom. ix. 4. Who are Ifraelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the fervice of Goi, and the promises), having no hope, and without Ged in the world. How came the bleffed change from this woful state? But now in Christ Josus, ye who were some-times far off, are made night by the blood of Christ, ver. 13. Now therefore we are no more strangers and for-eigners; but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the bou/kold of God, ver. 19. So that all that pretend to the hope of heaven, should search well, and make out that they have a right to it, and friends there. And the great friend in heaven is Jefus Christ; who bought the kingdom dearly, and conveys the right unto it freely, to all that believe on him.

(2.) There is a meetness for heaven in the nature and frame of the heart of the heir of it. This meetness is necessary: Heb. xii. 14. Without boliness no man shall see the Lord. And it is wrought by Jesus Christ in the grace of fanctification. Thus the apostle discourseth plainly in 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10, 11.; where he expresty shews the equal necessity of justification and of fanctification, unto the inheriting of the kingdom of Christ, and of God, and of the interest that Christ hath in giving them both. It is very remarkable in Rom. viii. 30. one of the deepest, and yet one of the clearest scriptures (deepest for matter, and clearest for faith) about God's method of falvation: Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified; and whom he justified, them he also glorified. It seems to some to be strange, that there is no mention in it of functification. Only there is predestination, calling, justification, and glory. The obvious reason of this is, that fanctification is included in glory. It is not fo much the way to glory, as it is a piece, and part, and beginning of it. Now, this great work of Christ in fanctifying his people, is feen in all his work on them, and way with them, from their regeneration, until their welcome to heaven. About this meetness for glory by fanctification, thefe three things are well known. 1. That they that fludy functification the right way most diligently, do attain most of it. The only way is by faith in Christ Jesus, Acts xxvi. 18. 2. That they that attain most of it, think least of their attainments. They fee fo much evil remaining in them, as Rom. vii. and fo much good before them, Phil. iii. 12, 13, 14. that they still press forward for more fanctification. If any man do think himfelf to be very holy, any Christian may not only justly queftion the truth of that pretence, but also his having any holiness at all. For true gospel-holiness is a frame of heart and foul wrought by the Spirit of Christ, that works in believers a holy hatred of all fin; a lothing lothing of himself in whom so much of it still remains; and a pressing after that persection in holiness, which only can be attained when he is where Christ is. 3. That all fensible and wife believers, in their building their faith and hope of possessing glory, and in their believing and pleadings with God for that possession, do lay far greater (yea another fort of) weight on what Christ hath done for them, and hath promised to them, than on that fmall begun holinefs he hath wrought in them; though that also be to be thankfully owned, tenderly cherished, and used as food to their faith.

So much for this fecond proof, That Christ proves his mind to have his people with him where he is, when he not only draws them to himfelf when they are on the earth, but makes them meet to be with him in heaven. All he hath done for his people when he was in this world, is applied to them for the change of their state; and all he doth in them by his Spirit, is for the change of their frame. And thus by both he makes them meet for heaven.

3dly, Another proof of Christ's will to have his people with him where he is, is, That he by his Spirit, works in the hearts of his people, defires, faith, and hopes of this blifs. This is both a proof that they thall possess it, and that Christ hath a mind that they should have it. Christ raiseth no desires, raiseth no faith and hope of that which he bath no mind to give. So the apossile argues, 2 Cor. x. 1.---5. IVe know what heaven is, ver. 1. IVe groan earnessly, ver. 2. We groan, as being burthened, ver. 4. We are confident always in these groanings, ver. 6. 8. The reason of all is in ver. 5. Now he that hath wrought us for the felf-same thing, is God; who hath a'so given unto us the earnest of the Spirit. So doth the apossle reason in Heb. xi. 16, speaking of the ancient believers before the law: But now they defire a better country, that is, an heavenly; (and this defire they declared plainly, ver. 14. by word and deed);
Vol. II. N chere-

wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God : for he hath prepared for them a city, i. e. heaven. Their desiring of it is not the cause or reason of God's preparing of it; but God's preparing of it was the cause of his revealing of it; and his revealing of it by his promife to them, was the ground of their believing of it: their faith was the cause of their desire of it; and this defire, thus raifed and thus grounded, was a demonstration to them, that they should furely posfess it. And so should it be to every believer in all ages. Hath Christ raised defires in your hearts to be with him where he is? Do ye feel them in your fouls? And are you daily expressing them to him in prayer alone, and in all your attendance on him in gospelordinances? If he hath yet farther opened to you the door of hope, as the day-dawn to thy heavy darkened heart; lift up your heads and hearts, your redemption draweth near, Luke xxi. 28. Now is your falvation nearer than when you believed, Rom. xiii. 11.; nearer than when you first trusted in Christ, Eph. i. 12.; nearer than when you first begged it of him. Gracious Jesus will never baulk the desires of heaven which he himself hath put and kept up in thy heart: Psal. x. 17. Lord thou hast heard the desire of the humble: thou wilt prepare their heart, thou wilt caufe thine ear to bear.

athly, Christ's good-will to give eternal life to his people appears in the earnest he gives to them. This is oftener spoke of in the word, than known and selt by the readers and hearers of the word. It is called the earnest of the Spirit, from its immediate author, 2 Cor. v. 5; the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts, for therein it is put, 2 Cor i. 22.; the earnest of our inheritance, Eph. i. 13. for unto that it referreth. It is something of heaven given to believers on earth; some special presence of Christ manifested to them; some special fellowship with him, silling them with joy, and peace, and likeness to him. How well is this known to them that have it? And how sure fure is it, that no words can make any other to know it? It is the hidden manna, that Chriss gives his people to eat of, (and no man knows its taste, but the eater of it, and while he eats of it); and the white fione Christ gives, and in the stone a new name writ-ten, (If it be written, may it not be read by any? No), which no man knoweth, saving he that receiveth it, Rev. ii. 17. Why is this earnest given? It is to secure the bargain of the new covenant to the believer, and to fecure him of the possession of glory. Therefore is it called the first fruits of the Spirit, Rom. viii. 23.; fealing of velievers, 2 Cor. i. 22. and to the day of redemption, Eph. iv. 30. This earnest must be a rich jewel, when the devil that great thief and robber, fets himself so against them that have got it. It was more than an earnest that Paul got in 2 Cor. xii, 1, 1, 3. The devil hated Paul from the day that Christ took him out of his arms; he hated his gifts, grace, and fervice; and that Paul knew well, and felt often: but he never fell on him fiercely, as when Paul came down enriched with extraordinary enjoyments. No believer shall get this earnest, if the devil can hinder it; and none can keep it, without a bat-tle with hell. But though Satan by his malice and craft, and our unbelieving hearts, join together (as too oft they do) to rob us of this earnest, and the fense of it; 'yet 'Christ will never take it away, nor break the bargain of our falvation, Pial. lxxx x. 33, 34, 35. Neverthelefs, my loving-kindness will I not ut-terly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail, is the voice of God in the new covenant. It may be a question with some, If this earnest be an universal bleffing to all, or only a special kindness to some believers? On the one hand, the discouraged complaining mood of some Christians seems to fay, that they have it not; on the other hand, many have this earnest, and that frequently repeated to them. What shall we say to this question? These things we may be fure of; that it is a choice mercy, and a great N_2 advanadvantage to a believer to have it; (as the contraries are as fure, to fuch as have it not); that it is a great duty to prefs after it: that there are ways and means of God's appointment for reaching it; that there are gracious promifes of a bleffing on thefe means; and that faith and diligence in feeking this bleffing in God's way, is usually successful. It feems for lafer for us, to lay our want of it on our own unbelief, than to refleet upon his word and way.

So much for the first thing in this doctrine. Wherein appears Christ's will and mind to have his people where he is?

W. Why it is, and must be his will and mind? Take these two accounts of it. 1. Because of his faithfulness in the covenant. And, 2. Of his love to his people.

1. Because of his faithfulness in the covenant of grace. The clearest and furest view of our falvation, is to be had in this covenant. Therein we fee, i.-The electure given by the Father to the Son, to be redeemed by him, and that he may give them eternal life; as John xvii. 2. theu hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. This charge the Son accepted from eternity, and, in the fulness of time, came into the world to fulfill, John vi. 38, 39. They were given to him, on condition of his coming, and redeeming of them by his blood; which condition he fulfilled. 2. They are promifed to him as his purchase by the Father, when the Son harta bought them as he promited : Ifa. lin. 10, 11. When thou thatt make his foul an offering for fin, he shall be his feed, he shall proiong his days, and the pleasure of the I and shall propper in his band. He shall see of the travail of his feel, and shall be fixinged, &c. 3. The bringing them fafe to glory, is charged on the Son, and promifed by him again to the Father : John vi. 18, 19. For I came down from beaven, not to do mine can will, but the will of him that fent me.

And this is the Father's will which bath fent me, that of all which he hath given me, I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. John xii. 50. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting. Christ stands engaged by this covenant, to give a good account of all his charge; and he will do it fully one day, when he prefents his people to his Father; and will fay of all, as Heb. ii. 13. Behold, I, and the children which God hath given me; and as he said of a few of them in this chapter, ver. 12. While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name; those that thou gavest me, I have kept, and none of them is lost. And furely Christ is as good at keeping of his people when he is in heaven, as when he was on earth: for he is with them always, even unto the end of the avorld, Amen, Matth. xxviii. 20. 4. Christ yet further promiseth eternal life to his people: 1 John ii. 25. And this is the promise that he hath promised us, even eternal life; as it is the grand comprehensive promise. Yea, Christ himself is called eternal life, I John i. 2. and verse 20. When Christ came into the world, eternal life came into it; when Christ is shown and revealed, eternal life is made known; when Christ is embraced by faith, eternal life is got: I John v. 11, 12. And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life: and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son, hath life. O that all men did but know, how closely, how inseparably, and how eternally, Christ and eternal life are linked together! No eternal life without Christ; no Christ without eternal life. He also promiseth it, as well as contains it: John x. 27, 28. My Sheep hear my voice, and I know them and they follow me. And I give unto them eternal life, and they shall never perish, neither shall any man plack them out of my hand. It is this, and such like promises of eternal life, made by Jesus Christ, that every true believer builds his hope of heaven upon. And thus Christ's faithfulness and truth is concerned in bringing all his people to glory. z. Con-

SERM. VI.

2. Consider Christ's wonderful love to his people. True love cannot bear long parting, much less everlasting parting. Christ loves his people so well, that he must have them with him; otherwise he should lose his love, and his beloved; and that cannot be. The love of Christ to his people may well be their delight, and their wonder. There is both pleasure and profit in studying of it. But all our thoughts can never reach to its infinite dimensions; for it hath beight, and depth, and breadth, and length, and in all passeth knowledge, Eph. iii. 18, 19. And because of the aweetness of this theme of Christ's love, and because all I shall fay in the application of this doctrine at this time, is to require love to him again; I would speak a little of this blessed love of Christ to his people, as it is the cause of his willing to have them with him where he is.

1/1, Christ's love to his people hath no cause nor reason for it, but itself. Love is the only cause of his love. Our love to him hath good cause, and strong reason for it. His own worth in himself, his love to u: and the great things he hath done for us, and hate promited to us, juffly deferve more love than we can give him. But none of these things are with us

adly, This love of Christ not only hath no cause in us to raise it; but it is a love that acts and moves against all things that may justly quench love and raife lothing. There is not only no worth nor beauty in us that he skould defire us, (as the unbelieving world thought, and thinks fallely of Christ himself, Il. liii. 2) but there is a great deal in us to make us justly hateful and lothfome in his eyes. There is enmity to him in our heart and nature; there are provocations in our conversation and walk; there are vileness, lothsomness, poverty, and all misery, in our state; yet Christ's love overcomes all: Ezek. xvi. 6, 7, 8. Thy time was the time of love, faith the Lord. A strange time of love love, and a strange love! A wretched, naked poliuted infant, cast out in the open field, to the lothing of its person, as ver. 5. Was that a time of love? We that a time for the Prince of heaven to fall in love with the filthy perishing brat? Unto any but to the heart of a God, this would have been a time of lothing, and not of love. The same thing the apostle teacheth without a parable, Eph. ii. 1, 2, 3, 4.

adly, It is a love that fets Christ on work in all his faving work. And hard, and dear, and costly work to him it was: yet love made him to do it all; and delightfully he did it. He died for us in love; he called us in love; he planted his grace in us in love; he visits us in love; and when he corrects and rebukes. he doth that in love too, Rev. iii. 19. And though we do not like it, he likes it, and it is for our good. All that Christ doth for, and in, and with, and on, and about his people, (and who can tell all?), he doth all in and from his love to them. And this shews us both the nature of his love to us, and the debt we are under to love him again.

4thly, This love of Christ to his people, both defigns and effects the greatest good to them he loves. Among creatures there is a deal of love to little purpose. Either they intend but little by their love; or if they do defign it, their love cannot reach it. But the greatest good, eternal life, is not only intended by Christ in his love to his people, but it is furely attained. All that Christ loves, are saved: why? because his love is faving. Salvation is designed by this lover, and is perfected by his love.

APPLICATION. Let me therefore exhort you to love Jesus Christ. Is his heart set upon the haring all his people with him where he is? Surely we ought to return love to him back again. Most of them that pretend to the name of Christian, think they make fome conscience of it, as being a most just debr and duty to him: and will be ready to fay with Paul, 1 Cor. xvi. 22. If any man love not the Lord Jefes Christ, let him be Anathema, Maranatha. But as the love that Christ bears to his people, is not fo well known and believed as it ought to be; so the love his people owe to him, is not so well paid as it ought to be. I would therefore advise you in sive things about your love to Christ.

Advice 1. Take a ferious view of the lover, and of the beloved, and of the love he bears them: of Christ that doth love, and of his people, whom he doth love, and of the love he bears to them. When these three are seen by the eye of faith in the light of God's word, his glory and greatness who loveth, the vileness of them he loveth, the greatness of the love he bears them, two thoughts will tife in the heart. 1. How marvellous is it, that such a person as he should love, in such a manner, such persons as we be! 2. How great should our returns of love be to him again! What is the cause of this usual and sad remark, That carnal, fecure finners count it an easy thing to believe that Christ loves them, though they never tafted of his special love; when many sincere Christians find the faith of Christ's love to them so dislicult. though they dare not deny their tasting fometimes that he is gracious? as I Peter ii. 3. Yea they find it hardest to believe it in such times, when either the divine dignity of Christ, or their own wretchedness, are feen by them; (and usually they go together), This is the cause of it, because this love of Christ is so mysterious and wonderful, (as the lover is, Ifa. in. 6.). We cannot easily think, that Christ doth love any, but fuch as are fome way like him; nor do we rightly know, that Christ can, and doth love them that are not like him, fo as to make them like to him by his love; for his love hath always this bleffed effect in all them that it falls upon.

Advice 2. Learn to believe Christ's love. Usually, we would fain have his love proved and manifest-

ted to us. But I advise you to take this way, of getting your faith to fix on Christ's love. Think not that I would persuade you rashly to conclude in yourselves, that Christ loves you. But what I design, is only this: Take Christ's love-letters and Christ's amiable picture in the gospel, (and the new testament is full of them); and believe, and love them, and him by them. Behold Christ crucified, Gal. iii. 1.; behold him dying, and redeemed. Read his love-letters filled with gracious calls, offers, and promises: and all these letters sealed with his blood, shed in love. A blessed exercise, that you would soon find the advantage of.

Advice 3. Then pray much for his manifested love to you in particular. You are to give him glory in believing his love-letters and his beautiful picture in the gospel, and in raising faith and love by those helps: But you may also beg his manifesting his love to you. See his promife, John xiv. 21, 23. words more precious than fine gold, He that bath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me : and he that loveth me, shall be loved of my Father; and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. "I will love "him, and make him know it." And when one of his disciples asks, either in ignorance or wonder, How this could be! verie 22. our Lord answers, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come (i.e. my Father and 1) unto him, and make our abode with him, ver. 22. Very like his words in Rev. iii. 20. Behold, I fland at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and fup with him, and be with me. Thus he manifests his love; I John iv. 12. God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us. Ver. 15. Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God. Ver. 16. And we have known and believed the love that God bath to us; (and so must we know and believe the love that his Son hath to us). God is love; and he that YoL. II. dwel-dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Ver. 17. Herein is our love made perfect. But how did it begin, and how is it advanced? Ver 19. We love him, because he first loved us. Alas! what are Christians doing? and how poorly they do? Where is the man who is fick of love for Christ? This bleffed difeafe (or foul's health rather) is twofold; either in pining hunger for the manifestation of his love, as Cant. v. 8.; or in the overwhelming sweetness of his manifested love, Cant. ii. 5. If you know nothing of neither of these, your carcales may be well, but your fouls do not prosper. I do not think that there ever was a poor believer, that did long breathe after Christ's love, but he felt it. Most people do not care for it: and therefore they feek it not, and therefore they find it not; and some of them may fay, (as they in Acts xix. 2. We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost). "We have not felt any " of the love of Christ; we know nothing of it, but "as it is spoke of in the scriptures, and as it is to be enjoyed in heaven." But how it doth burn as a hot fire in the heart, Cant. viii. 6, 7, even on earth, alas! tew feel.

Advice 4. When Christ hath manifested his love, then light your torch of love at the warm beams of the Sun of Righteousness. I mean, kindle your love to him at the fire of his love to you. No other fire will kindle true love to Christ, but the fai h and sceling of Christ's love to you. What made Paul such a fervent lover of Christ, but that he knew to well how Christ loved him? He loved me, and give himself for me, Gal. ii. 20. No wonder he said, Act. xxi. 13. I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerislates for the name of the Lord Jesus. "Carist died" at Jerusalem for my redemption; and shall I not "die there for his glosy, if he call me?"

Advice 5. When you have kindled your love to Christ at his love to you, then let it burn and spend (but it cannot spend, but grows by burning) in his fervice,

fervice, and to his praise. Use and act that love in all holy worship, and in all gospel-obedience. That is the best worship, and the most acceptable obedience, that is performed from love to Christ. The love constrained Paul, 2 Cor. v. 14. unto his excellent living to Christ. That working and running that only the spur of the law in mens consciences constrains fome unto, is of no account in the fight of Gol. Faith in Christ raiseth love to Christ; and faith acd love enlivens to all holy obedience, and spiritual worship. Then the Christian reads and hears the word of Christ, because he loves to hear his voice. He prays; for he loves to fpeak, and to pour out his heart to his best friend. He sits down at the Lord's table, because he loves to see, and draw virtue from his flain Saviour. He hates evil, because he loves the Lord, Pfalm xcvii. 10. He keeps Christ's commandments, because he loves the commander, John xiv. 15. Sirs, be affured of this, that you are not yet got into the right road of Christianity; you are not yet in that path, wherein you can be hearty and fincere, and wherein you will be constant, and never faint; until you get once into the power of the love of Christ. Then you will be fweetly carried on in all your way, and in his ways. Then may the believer in, and lover of Christ, fay, "Let the Lord lead me whither he pleafeth; I " am slill going to heaven, and am in the river of life, "the love of Christ, that begun (if I may say to) from eterpity, and carries me through time, unto the eternal enjoyment of the same love in hea-" ven."

SERMON VII.

Јони хуіі. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

ENS hearts are best known by their prayers. And by the same way we may know Christ's heart. Whosoever would know how deeply his heart is concerned in the saving of his people, let them read and believe this prayer. And indeed, unless people do know how Christ's heart stands affected to their salvation, their hearts will never stand well affected towards him, in their employing him for salvation. A clear and strong persuasion of Christ's hearty concern in and about saving of sinners, will make a poor sinner hearty in trusting him with his own salvation.

Of this I have been speaking from these precious words. The manner of this prayer I have spoke to. In the matter of it I took up four things. I. The description of the party he prays for: They when thou hall given me. 2. The blessing he prays for to them: That they also may be with me where I am. On this part I observed, 1. That the perfect bliss of believers shands in their being with Christ where he is. 2. Christ's will is to have them possibled of this bliss. This latter destrine I did last day open and consum; and began to apply it in one instance, of the debt of love to Christ that lies on all Christians.

I would now proceed to a more large application of both the doctrines, and that in four exhortations.

Exhort.

Exhort. 1. Is it not Christ's will to have all his people with him where he is? Then we are called to admire this wonderful will of Christ. This will hath its causes and springs, as you have heard. But these are fo far from making it less, that they indeed make it more wonderful. For helping you to admire this will of Christ, I would give you a few things to consider.

1. Jesus Christ knows himself best. We hear these words of being with Christ: but little do we know what they contain and mean; because we know so little, who, and what Christ is. But Christ knows himself fully and perfectly; and therefore he knew what a great bleffing he willed for his people, when he uttered this fuit to his Father. It is the wife constitution of God, that the knowledge of Christ, and the enjoyment of Christ, and the knowledge of that enjoyment, are inseparable. We alas! know little of Christ, we enjoy little of him; and therefore know very little, what perfect enjoyment of him is. But Christ knew himself perfectly, and what bliss his company would be to his people. This is one thing that may make us admire this will of Christ. As if our Lord had faid, " My poor people know not ful-" ly wherein their greatest blis confists; but I know "it well, and will to them."

2. Our Lord Jesus knew best where he was to be. I told you where Christ was when he made this his will, even near the lowest step of his humbled state. He was just going to the garden of agony, and from that to the death of the cross. But he prays as if in heaven already. And well did be know whither he was going, and what a high and happy state himself was going to, unto which also he meant to bring his people; as he commends it, and encourageth his difciples from it, in John xiv. 2, 3. But we, when we pray for heaven, we pray in the dark. We pray for a bleffing, that we do not know, but in a very small part. See 1 Cor. ii. 9. 1 John iii. 2. If it were possible that any believer, out of heaven, did fully know what heaven is, that man would either be as in heaven, or would pray wonderfully for it. But well did Christ know what heaven was: and therefore prays for it unto his people.

3. Christ knew well where his people were; in an evil world, ver. 11.: and what bad entertainment they had, and were to have in it. In love and pity to them, therefore he wills this bleffed lodging for them in heaven.

4. Christ knew well what their frame of heart and defires were. He knew what a heart he had put in them; that nothing lefs than being with him where he was, could content, fatisfy, and make them happy. Would you know, when Christ begins to do good to a poor finner? what is the first thing Christ doth to one he minds to fave? It is plainly this: He makes fuch a hore in the man's heart, that nothing but Carift and heaven can fill. None but Christ, nothing but being with him where he is, can fatisfy this man. Christ's grace given, fpringeth up into everlassing life, John iv. 14. And he that created this spring, will neither divert nor stop it. But as their hearts, by his grace, spring up to heaven; Christ's heart, in this prayer, springs up to that same everlasting life for them.

Exhort. 2. Love this bleffed willer. Love Jesus Christ, who wills to have all his people in heaven with himself; and love him for willing it. But some will fay, "I know not that Christ wills this for me. " If I did but know it, I would then love him." Anf. 1. Though you do not know it, you doubt not, but he deferves thy highest love. No darkness as to your interest in Christ, can dissolve the obligation of duty to love Christ, nor excuse thee from the sin of nor loving him. 2. All the devils in hell, or out of hell, or in thy heart, cannot prove, that thou art one that Christ hath no mind to have with him, any of them suggest it, you have reason to say, they lye, and cannot possibly prove it. I will suppose thy

state to be as bad as thou imagines; that thou hath no light, nor knowledge, nor ground to believe and hope that thou art in Christ's will and prayer; yea, that thou hast many fears of the contrary, and appearance of grounds for them. Yet it is certain, that it is impossible to prove, that Christ hath no mind to fave thee. 3. Is it not fome confiderable encouragement to you, that it is certain that many just such as you, are in this will of Christ? This prayer was put up, and hath been oftentimes auswered, for many just such as you be. There is not so great a difference betwixt men in their natural state, as many imagine. There is indeed fome difference in their outward conversation. Some wander strangely; and some are, by education, and restraining common grace, kept within tolerable bounds. But still as to the substance of an unrenewed state, all in it are alike. They are fwine still, whether washed, or wallowing in the mire, 2 Pet. ii. 22. till Chritt's grace change them. 4. You that doubt that you are not in Christ's will for glory, can you bless him, and love him, for willing salvation to so many others? It is a sad suppofition, I own. And I think it finful for any to lay it down as to himself, that Christ hath no mind to fave him. Yet fad suppositions laid close to the heart and conscience, do sometimes produce and draw forth some good thing that lay hid in the heart. Let me therefore argue with fuch. You fear, or conclude, that Christ huh no mind to fave you, that he hath no thoughts of love to you. Well. Though this thought be finful in all fuch that daily hear the voice of his love in the gospel, I would say to such, 1. Is it not righteous with him? Do you not own that you deferve not his love, and that you justly deferve his hatred? Proud quarrelling with his justice, is very unsuitable to a pleader for his mercy. 2. Is not this fad cafe very afflicting to your fouls? Alas! many have bitter complaints in their mouths, when there is little fense in their hearts of that they complain of. Surely, there are complaining hypocrites, as well as boafting hypocrites. 3. Is there any inclination in your fpirits to admire, love, and praise Jesus Christ for saving fo many? I am perfuaded, (and that with good warrant from Christ's gospel), that person that admires Christ's grace in faving others, shall never be lost himself. Yea, there is some heavenly fire in this smoking flax, or wick, that tender-hearted Jesus will not quench, Ifa. xlii. 3.; nor will be let the many waters quench it, nor Shall the floods drown it, Cant.

Exhort. 2. Search and try whether you are in this will of Christ. Bleffed be the Lord, that no man can know that he is not in Christ's will; yet any Caristian may know that he is in it. It is a matter of the valtest concern, and calls for suitable diligence, 2 Pet. i. 10. Christ's prayer, and Christ's blood, are of the fame extent; and both have an everlasting voice and virtue. This prayer of our Lord's was put up in the fame night he was taken; and its force and virtue is still as great as when it was first uttered. So it is with the voice and virtue of his blood. It speaks to this day as precious things as when he shed it. Alas! our prayers have but little virtue and force when they are first put up, and that little is quickly spent; and were it not for our Advocate with the Father, I John il. 1. they would all come to nothing, and never be more heard of. But it is far (O how far!) ctuerwife with Christ's prayers. They have infinite virtue when first put up, and that virtue is of eternal duration. Here we have our Lord praying to have all his people with him where he is. His prayers were always heard: John xi. 41, 42. And Jesus lift up his eyes, and faid, Father, I thank thee, that thou hall beard me; and I know that thou beard it me always. And furely he was he and in his last and main prayer for his own glory, and his people's bleffedness, in this text. Christ did all the Father's wel, in working out the redemption of the elect; and the Father will do do all the Son's will, in giving the bleffings bought to the redeemed. It is then of the highest importance to us, to know we are in this will of Christ, that always is effected; and in this prayer of his, that is, hach been, and will furely be answered. And, for your help in this inquiry about your interest in Christ's will and prayer, I would look into this blessed chapter, and Christ's prayer in it; and from it show you tome marks of them Christ prays for; and let your considences judge of your interest in them.

Mark 1. Of them Christ prays for, is in ver. 6. I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavell me out of the world. Would ye know if you be in Christ's prayer and will? Then see if Christ hath manifested to you the Father's name. It is his work, and his only; Matth. xi. 27. All things are delivered unto me of my Father: and no man knoweth the Son but the Father: neither knoweth any man the Father, fave the Son, and he to whomfoever the Son will reveal him. Now, what is the Father's name? Many think they know it, to whom Christ never revealed it. If you ask them, if they know Christ's Father's name? they have a ready answer. Is he not the first person in the Trinity? Is he not God the Father, the Almighty, the Maker and Ruler of heaven and earth? Yes. But this is the name of God only, and that in general. The name of Christ's Father, is that name and discovery of God wherein he stands related to the Son, and the Son to the Father, with the power and virtue of this name; as in ver. 26. of this chapter, And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou half loved me, may be in them, and I in them. In comparing ver. 6. and ver. 26. I would remark two things. 1. One is in Christ's way of his expressing his work in revealing his Father's name to his people. In ver. 6. it is, I have manifested; in ver. 26. it is, I have declared thy name. But though there be finall difference in the English, there is a considerable one in the Greek; Vol. II.

as any acquainted with the original do know. I never looked on the infcription on Christ's cross, written by his enemies, in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, as a warrant to preachers of Christ's gospel to stuff their fermons with shreds of those, or any frange tongues; nor that criticisms on the words in the oilginal languages are proper for the pulpit: and if the preachers had as little pleasure in them, as the people have profit by them, they would be quickly laid alide. But sometimes the penury of the volgar tongue doth not answer the fulness of the original; and in that case it must be supplied by farther explication; as in these two verses before, in ver. 6. and ver. 26. In ver. 6. our Lord tells the Father, that he had manifested his name to them; in ver. 26. that he had declared his name to them. As the words rua in the English, they feem to us to be much the same ; but as in the Greek, there is a remarkable difference. In ver. 6. Christ's manifesting the Father's name to them, refpects the clear and glorious discoveries Christ had made to them of the Father's name in and by Christ's incarnation, words, and works. In ver. 26. his declaring to them the Father's name, respects the light and knowledge of the Father's name, which Christ had wrought, and was farther to work in them. The manifesting, speaks the discoveries of his Father's name that Christ made to them; the declaring it, speaks torth the truit of the former in his disciples, It is as if he had faid, "I have made thy name known " to them, I have made them know thy name; and "they do know it;" as he faith, ver. 25. 2. Another remark I make in comparing ver. 6. and ver. 26. is this, That the fruits and effects are the same in both. Whatever difference there is in the words expressing this work of Christ, the fruit produced thereby is the fame. In ver. 6, the fruit is faid to be in two. They have kept thy word; expressing their faith and obedience. 2. Now they have known that all things whatfoever thou hast given me, are of thee, ver. 7. " My

" perfon, my calling, my furniture, my words and "works, are all of thee." This they knew. And it feems to relate to what they fay, chip. xvi. 29, 30. In ver. 26. the fruit of Christ's declaring the Father's name to them, is faid to be, That the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them. The Father's name is a special discovery of the love of the Father unto his Son first, and then through the Son unto periffing finners. See if you have had any thing of this. Christ teacheth the Father's name, and the Father teacheth Christ's name by his Spirit, when he draws men: John vi. 45. Every man that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

Mark 2. Is in ver. 8. (And it is a fad thing if people cannot find their own name in no part of this prayer): And I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me. Search if Christ hath given you any of his words. He hath the tongue of the learned from the Father, Isa. l. 4. and useth it on all he saveth. We are faved by words; not by the words which men fpeak, but which Christ fpeaks: John vi. 68. Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life. So here Christ feith, "I have given them these "words of love, and life, and power." Hath Christ at no time spoke to your heart, so as you have been made to fay, This is the voice of my beloved; as Cant. ii. 8.? Men must hear Christ's voice, before they open the door to him, Rev. iii. 20. His voice makes the dead to hear, and live, John v. 25, 26.

Mark 3. Of one in Christ's prayer, is in ver. 14. 16. Such are not of the world, as Christ is not of the world. They are in the world, but not of it; as the apolle distinguisheth, I John ii. 19. speaking of apostates. They were for a while in the church, and with it; but never of it, as appeared by their apostaly from it. Our Lord was in the world, as never any man was. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not, John i. 10. The world knew neither its Maker, nor Saviour. His people people are in the world, but not of it. They have Leither the fpirit of the world, I Cor. ii. 12. nor their heart on it, nor their treasure and portion in it, Matth. vi. 21. There is fomething fown and planted in their hearts, that came from another world than this, and draws them to heaven as their home; and this world is but their passage and thorough-sare unto it. Are your hearts on heaven, and off this world? Conclude you are in Christ's prayer and will.

Mark 4. Christ prays for believers on him, ver. 20. Every one that can make out his faith in Christ, may lay claim to this prayer, (though he be but a weak believer), and to an interest in it.

5. Laftly, I shall give one mark in general from the whole prayer. Can you fay Amen to all of it? Can you fet your feel and Amen of faith and love to all that Christ prays for here? a hearty Amen to all Christ prays for his own glory, and the happiness of his body the church? Do you daily defire with the heart the same things that Christ here prayed for, especially as to this ver. 24.? When you hear Christ's defire of having his people with him where he is, doth your heart echo to it, "I would, O that I were "with thee where thou art!" If it be fo, you have part and portion in this good matter. If Christ's will and thy will jump together for the fame blefling, then art thou in Christ's prayer and will; and there will be 2 performance of the Lord, when he shall get all his will on thee, and thou all thy defires from him.

Exhort, 4. Believe on this bleffed willer of falvation, and on this will. You are not called at first to believe your interest in Christ, and in his will to fave you in particular: but you are, on the peril of your fouls, to trust this Saviour with your falvation; and the rather, because of his declared ability and goodwill to fave, Saving faith in Christ, is not a bare affent unto any propolition of truth concerning Christ the Saviour; for that is but an act of the mind, and it is in devils and in many ungodly men: but it is an act of the heart on the person of the Saviour. Men believe with the heart unto righteoufness, Rom. x. 9, 10. It is a trust on this divine person, as revealed to us by his names in the gospel. So faith is called so oft believing on his name, John i. 12. 1 John iii. 23. There is one name of Christ in Isa. Ixiii 1. I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save; where we have a taking description of the object of faith. All he speaks is true; and you may trust him, and take his word, And he can do all, any thing, every thing, in and about falvation, that a finner can need to be done. He is mighty to fave. Never did a finner perish thro' Christ's want of might to fave. Remember these two names of Christ in all your employing of him abour your falvation. The truth of his faving word, and the might of his faving arm, ought never to be out of the eye of faith. How ffrong would faith grow in us if our faith did duly fix on both?

There is one fcripture I would open a little to you to this purpose. It is a place well known, (O that it were as well used!), in 1 Tim. i. 15. This is a faithful faying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jefus Christ came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief. A text that ought to be in the memory and heart of every Christian. There are three things in it that I would glance at, to show you what I drive at in pressing you to believe on this great willer of eternal life to his people. Here you have three things. 1. The fum of the gospel: Christ came into the world to fave sinners. 2. Here is the commendation of the gospel: It is a faithful faying, and worthy of all acceptation.

3. Here is the believer's application of the gospel: Of whom I am chief.

1. We have a sum of the gospel: Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners. In this short sum we have three things. 1. His name who is the Saviour, Jesus Christ, the Son of God. It looks rather like the devil's gospel, than God's gospel, that hath not Christ's name in it. 2. What this Saviour did:

He came into the world. Never did man come into the world but Isfus Chrift. The first man and woman were made in the world by their great Miker; and and their posterity are born in the world, as Christ calls is, John xvi. 21. Only Christ came into the world. and this word comprehends, not only his incarnation, but all the work he did in the world, and all the enterrainment he met with from God and man, angels and devils, when he was in the world. 3. His errand and bufinefs he came into the world for and uyon: To fave finners. A strange errand, and a hard work! It there had been no sinners in the world, Christ had had nothing to do in the world. They therefore that deny themselves to be sinners, they do what they can to turn Christ out of his office of a Savious. He came not to condemn the world, for that was past already, John iii. 17, 18.; neither did he come to judge the world, John xii. 47.; but to fave the world. For at his fecond coming he will judge the world, Alls xvii. 31. There was never a finless man in the world, but the first and second Adam. The first was fuch for a little time, and by his fall made all the world finners. The fecond man, the Lord from heaven, (as a Cor. xv. 47.), was always finless; and by the facrifice of himself, put away sin, Heb. ix. 26. and faved funcis. How frequently did he affert, and prove it by word and deed, that this was his errand into, and his business in the world? How frequently did his enemies, the feribes and Pharifees, flumble at his person, doctrine, and kindness to somers; and that became they neither knew him, nor his errand into the world? If he was gracious to finners, they call him a friend of fullicans and femors, Matth. xi. 19.; is he torgave a finner, as Matth. ix. 2. they fay, he Flat; beneth. When the great finner approacheth him with faith and love, Luke vii. 39. even his hoft, that was 10 open enemy, (fince he invited Christ to his boute and table), yet he spake within bimfelf, faying, This man, if he were a prophet, would know who, and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him: for The is a finner. And belike he thought, if Christ had known it. he would not have fuffered her to do fo. Poor man! he doubted Christ's being a Prophet; but he had no thought of Christ's being God's great High . Priest. Brethren, Christ is not changed from what he was when he was in this world, now he is in heaven. He hath the fame kind heart to finners, and the fame bufine's with them, to fave them. And the world is not changed from what it was when he was in it. Christ's acts of grace to finners, from the Father's right hand, are as much maligned by fuch as are ignorant of him, and enemies to him, this day, as what of this fort he did on earth, (when he was in their streets, fields, and houses), was maligned and reproached by the scribes and Pharifees. Men change in every age; but the feed of the fernent, the children of the devil, and the spirit of unbelief, never changes. And all that hath been, is, or shall be, in the world, of this enmity to Christ's grace to sinners, flows from mens grofs ignorance of Christ's main bufiness in the world.

Now, this was Christ's errand into the world, to fave finners. But how doth he fave them? Some fay, by shewing them the way of falvation, and by his doctrine, and by his example. The devil faid this of Paul and Silas, Acts xvi. 17. Thefe men are the fervants of the most high God, which shew unto us the way of falvation. But who can think, that God fent his own Son, and that the Son came into the world, to do no more, than a prophet, an apostle, or an ordinary gospel-minister, dorh, or can do? Some will tell you, that Christ saves inners, by teaching and helping them to fave themselves. What a gross perverting of the gofpel is this? How plain is it, that Christ came not to help us to fave ourfelves, but to fave us by himfelf? He alone did all the work, and he alone was able to do it. And the glory of faving is to rich a jewel in Christ's crown, that no man, without pride and blasphemy, can offer to wear it. To be the Saviour of finners, is Christ's property; and no creature in heaven or earth, can share in it. The holy angels are bumble adorers of this name, and all the redeemed of the Lord are the happy partakers of the virtue of this name of Christ, Rev. v. 9,--14. The Papists will tell you, that Christ faveth sinners indeed by his death: but that all the application of the virtue of his death he hath left with the church: that he left Peter to be the head of the church: and that Peter left his power with his fuccessors, the bishops of Rome. And, by those delusions, Antichrist hath usurped Christ's throne of falvation, and hath deceived the world, and damned it; and, instead of saving sinners, hath been destroying the faints of the most high God. Nothing but the wrath of God on despisers of Christ and his gospel, would have brought in, and kept up so long this abomination of desolation, 2 Thess. ii. 10, 12, 12. Rev. xiii. 8. and xvii. 8. But what faith Christ, and the apostles, about Christ's faving sinners? How plain is it, that he, and he alone, and by himfelf, doth all?

2. We have the commendation of this gospel: This is a faithful faying, and worthy of all acceptation.

1. The gospel is a faying, a report, Isa. liii. 1. Rom. x. 16. But it is a testimony of God, 1 Cor. ii. 1.; a record of God, 1 John v. 10, 11. Faith comes by hearing of it, Rom. x. 17.: and is built on this divine saying.

2. It is a faithful faying; because it is the record that God giveth of his Son, 1 John v. 10.; and it is given by him that cannot lye, Heb. vi. 18. Tit. i. 2.

3. This faithful saying is worthy of all acceptation. And this extends to all persons; all and every some is though accept it: and also to the acceptation itself; it is worthy of all manner of acceptation. No man is excepted, and no sort of acceptation is excluded. No man can exceed in his accepting of this saying. So that the apostle commends the gospel by two things, that commend any faying of God or man. 1. It is true: and any man may trust it. 2. It is good: and every man should accept it.

2. We have the application of the gospel: Of whom I am chief. You and I make no doubt but that Paul was, when he wrote this, one of the greatest believers in Christ that ever was; and that from that faith he was one of the holiest men on earth; and that from both he was one of the humblest saints; (as strong faith, and true holiness, never fails of producing this effect): and therefore he faith, Of whom I am chief. He had faid just before in verse 14. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ was exceeding abundant, with faith and love, which is in Christ Jesus. Yet for all this grace he counts himself the chief of finners. Why doth he fay fo? Surely, because he thought fo. But why did he think fo? I may fay, Paul would never forget his own name, chief sinner, though he was not a condemned, but a pardoned finner. But wherein lieth the force of this way of his applying the gospel to himself thus? The saying is general, Christ came into the world to fave sinners. How could be fay, Of whom I am chief? Did Christ come into the world to fave all sinners? No: Joha ix. 39. And Jefus faid, For judgment (or discrimination) I am come into this world: that they which fee not, might fee; and that they which fee, (that think they fee), might be made blind. Like what Simeon faid of Christ, in Luke ii. 34. Behold, this child is fix for the fall and rifing again of many in Ifrael; and 1 Peter ii. 7, 8. Aie all sinners alike? No. Well did Paul know it, who judged himself to be the greatest of finners. But Paul applies it to himself warrantably thus, as any other finner may. " Because Chritt's 46 business in the world is to save sinners, though I be " the chief of finners, I am but a finner; and greater " or fmaller finners are all one to Christ; his errand is for both forts, and his faving skill is for both 66 forts. All diseases are alike to Christ's art. All Vol. II. 66 OF "of them are desperate, and incurable to any, but "Christ; and all alike curable by him." Would you know, then, by the example of this great sinner, by the practice of this great believer, and by the teaching of this great apostle Paul, (whose heart and pen was guided by the Holy Ghost), what faith in Jesus Christ is, and in what manner you should act it? Then do four things.

I Take God's holy and righteous law, and read it, and think on it with faith and fear, and fign it. Study it in a clear light; and bring it '? your conscience, and your conscience unto it. When God's law, with is spiritual light and power, and your conscience meet together, it will fare with you as it did with Paul, R.m. vii. 8, 9. Without the law for was dead. For I was alive without the law once, (and then he was dead in fin): but when the commandment came, fin revived, and I died. How could Paul be without the law, who was fo zealous a Pharifee? I may fay, he was indeed bufy with the law, but the law was not bufy with him. He fought righteousness and life by the law; and little dreamed, that fin and death would come upon him, when the law came to him. Now, when you and the law meet thus, feal to the law and fubscribe your name, "I am the chief transgressor of this "law;" as Paul doth in Rom. vii. 12, 14 Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good. For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, fold under fin. The truly convinced finner thinks we'l of God's law, while he thinks worft of Limielf. He speaketh not evil of the law, nor judgeth the law, sames in 11. when he judgeth and condemns himself. One of these is in the heart of every finner: He either condemns God's law for its firstnefs, (as the wicked fervant did his lord and mader, Matth. xxv. 24.); or he condemns himfelf for his finful breaking of it. And if a finner's conviction be not found and thorough, then the poor finner's heart is divided; and his frame is made up of reflecting, partly on the strictness and righteousness of God's law, and partly on tome of his own breaches of it. But fuch a man is far from fealing the law with Paul's name, the chief of finners. Nay, he can name and call many others, greater finners than himfelf, as the Pharifee did, Luke xviii. 11.: not like the publican, 115 12. who, in his plea for mercy, calls himself, me the fine ner, (fo it should be read); "me the great, the fire " gular finner;" the tame word, another Pharifre called the forgiven believer by, Luke vir 39. If there be therefore any allowed grudge against God's law, and a readiness to judge other finners greater finners than yourselves, you are not like to write after Paul's copy.

2. Next, turn to the other fide of the Bible, the gospel; and fign the same name, chief of si ners, to it also: Christ came into the world to fave sumers. The greater the sinner be, the greater is his need of a Saviour; and the faving of the chief of finners, brings the chief bonour and glory to the Saviour Therefore doth Paul both feal to the truth of the gospel-saving. and to its being worthy of all acceptation: he believes it, and welcomes it, as chief of finners. And fo must you, if you believe to the faving of the foul. Tho' there be greater and fmaller fins and finners; yet no man ever did, or can believe, as a little finner. Least, and lefs than the least of all soints, we find in a great faint's mouth, Eph. iii. 8. But never did any true faint either think or call himself a little sinner. For as no man that feeth fin truly, can call any fin small or little; fo no man that feeth himfelf to be a finner really, can count himself a small or little sinner. Nor can it ever be, till there be a little law to break, a little God to offend, a little guilt to contract, and a little wrath to incur. All which are impossible to be, blasphemy to wish, and madness to expect.

3. Would ye put forth and act faith on Jefus Christ? Come to Jesus Christ on the same errand he came into the world for. He came into the world to fave finners: come to Christ to be faved by him. This is believing. Christ came into the world, to get glory to his grace in faving finners; and the believer comes to Christ, to give Christ employment in his calling of faving, and to get the benefit of his calling. A sinrer's giving of Christ employment in his office of saving is proper believing. The physician came for the fick, to heal them; and the fick feek to the physician, that he may heal them, Matth. ix. 12, 13. The great and good Shepherd of the sheep (as he is called, John x. 11. and Heb. xiii. 20.) came to feek and to save that which was lost, Luke xix, 10. When he hath found them, and caught them in the arms of his love, and layeth them on the shoulders of his care and strength, as in Luke xv. 4, 5.; then they by faith, bleat, as it were, after his care and protection, till he bring them fafe into the bleffed fold in heaven, John x. 16. You may hear the bleffed bleating of one of Christ's slock, Pfalm cxix. 176. I have gone aftray like a loft sheep, (as all his flock have done, Ifa. Ilii. 6.), feet thy fervant. And furely, when the shepherd seeks the stray fincep, and the stray sheep seeks the shepherd, they will gaickly meet. If Christ come into the world to fave finners, and if finners come to him, to be faved by him, he will fave them, and they shall be faved by him.

4. Lastly, When you have given employment to Christ in his office of faving, leave it to him, and trust it with him. Are we commanded to cast our burden upon the Lord, Pfalm Iv. 22.? to cast all our care upon bim, 1 Peter v. 7.? May we not, must we not east our main care upon him? And is not the keeping of our fouls our main care, 1 Peter iv. 19.? If we call this care on Christ, must not we trust him quietly with it? It is a great, but common fault with many Christians; they fay they cast their care upon him, when yer, through unbelief, they keep the burden still on themfelves. Remember, that on thy cashing thy burden on the Lord by faith, if he take it not quite off thee, he will either take off the weight of thy burden, or he will make it as wings to thee in thy journey to heaven. How many can feal to this in their experience? Hast thou with thy heart committed thy greatest care of thy falvation to Jesus Christ? Then say in thy heart, "My main care is over; I have put it in a good, ffrong, and fure hand." See how Naomi faith to Ruth, chap. iii. 18. Sit down my daughter, until thou know how the matter will fall: for the man will not be in rest, until he hath sinished the thing this day. So fay I, Sit down quietly, and with confidence: leave the care of thy falvation on Christ, for that is his province; and fet about the work of thy falvation, for that is thine, wherein also he will help thee, Phil. ii. 12, 13. When you are once come to Christ, all your remaining duty is to abide in him, and bring forth fruit, John xv. 4, 5. But it is indeed a large one.

But, alas! for as plain as the call of faith is in the gospel, there are two thoughts in mens hearts that defeat all, and fend thousands of gospel-hearers unto hell. 1. Some do not, will not believe, that they are sinners. Who think so? may ye say. I answer, All the fecure world do think fo. They may fay, that they are finners, as all are; and it may be fome profane lips may fwear it, as in that idle affeveration, As I am a finner. But do they know what it is to be a finner; what dreadful vileness is in a sinner; what a lothfome creature every finner is in God's fight; and what wrath hangs over their heads, which will furely fall on them, unless mercy prevent it? Do men be-lieve this as to themselves in particular? No, surely; as is undeniable by their backwardness to search their hearts and ways, their enmity against the fearthing light of God's word, and by their rebelling against any glances of light that force in themselves upon their conscience. They believe not that they are lost, undone finners: and they cannot endure to be perfuaded of fo plain and damnable a condition. They will not own themselves to be sick, though a sovereign physician is at hand.

2 Even thefe, when awakened, or others to whom their being finners is discovered with divine light and power, cannot be persuaded, that Christ hath any business with them, or that they should make application to him. Most of awakened sinners say and think. much as the devils did, Mark v. 7. What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the most high God? I adjure thee by God, that theu torment me not. I may fay, that the devil hath better cause and less sin in faying fo, than an awakened finner: for Jefus Christ came into the world to fave finners; but he came alto to destroy the works of the devil, I John iii. 8. To awaken a fecure finner's conscience, and to speak peace to an awakened conscience, are proper and mighty works o' God.

I would conclude at this time, with a few exhortations to some dunes of believers, from this doctrine of Chrift's willing of eternal life to all his people.

1. Mourn moderately for the death and departure of believers out of this world. They are well where they are, and far better than they were when here, Phil. i. 23.; and we shall quickly meet again, in a far better world than this. This last is the apostle's argument to the same duty, 1 Thess. iv. 13, 14. Yea, this Christ himself useth in comforting his disciples, in their forrow for his own death, John xiv. 2. 3. And furely Christ's death was a more trying providence to his disciples, than ever any, or many, or all Christians death, can be to us. If the glorified spirits of faints above did hear and know the mournings of their friends whom they have left behind; would they not fay, as Christ going to die faid, Weep not for us, but for yourselves, and for your children? Luke xxiii. 28. (Christ had still a kind heart to children, and expresfed fed it when going to the cross). They would say, "Fools, do ye mourn for us, who are got beyond " mourning? You will never be well, till you be with " us. You are but mourning over the rotten rags of " mortality, that we have cast off. You are but mourn-" ing over our tent, while we are in the King's palace. "We could not be in both at once. Judge which is best. You are mourning over our grave when it " is empty, as they did over the empty grave and " grave-cloaths of our Lord, when he was rifen, and " alive for evermore," John xx. 5, 6, 7. and Matth, xxviii.

2. Pray moderately and modestly for the lives of believers. We should pray for their lives; we should thankfully own the Lord's mercy to them and us, when he answers our prayers, as Phil. ii. 27.: but yet we must pray with deep submission. It may be that Christ in heaven is desiring at that time to have them with him where he is, when we on earth are praying, that they may be kept with us where we are.

3. Learn to look Christian-like on your own death. Learn both to kifs death as a friend, and to defy it as an enemy, I Cor. xv. 55, 56, 57.; and to triumph over it, as conquered and destroyed by Christ, Heb. ii. 14. and abolished by Christ, 2 Tim. i. 10. You all know you must die. It is a more common than godly word with many, As fure as death. I would not have men talk much, when they think little, of death. Nor ought any think of dying, and going hence, without thinking whither they are going. But for believers, you know that death is that dark trance that you must pass through, in order to the fulfilling this prayer of Christ. You must cease to be where you are, before you can be with him where he is. This world, and your condition in it, must be mean and low in your eyes; and Christ's world, and that condition in which you shall be, when in it, must be high to your faith, ere you can look on going hence, without amazement. Therefore climb by faith, as to the top of Pisgah, and take a large view of this good land of glory; as the type of it, Canaan, was, at God's command, beheld by Abraham, Gen. xiii. 14,----17. though he was but a pilgrim in it, and did not possessible, but in his seed; and as it was beheld by Moses, Deut. iii. 27. xxxii. 52. and xxxiv. 1,---4.; though the sight of it was all, and possession was denied him. But it is not so with us, as to the true Canaan. All that behold it by faith, shall possessit; and this makes the beholding of it to be the more sweet to us.

I have commended this fcripture to you, in I Tim. i. 15. specially to help and direct you in the work of faith. That which we should daily act, and that which we live by; that we should daily hear of, and that without wearying. As Christ hath no other bufiness in the world, but to save sinners; so sinners should have no other business with Christ, but to believe on him. Remember and believe this truth, There is no thing a man can do with Christ, there is nothing a man can do for Christ, that can either please Christ, or profit the man, except he first trust Christ for falvation. The faith and trust of the heart on him for falvation, is the main fervice, and the first, he craveth. If a man shall pretend to worship, to obey and serve, yea to love Christ, and suffer for him: yet if he do not trust Christ by faith, all is a provocation to Christ, and all is unprofitable to the man. Believe this, you can do nothing that will pleafe him, or fave you, but trust in him. And if this faith were more diligently afted, all the bleffed fruit of peace within, and fanctification, and holy walking, and patience in tribulation, would exceedingly abound in you, 2 Theff. i. 3, 4.

SERMON VIII.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou levels? me before the foundation of the world.

Have spoke to the first two things in the matter of Christ's prayer in this verse. I. His naming of the persons he prayed for: Those which then had given me. 2. His name of the blessing he prays for to them: That they may also be with me where I am. Christ would not be in heaven alone; he cannot be without his ransomed ones. He had sent many to heaven by his grace, before he came into the world, Acis xv. 11. He hath been still drawing multitudes of them, since he went back to heaven, John xii. 32. And he will shortly return again from heaven, to gather them all and every one, in soul and body, and carry them all home to his Father's house, John siv. 2.3.

It follows to speak of the third thing in the matter of this prayer. And that is, The end for which Christ desires this blessing for those persons. It is, That they may behold my givry which then hast given me. Deep words! and deeper matter! What is rendered, no glory, is in the original, the glory that is mine, with a special emphasis. This being the main and deepest thing in these words, I must insist the more upon it.

There are three expressions in this prayer of Christ's glory. 1. In ver. 5. The glory I had with three before the world was. This he prayeth for. This giory that the Son had from eternity with the Favors. It.

ther, was that glory which he had as the eternal, natural, and effential Son of God, which far paffeth created understanding But now this Son of God had taken on man's nature, and in that nature had done his work of redemption, and fulfilled his Father's will and commission to him: (for our Lord speaks as if he had done all, when it was so near finishing): now, I say, when he is going again out of the world to his Father, as John xvi. 28. he prays, that he, as man, and fuccessful Mediator, may be admitted to, and possessed of that glory, which he, as the Son of God, from eternity possessed with the Father; and which was not interrupted, but vailed only, in and by his humbled state on earth. But this is too deep for us; but well understood by him that prayed for it, and who hath been long possessed of it.

2. In ver. 22. We have another expression of Christ's glory: And the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them. This is another glory than the former. This was given to him by the Father, and given to his people by the Son. It was given to him, that it might be given to others by him; as his receiving gifts for men, Pfal. Ixviii. 18. is called his giving gifts to men, Eph. iv. 8. He received, that he might give. And great is Christ's glory, both in the fulness he received, and in his giving, and our receiving out of his fulness. All fulness dwelleth in him, Col. i. 19.; and all the receivings of his people are out of that fulnefs, John i. 16.

3. In our text we have the third expression of Christ's glory. And it is spoke of in three words. 1. It is my glory; "mine specially and properly." 2 It is my glory sobich thou half given me. 3. It is a glory to be beheld by his people. And this is what I would speak unto.

This prayer of Christ, that his people may behold bis glory, doth respect three things; which I would first diffratch.

1. It respects Christ's glory in itself. It wants (if I might fay fo) to be displayed and feen. This Sun of Righteousness (as he is called Mal. iv. 2.) wants a dark world to shine upon, and would have eyes to look to his glorious light. He calls men to behold him: Ifa. Ixvi. 1, 2. I faid, Behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name. He at last will be glorified in his faints, and admired in all them that believe; and he cometh in his glory for that end, 2 Thess. i. 10. And all he doth in and for his people, is, ver. 12. That the name of our Lord Jesus Christ may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and the Lord Jesus Christ. What a vast difference is there betwixt the glory that Christ gives us, and the glory he gets from us! We have nothing to give; or if we had, and gave, we can add nothing to his glory; but he not only gives to us, and adds to us, but he is all in all to us, Col. iii. 11. Yet fo gracious is he, that if you put a periffing foul into his hand to fave, if you bring your vile fores to him to be healed, therein he will be glorified. Christ is honoured in his calling specially.

2. This word respects his people and their happinefs, Not only is Christ glorified in his people's beholding of his glory, but in this beholding of it they are made happy. There was never a believer that ever had to large a faith, or a heart to enlarged and inflamed with love, as to be able fully to take up what warm love, and what a high and great defign was in our Lord's heart in putting up this petition for them. Believers on Jesus Christ, make no doubt but that be means well for you. Great things are defigned by him for you, and more than you can imagine, in this prayer for you, that you may behold his glory when you are with him where he is.

3. This word respects the eternal work and employment of his people, when they are with him where he is. If any alk, What shall they do? how B 2 fhall shall they be employed through the ages of eternity? Christ answers it here, They Shall behold my glory; work that they shall never come to an end of; work they shall never weary in; and work that they shall have as little mind to weary of, as they shall have cause or reason to be weary in: for every view of his glory will dart in fresh blifs unto the beholders of it.

There are two things to be discoursed on from this part of the text. 1. What is the glory of Christ given to him to be beheld in heaven? 2. What is the beholding of this glory by his people in heaven?

I finall not enter on any of them this day; but would prepare your nearts to think of them. These two questions, What Christ's glory is? and, What the veholding of it in heaven is? are neither of them to be fully answered in this life. Christ's glory would be but a small glory, if either the heart of man could conceive it fully, or the tongue of man could express it all. If the glory that Christ hath prepared for his people be such as I Cor. ii. 9. how much more must Christ's own glory be? There was a man as able to tell as ever any was; and that was Paul. He had heen long exercised in the study of Christ, and in I reaching of him: yet he, when an old man, and in honds for Christ, Eph. vi. 20. speaks thus, Eph. iii. 8. Unto me, who am left than the least of all faints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Centiles the unsearchable riches of Christ. And twely the riches of Christ are both those riches of prace and glory that he is possessed of, and the riches that he enricheth his people with here and in heaven. Is not this a ftrange text? and is it not a ftrange preaching that is made on an unfearchable theme? Yet for all he knew, and for all he taught, Chrift's riches were still unscarchable even to Paul; though it is just to think, that he did dive deeper in them than any man fince. Christ's riches, in Paul's eyes, were like a walt heap of gold, that no man could count; or like the the vast ocean, whose drops none can measure of tell: and Paul did preach them the better that he faw them to be unfearchable. But if this man should be caught up to heaven, and come again to the earth, would be not be able to tell ftrange things then? So it was with Paul, 2 Corinth. xii. 1,---7. But what faith he of it? verse 4. He heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. Any Christian may fafely think, that though there be a vail cast on these visions and revelations of the Lord to Paul, as he calls them, verfe 1. yet the maia thing revealed, was the glory of Christ. But it was revealed in fuch a light, as was not fit to thine on earth; and therefore the apostle saith no more of it, but only tells us what he felt after it; both his great danger, and his sharp cure, ver. 7, 8, 9.

But though Christ's glory in heaven, and the beholding of it, be things within the vail, and cannot be fully known by us till we be there; yet we must not lay aside all thoughts and inquiries about them while we are here. There are means and ways that God hath appointed, that we thould use for knowing them. By his bleffing some knowledge of them is got: and this knowledge is necessary to all, and of great advantage to them that attain it.

I would therefore give you a few things more remotely about this great subject.

1. There is a discovery made to us in the word of the glory of Christ. And there only are we to study it. It is the glory of the written word of God, that the glory of Christ is revealed in it, and to us only in and by it. We must not study to know Christ, we must not search into his glory, but in that light. There are three ways that some use, that are vain and unprofitable. 1. One is, by the works of God's creation and providence, Psalm xix. 1,---7. These do discover plainly the being of God, and his eternal power and godhead, Rom. i. 20. and declare his wifdom and goodness. But nothing of Christ's glory is, or can be learned learned in and by the old creation. Such as talk of a gospel preached to the heathen by sun, moon, and a gotpel preached to the heathen by lun, moon, and stars, give them an office their Creator never made them for, or put them in. And if they that teach such doctrine, pretend to be Christians, surely they must have both a low and a salte scheme of the glorious gospel of the bussed God, as it is called, I Tim. i. 11. 2. Another way is, by mens wisdom. That noble power in man is quite dark, and dull, and blind, about Christ and his glory. It can do somewhat in its own sphere and orb; it can search into the earth and mount up to heaven, and can contemplate God's glorious works. Put it can never find out Jelus Christ nor tee his glory: 1 Cor. i. 20, 21. Hath not God made feelesh the wisdom of this world? for after that, in the wisdom of God, the world by wisdom knew not God, (that is, favingly), it pleased God by the foolishness of preaching to save them that believe. The gospel is the hidden wisdom of God in a mystery, 1 Cor. ii. 7; and the substance of it, Christ, is the main and greatest part of this mystery, t Tim. iii. 16. Both these are weak, vain means to know Christ by. 3. There is another way, that is not only unprofitable, but wicked; and that is the way of idolatry. And the whole of Popery is of this fort. They use many crastly devices to discover Christ's glory to the blind people. They have pictures of Christ, as on the breatts, as on the crofs, as in glory in heaven. But instead of making Christ's glory known to men, they, by these cursed devices, darken his glory, different the Lord Christ, crucify him afresh, and put him to an open Shame.

The word of God then is the only light in which Christ's glory shineth; and in this only light must we inquire into it. In other matters, there are many truths and things that are demonstrable by nature's light, as well as they are afferted in the word of God. But about Christ and his glory, nature's light, God's works of creation, and man's natural wifdom, can give no help; and therefore we should not call in their affistance. It is only God's word that can help in this great inquiry, and it we should use.

2. The only eye wherewith Christ and his glory can be feen, is the eye of faith. The only mental eve by which the spiritual glory of Christ can only be feen, is faith. Faith is fometimes opposed to fight, as fight is taken for full enjoyment, 2 Cor. v. 7.; and faith is sometimes expressed by fight, as faith is a real apprehending of its object; as Heb. xi. 1, 14, 27. 2 Cor. iii. 18. and iv. 18. and in innumerable places, both in the old and new testament. And this eye is fimply needful, even where the light of God's word thineth most. The Jews had the old testament; and yet knew not Christ, and saw no glory in him, as was foretold of them, Isa, lini. 2, 3. They saw him, and yet believed not, but hated him. So it is with all men to whom the gospel cometh, until faith be given. No eye but that of faith, can fee and take up Christ and his glory; for two causes. 1. Christ and his glosy is out of our fight now. And, 2. It is always beyond the reach of any power in us, but faith given by God. Christ's glory did once pass before mens eves; but none faw it but believers, John i. 14. and I John i. 1, 2. Could any thing but faith take up Christ's glory, as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth? Could any but a believer fee him, and call him eternal life, when he was made of no reputation? At the last day Christ and his glory will make a great appearance, when he comes in his glory, and fits on the throne of his glory, Matt. xxv. 31. But at that day (though all the nations be gathered together) there will be no faith, neither on his right nor left hand. What a strange word is this? and what a strange day will that be? All the faved will have no faith, nor have any need of it, nor use of it. Sight and love puts an end to their faith. And all the damned shall be no more unbelievers; for fight and fear of Christ's glory will eternally remove their unbelief ;

belief: Rev. i. 7. Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also that pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth (ball wail because of him : even so, Amen. But from Christ's going to heaven. till his return to judge the world, faith is the only eve that can favingly take up Christ and his glory.

2. This eye of faith is only of Christ's giving. No man is born with it; it grows up in no man by nature: no means, nor minister, nor any creature, can give it. It is only Christ's gift; it is by his Spirit, Eph. i. 17, 18.; it is the fruit of his eye-fulve, Rev. iii. 18. All men are darkness, till made light in the Lord, Eph. v. 8. There are two things always done by Christ together, when he works faith. 1. He manifests and reveals himself, and, 2. Gives an eye to fee him and his glory. No man can fee Christ by his own power, nor can he fee Christ against Christ's will: If he hide himself, who then can behold him! Job xxxiv. 29. If the fun thine, and the man have eyes, and them opened, he doth and must see, and never until then.

4. This eye of faith that Christ giveth, is of great advantage and use to them that receive it; as I sohn v. 20. And we know that the Son of God is come, (how do you know it?), and bath given us an understanding that we may know him that he is true; (that under-flauding, and the knowing of Christ, is faith): and we are in him that is true, even in his son Jefus Christ. This is the true God, and eternal life. I would name fome advantages that attend the gift of faith, to the praise of the giver, and the profit of the receivers of this gift.

 $i\tilde{\beta}$, The first life comes in this way. When Christ works faith in the heart, the new life is begun in the foul. The man that gets faith, and is made a believer, bath evertafting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life. John v. 24.: and this life is from the hearing of the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear, shall live, verse 25. Christ hath a voice to fend forth, that can make the born deaf hear, and the dead live. But how is it in the acting of this faith wrought by Christ? We have a notable place for this in John iii. 14, 15. And as Moses I sted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be listed up: that whosever welleveth in him, should not perish, but have evernal list. Our Lord is here teaching Nicodemus, a weak but honest beginner: and he teacheth him wifely, and teacheth him great things. He teacheth the corruption of nature, the absolute necessity of regeneration; that this regeneration is from the Holy Spirit of God, who therein works fovereignly, fecretly, and effectually. He then preacheth himself to him, as he that came down from heaven, and was in heaven, ver. 13. He did not understand Christ's doctrine of regeneration: Christ puts him to greater mysteries about his person, and his mission from heaven. We may think, that he that faid about the former, How can these things be? might be more puzzled to know how Christ was to save sinners, and how they were to use him for falvation. Both these Christ teacheth him in ver. 14, 15. and more fully afterwards in that chapter to ver-22. And this he doth by a type, that no Israelite was ignorant of, tho' few masters in Israel did rightly understand it. The plain and full sense of it is this : As Moses (at God's command and appointment lifted up the brazen ferpent in the wilderness, that every Ifraelite flung by the fiery ferpents, might look to it and live, as in Numb. xxi. 6,--9.; so Christ, the Son of man is lifted up upon the cross, that every sinner flung by fin, and the curfe of God's law, might look to him by faith, and live for ever. The Ifraelites were to use the lifted-up serpent, by looking on it, as the only ordinance of God for their healing; and were to use neither salve nor plaister for the fiery serpent's deadly flings. So the flung finner must use a crucified Christ, as the only ordinance of God for life, Vol. II.

and eternal life; and that life comes to him only by

adly, All the believers growth and increase in grace and life, is by believing beholding of the grace and glory of Christ. When the apostle is exhorting to growth in grace, as the fure prefervative against apo-Stafy, 2 Peter iii. 18. he adds, Grow in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. As if he had faid, "Ir you would grow in grace, you must also grow in the knowledge of Christ." Yea, when he is speaking of the greatest attainments in grace, 2 Pet. i. 8. he tells this is the fruit of them; They make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jefus Chrift. But more directly Paul teacheth us, how faith advanceth the Christian in his new life; 2 Cor. iii. 18. But we all with open face, beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord. We all: it is not only I Paul, whom you may think fingularly priviledged; but all we, who, under the dispensation of the gospel, have had the vail taken off our hearts and eyes, we all behold the same glory of Christ, and with the same fort of fruit. Though we do not all behold it in the same clearness and brightness, nor with the same measure of fruit; yet all that do truly behold his glory, are truly made comformable to him. If no likeness to Christ's image be wrought in you, you make it to be juffly suspected, that it is either not the right Lord you behild, or not the right eye you behold him with, or that it is not a right glass you behold him in. For where all three are right, the fruit of likeness to Christ never faileth.

adly, All the peace, and comfort, and joy of heart, which believers have in this life, come in by believing beholding of Christ, and of his grace and glory. Joy and peace fills the heart by believing, Rom. xv. 13. What can distress a believer when Christ's glory is feen? and what can quiet his heart, when a dark cloud and vail is on his glosy? No storm can be on a Christian, and no fear can disquiet him so, but that word spoke with Christ's power will comfort, Matth. xiv. 27. Be of good cheer, it is I, be not afraid. Thus were they made to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory, who loved him, and believed on him they had not feen, 1 Peter i 8.

So much for this fourth thing, That the eye of faith and its exercise is of great advantage to a Chrisrian.

5. The beholding of the glory of Christ by the eye of faith, is the greatest and surest test of mens state that can be. They that have it, are true Christisans; for thus are they made fuch; as I John v. 20. They that never faw Christ's glory, remain still in the pit of condemned nature, where darkness and death do rule.

6. and lastly, The beholding of Christ's glory by faith, as it is revealed in the gospel, is a good help to understand what the beholding of his glory in heaven is: for it is the same Christ, the same glory of Christ, that is beheld in earth and in heaven. Only this glory shines in another manner in heaven, and is beheld with another and higher eye than faith; though faith is the best eye, and the gospel the best glass, on earth. On this I would shew how impossible it is, that an unbeliever that never faw Christ's glory in the gospel, can have any right apprehension of the beholding his glory in heaven.

1/1, Consider what heaven is, The Lord of it tells us, it is in being with him where he is. Now, that man that never knew what Christ's company on earth is, can never know what his company in heaven is. Speak to him of heaven, as a state of rest and happiness, where no croffes, nor death, nor trouble, can be; this the natural man can know and relish. But Christ's true heaven, and Christ's picture of it in the word, are as dark and disgustful to an unbeliever, as Christ's yoke and burthen is. But to a believer, whom the Lord hath chosen, and caused to approach to him, Pial. lxv. 4.; who hath been oft made to say, Pfalm, Ixxiii. 28. It is good for me to draw near to God; and can fay, as I John i. 3. Truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ: to such, I say, being with Christ where he is, hath another light in his mind, and another gust in his heart.

2dly, The work of heaven, to behold Christ's glory cannot be understood by an unbeliever, no more than a born blind man can know what pleafure and profit is in beholding the glory and light of the fun. And if fuch would and could fearch their hearts, they would find; and if they were ingenuous, they would own the truth, (as some of them in blasphemy do say), that the gospel-discovery of heaven is dark and dis-gustful to them; they neither know it nor love it. It is hid from their blinded eyes, and cross to their car-

adly, They know not the title to heaven; how a man comes by a right to it, and enters into the possession of it. And that is, by free grace in Jesus Christ. And this is no small part of Christ's glory, and of believers happiness, that it is so. This title is only to be perceived by faith. The same grace that we owe the forgiveness of fin to, we owe the possessing of glory to, Acts xxvi. 18. By that same grace that we are welcomed to Christ's house of grace on earth, Rom. v. 2. by the fame grace we are welcomed into Christ's house of glory above. It is grace brought to us, I Peter i. 12.; it is the mercy of our Lord Fefus Christ unto eternal life, Jude, ver. 21. But an unbeliever, who hath no knowledge nor relish of this bleffed tenure to glory by free grace, what fit and right thoughts can be have of heaven? All men are by nature ignorant of the true heaven, of the true way to it, of the true work and blis in it, and of the only tile to it, and tenure of it; and therefore need what the apostle prays for in Eph. i. 17, 18, 19.

APPLI-

APPLICATION. Although you may think it preposterous, to speak any thing in application, before we enter upon the doctrine itself; yet, as what hath been faid, is but introductory to what I intend (if the Lord will) further to speak on this great subject, fo what I fay now in application, shall be accordingly managed.

The text we have before us, is about the beholding of Christ's glory in heaven. I have been shewing you, that it is simply necessary to any right understanding of this great blise, that a man do know in his experience fomewhat of the beholding of Christ's glory by faith in this life. Without this, no words that men can speak about this, can be understeod by natural men: 1 Cor. ii. 14. For the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him: neither can be know them, for they are spiritually discerned. I may truly fay, that no natural man doth, or can understand this verse. It is grievous and shameful, to see and read what blundering confused work many wife and learned men, but destitute of that mind and Spirit of Christ that led Paul in writing of it, make of this verse; when it is plain and bright, though deep, to every ordinary Christian. Now, the glory of Christ, and the beholding of it, are of the deepest of the deep things of God, ver. 10. How then can a natural man receive them, know them, or different hem? He is without that spiritual faculty by which only they can be rightly entertained. It is a dangerous and hurtful practice to the church of God, and to the fools of men, and to the truths of God, (and not a few are guilty of it, and many fmart by it), for men to endeavour to bring down the deep mysteries of the gospel unto the sense and gust of a natural unrenewed man. It is fure, that they that teach, should teach plainly; and they that write, should make the vision plain, that he may run that readeth it, Hab. ii. 2.. But they must still speak, or write, as the oracles of God.

God, 1 Pet. iv. 11. and as flewards of the mysteries of God, 1 Cor. iv. 1. If, as it is undoubted, we cannot bring up the natural man's understanding unto the deep things of God; we must not essay to bring down the depths of God unto their natural blindness. This were to degrade the things of the Spirit of God, and to delude the same. But let us study to declare God's mind in his word, as plainly as we can, to natural men that hear us; and withal tell them, that the things themselves, of which we speak as plainly as we can, are beyond their reach; that they may know that the things of God are deep, and they themselves are blind, till the Spirit of Christ open the understanding, and open the scriptures unto them; as he did to his disciples, Luke xxiv. 32. and 45.

My work at this time thall be, to offer you fome helps to try yourfelves, and to find this out, Whether ever you have beheld the glory of Christ in the gospel? You have the gospel-glass, and most of you think you have the eye of faith also. My question that I put your consciences, is, Have you seen his glory in the gospel by faith? It you have, then you will find three things.

1. Where-ever Christ's glory is seen by faith, it is always seen as singular, transcendent, and matchless. So it is in itself, and so it is seen by all that do behold it. Paul calls his knowledge of Christ, the excellency of the knowledge of Jejus Christ my Lord, Phil. iii. 8. And that you may not think that he thought he had a great deal of it, and that you might know that Paul is rather commending Christ's excellency, than the measure of his attainments in the knowledge of Christ; he tells us in ver. 10,---14. how small an opinion he had of what he had attained, in respect of what he wanted, and followed, and pressed after. If ever you had a true view of Christ's glory, you will judge, that there is no glory like it. What you formerly thought glorious, you will then say of it, as a Cor. iii. 10. For even that which was made made glorious, had no glory in this respect, because of the glory that excelleth. And the aposlle is there speaking of the most outwardly glorious appearance that ever God made in the world, in giving the law. And as he faith again, of that that is most glorious in the eyes of one that knows not Christ, his own righteousness, in Phil. iii. 8, 9. he calls it, and all things else, los and dung, compared with Christ. And so will every man that seeth Christ with any thing of Paul's eye. For illustration: Suppose a man blind from the womb, had his eye-fight given him by God, as it were in John ix.; suppose that his fight were given him in the night, and in the house, he would doubtless wonder at the light of candles; but if he went abroad, and faw the stars in the firmament, or if the moon did thine, this would be more glorious still: yet when the morning dawneth, and when the fun rifeth and shineth, would not the man think, "Surely I never faw such a glorious "light before?" Fire and candles on earth, and moon and stars in heaven, have no such light as the fun. So will it be unto them to whom the Sun of Righteoufness ariseth with healing in his wings, Mal. iv. 2. with falvation in his beams. He will fay, " No " glory like Christ's glory, no man like him; no an-" gel, no creature, like him." If Christ's glory hath not difgraced all other glory fave his own, you have either feen little of it, or none at all.

2. When the glory of Christ is seen by faith, defires of feeing more of it rife in the heart. What the preacher faith in general about feeing in Eccl: i. 8. The eye is not fatisfied with feeing, is justly applicable to this spiritual eye in beholding Christ's glory. It is not fatisfied, nor ever will, till the believer is with Christ where he is, and beholds his glory there. Paul had many and fingular views of Christ's glory, and yet is studying Christ still. If you knew Christ as well as Paul did, you would be of his mind; yes, if you have any right beholding of his glory, you will fill define more.

3. He that beholds Christ's glory truly, he perceives his own darkness and blindness, and is humbled thereby. You may think this a strange mark; but it is a sure one. It is strange, but most true, that an unbeliever, who bath never heard Christ's voice, nor feen his shape, (as Christ faith to the Jews concerning his Father, John v. 27.), may, and many of them do think, that they know Christ, and many fay, as Hof. viii. 2. My God, we know thee; "My "Saviour, I know thee;" when a true beholder of Christ's glory thinks, that he doth not know him at all, or next to nothing. And those thoughts are proofs, that the one is quite ignorant of Christ, and that the other is begun to know him. What the apostle saith, 1 Cor. viii. 2. If any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know, holds good specially in the knowledge of Christ. A proud conceit of a man's knowing Christ, is a demonstration that the man never faw his glory. Even as if a man should fay, "I have seen the sun " in his noon-day glory, and I can stare upon it stea-"dily." Would not any man think, that either this man hath not right eyes, or that he hath not feen the right fun, but only a picture of it, that hath or can have nothing of the true fun's light, and heat, and influence; or that the man lyeth grossly? for all know, that the plory of the fun is too great and bright for the sharpest and strongest eye. When a man from the top of a high mountain looks round about him, he can fee many miles, and many things, If this man have high thoughts of his eyes and fight, you cure him, or he cures himfelf, of that fancy, by trying his fight with the fun; then he feeth what a disproportionate faculty his eye is to this glorious object. So is it with men when they approach Christ's glory; then their darkness and blindness is discovered. As in his light we fee light, Pfal, xxxvi. 9. fo by and in this light we fee our own darkness. A very wife and good man faid, in Prov. xxx. 2, 3, 4. Surely I am more brutish than any man, and have not the understanding of a man. I neither learned wisdom, nor have (or know) the knowledge of the holy .-- What is his name, and what is his fon's name, if thou canst tell? It is impossible, that any ray and beam of Christ's glory can be rightly taken up by the eye of faith, but the beholder of it is humbled by the fight of it. And the brighter the discovery be, the more humble will it make the man to be. Persect humility is only in heaven, where the perfect discovery of Christ's glory is made by him, and got by the inhabitants. What said Isaiah, when he saw his glory, and spake of him, John xii. 41.? Wo is me, for I am undone, Isa. vi. 5. Why undone? Because I am unclean, and have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. What did the beloved disciple when he had a vision of Christ's glory? When I faw him, I fell at his feet as dead; and he might have died quite at the fight, unless Christ had laid his right hand upon him, and spoke comfortably to him, Rev. i. 17, 18. What was the fruit of Job's feeing of the Lord with the feeing of the eye, far beyond all he had heard by the hearing of the ear? Was not this the fruit and effect of it, Wherefore I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes? Job xlii. 5, 6. Thus will it be with you, if you obtain any true discoveries of Christ's glory.

SERMON IX.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the soundation of the world.

THERE is no greater theme in earth, nor in heaven, than the glory of Christ. There is no higher enjoyment here, nor above, than the beholding of this glory. Yet all the Lord's chosen shall surely partake of it, for here Christ prays for it. In explaining Christ's words in his prayer for that bleffing, I proposed to speak to two things: What is Christ's glory; and, What is the beholding of it.

Before I enter upon either of them, there are yet three things I would observe from the connection and scope of these words, I will that they be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory which thou baft given me.

Obs. 1. Christ's presence, and his people's beholding of his glory, go still together. So it is on earth, so it is in heaven. When is it that a man begins to see any of Christ's glory, but when he is drawn to Christ's when Christ draws near to him, and maniso's himself to him? Time was when Paul saw nothing of Christ's glory; he heard of him, and hated him, and proceduled him: but all this was from his ignorance and unbelief, 1 Tim. ii. 13. When he was first charged by Christ for his evil way, Acts ix. 4, 5. no wonder that his first word was, Who art thou Lord? "I do" not know thee, I never knew that I did thee any "wrong."

" wrong." But when once Christ reveals himself unto him, immediately he faw Christ's glory, and made it his all. So it is with all natural men, till Christ draw near to them, and bring them near to him favingly: Christ bath no form or comeliness; and when they see (or hear of) him, there is no beauty that they should desire him, Isa. liii. 2. This is as true of them that hear of, and see Christ crucified in the gospellight, Gal. iii. 1. as of the Jews that faw his humb-Led state on earth. They wonder what men see in Jesus Christ; what glory in him they behold by saith; what believers mean, when they fay, as Cant. iv. 16. His mouth is most fweet; yea, he is altogether lovely. This is my beloved, and this is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem. If you had ever heard his voice, or feen his face, you would know him from all the men on earth, or gods in heaven, (if I may fay so). But, alas! there are many that bear the name of Christians, (and God knows well, and men may know pretty well also, how little they deserve that name), that never saw so much glory and desirableness in Jesus Christ, as they see in a heap of the white and yellow dust of the earth. They cannot afford a good word or thought to the Jews, (and justly), who did prefer Barabbas to Christ, when themselves daily do the like, in preferring the fatisfying of their vile lusts unto the enjoyment of Christ's company. And what the Jews did, they do, from the same cause, (and a sad and finful one it is). They neither of them did, or do fee any thing of Christ's glory. He is far from them, they know him not, I Cor. ii. 8.; he hath noc manifested himself unto them. This worth appears alfo, as in the beginning, so in the progress of Christianity. If the Christian grows in grace, it is also in the knowledge of Christ, 2 Pet. iii. 18. If the new creature grows, it is by and under the beams and shinings of the Sun of Righteoufness, Mal iv. 2. All gospel institutions are for this end, (and when blessed, reach it), Eph. iv. 13. Till we all come in (or into) the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ. Every Christian's experience bears witness to this. Do you not sometimes fee more of Christ's glory than at other times? Is not the light brighter, and your faith more quick and active? And when is it so, but when Christ draws nearer to you, and you are brought nearer to him, than usually? But for such poor creatures, that know nothing of Christ's presence with, or absence from them, fave in and by his ordinances and providences, (in which also a true believer may find Christ's special presence, though others do not, nor can); I say not, that fuch do fee more of Christ's slory, but rather that they never faw any of it. They are blind, and cannot jee afar off, 2 Pet. i. 9. Christ is far trom them, and they from him: he hath not yet looked on them in love, nor have they looked on him by faith. But for true Christians, if you should ask the question, When did you see most of Christ's glory? all would answer, That though it be little that ever they did behold of it, yet the best fight ever they had, was when he drew nearest to them; then he displayed his glory, and then they beheld it. And it may be that he did to, and they found it, when they were in the deep dungeon, in darkness and distress. No cafe is a believer brought into, but Christ's love will visit him in it; and the darker the place be, his funshine is both the more needful, and the more gloricus: Micah. vii. 8. When I fit in darknefs, the Lord Shall be a light unto me. Not only will he bring me forth to the light, and I shall behold his righteonines, as ver. 9.; but when, and while I fit in darknets, the Lord will be a light to me; and enlighten my darkness, as David fings by faith, Pfal. xviii. 28. and thoufands have felt it. So that it is undoubted, that most of Christ's glory is seen when he is nearest his people.

Thus also it is in the state of faints in heaven. They are brought near to Christ: they are with him where he is, and therefore behold his glory, and all above what we can conceive. Christians labour here under many humbling things within and without. They would fain fee more of Christ's glory; they pray as Moses did, Exod. xxxiii, 18. I beseech thee shew me thy glory. But yet they cannot behold it as fain they would. Why? Because they cannot be so near to Christ as they would; and he will not draw so near to them as they would, while they are where they are. and not yet where he is. The greatest nearness to Christ, and the greatest visions of his glory, are both referved for his people, when they shall postess the inheritance of the faints in light, Col. i. 12.

Obf. 2. Our Lord Jefus Christ is truly willing that his glory should be beheld by his people. He prays here for it in an extraordinary manner, I will it. Christ is a great deal better pleafed, and more defirous, that his glory should be beheld by his people, than they are either willing or able to behold it. He hath a good mind to be looked upon, when he fpeaks fo in Ifa. xlv. 22. Look unto me, and be ye faved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else; a just God and a Saviour, ver. 21. (None can fave a finner, but a God. A mere man-faviour can fave no finner: and there is no God-saviour, but our Lord Jefus Christ, who is over all, God bieffed for ever, Rom. ix. 5.). Christ is here calling men to look on him for selvation. Look to Christ, and you will see salvation in his heart and eye, and falvation will dart in upon your heart and foul. The brazen ferpent was fet up to be looked on by Ifrael. Though it could not speak, it could heal by God's ordinance. But the antitype, Jefus Chrift, can both heal and speak; and the power of his voice can, and always doth give eyes to the man, and falvation by looking. It makes the dead both to hear, and live, John v. 25. Again, in Islaiah lxv. 1. he faith, Behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name. Some quarrellers may fay, If Christ be so willing to have his glory of

be beheld by men, why doth he not display his glory. and give all men eyes to fee it by? I answer, That though this cavil favours of an ungodly, unhumbled heart; yet there are a few things that may flop such mouths. 1. It is a wonder of grace that he doth fo to any: and they all admire it that do partake of it. Thomas feems to admire it, John xiv. 22. It were more hopeful work, and futer for fuch, to admire that free grace falls on any, than to musicur and grumble that it passed by so many. 2. Would you have this great bleffing? have you fought it humbly and earneftly? have you turned his gracious call and promise into an earnest prayer? He faith to you, Look to me, and be thou faved; answer it, Lord, look on me, and fave me. A better man than any of us prayed fo, Polen exix. 132. Look thou upon me, and be merciful unto me, as thou ufest to do unto those that love thy nime: and to the fame purpose more largely in Pfalm cvi. 4, 5. Must not that man be both wicked and unrealonable, that quarrels with God for not giving that grace that himself is unwilling to receive, is careleft to fk, and fl. ives against with all his might? But nothing will fully stop the mouths of cavillers against free grace, but either some taste of this grace, or the i gment of the last day, Out of their own mouth they shall be judged by the Lord, Luke xix. 22.

But even Christians themselves are apt to fay, That if Christ be so willing to have his glory to be beheld Ly his people, why then doth he stand to far off? why down he nide himself so long? why do I pray, and am not heard? If he would as earnestly have it beheld, as I would fain behold it, why is this distance and darkness so long continued? We have many such complaints from eminent faints in the word, and they are too common in all times. We experience more the tremblings of unbelief in fcripture-faints, than the vigour of their faith. The infirmities of faints are recorded in the word for our humbling and warning; and their graces for our imitation and encouragement.

Unto fuch honest complainers I would fav. 1. That this mood cometh on you from the remnants of that natural enmity to the glory of his grace; which enmity, though it was subdued in its power in you, in the day of his power on you, yet hath its roots under ground, and doth fometimes spring up and trouble you. There is no evil perfectly rooted out of a fance tified man in this life, nor no grace planted in him that is perfect. 2. That the fovereignty of his grace appears as much in the times and measures of its difpenfation, as in its being given at first to the sinner that never got any before. Let all believers remember that they are still under the dominion of the same free grace that at first subdued them to Christ. The greatest receivers of Christ's grace are not masters of it, but subjects and receivers. They must not say, as Jer. ii. 31. We are lords, we will come no more unto thee. The richest faint must be, and is a humble beggar at grace's door all his days; and Christ is the Lord of the house, and the dispenser of the alms: and as the alms is too good not to be patiently waited for fo the Lord is too good and too great to be quarrelled with: and never did a believer get any good by complaining of him. Complain to him, and pray, and afk largely, but still with faith and patience. Knock at his door; but stay, and bless him, that ever he gave you any crumb of his grace. Mix your prayers for new wanted grace, with praises for his old dispensed grace. Christ loves you, and hath proved it; believe it, blefs him for it, and wait for his renewing his love to you; and in due time you will find, that he will not only answer, but outdo all your defires to him, and all your expectations from him.

Obs. 3. The beholding of Christ's glory in heaven, is the main part of the happiness of his people in it. So Christ expressed it, (as I glanced at it before), as if he would explain what his people thould get and do, when they are where he is; they shall behold his glory. This is that true beatistic vision, that happy-

making fight, that so many of the schoolmen (generally better philosophers than divines) do talk and write of. But poorly must all such talk and think of it, that are unacquainted with Christ and his grace in their own hearts. But this is fure, and plainly revealed, that the happiness of the glorified stands and flourishesh to eternity in the beholding of Christ's glory. The object is most excellent. The eye which they behold him with, and the light they behold him in are rare and fingular. (No fuch eyes, and no fuch light on earth, or in the lower created heavens). And the fruits of this beholding this his glory in this bleffed way, are inexpressible. There are two eyes that believers behold Christ's glory with; faith and sight. It is the fame glory of the fame Jefus that is feen; it is the fame man that feeth his glory: but how vastly different are these two eyes, and the two beholdings! The one is for this life, the other for the other life. The glory of Christ, as it shineth in heaven, is not for the eye of faith. Faith may take it up in the promise, and believe and wait for it; but the glory of Christ in heaven is far above the eye of faith, Rom. viii. 24, 25. And, on the other hand, the glory of Christ, as it shineth in the gospel, and as seen by faith, is not for sight, and is unspeakably below it. For as needful and useful as faith is now to believers, yet when they come to the end of their faith, the fal-vation of their feul, 1 Peter i. 9. they have no more to do with it. There is no need of the thield of faith, when the war is ended, and the foldier of faith is made more than a conqueror, through Christ that loved him, Rom. viii. 37. Pictures of Christ, and love-letters from him, and love-tokens, (the glory of the gofpel, and the necessary food of faith), are no more needed when the bleffed beloved is present and enjoyed.

I. I would now come to speak of the first thing, the glory of Christ. And it is with reverence and godly fear that I should speak, and you should hear, of this great and awful theme. And what I mean to fay of it, shall be under these two heads; t. The glory of Christ as he represents God unto us: 2. His glory as he reprefents us unto God: As he is God's only true reprefentative to his church; and as he is the only representative of his church unto God. Christ is both, and great is his glory in both. And this glory

I would foberly speak of. To begin with the firft head, That Christ is the only representative of God unto his church: And great is his glory therein. And this glory of Chrift is beheld by faith now, and to eternity by fight. There are many words about this, especially in the new reftament, (where the old testament vail on Christ's glory is taken away; and yet the new tostament light will itself evanish also, when the Lord returns in his glory, and hath his church with him where he is). I shall pame a few of them. Col. i. 15. he is called the image of the invisible God. Heb. i. 3. he is the bright. ness of his glory, and the express image of his person. Who is the image? He that upholdeth all things by the word of his power; who, when he had by himself purged our fins, fat down on the right hand of the Majelty on high. Whose glory's brightness is he? whose person's character bears he? God the Father's, who spake in the old testament times by the prophets, and in the new testament times by his Son, ver. 1, 2. So in 2 Cor. iv. 6. The light of the knowledge of the glory of God Shineth in the face (or person) of Fesus Christ. All deep words, and deep matter in them.

To prepare our way to enter on this theme, there are three things I would lay before you.

1. That a right and found knowledge of God is fimply and absolutely necessary unto true happiness, in this and in the other world. Our Lord in this chapter, ver. 3. saith, And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast fent. And I John v. 20. speaking Vol. II.

of Christ as known, the aposlle faith, This is the true Go.l, and eternal life. None know the true God, none can come by eternal life, but they that know Christ. No faith, love, worship, or obedience, can be performed and afted by him that knows not God. The Athenian inscription, To the unknown God, was ridiculous, but furtable enough for blind idoluters. This truth, of the necessity of the knowledge of God, in order to the pleasing and enjoying of him, and of his favour is ingraven on mens hearts by nature.

2. God in himfelf, and absolutely considered, is unknowable by men in this life, (to carry it no further row), uplefs he some way manifest himself to us. To this that feems to refer in 1 Tim. vi 16. He dwelleth in light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath feen, nor can fee. Whatfoever doth make manifest, is light, Eph. v. 13. Yet divine light is a covering of God, Pfalm civ. 1, 2. that no creature can fee through; John i. 18. No man hath feen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosen of the Father, he hath declared him. This with stands on three foundations. 1. The greatness of God, and of his glory. 2. The shortness of mens reach as creatures. And, 3. The corruption of their minds as finners: Eph. iv. 18. Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God, through the ignorance that is in them, because of the blindhess of their heart. A dreadful, but true picture of that dungeon that all men by nature are born in, and mult live and die in, and go through it, and from it, into outer darkness. In what way God did, and doth manited himself and his glory unto the holy angels, and how they behold him, is quite hid from us. Though our Lord tells us, that in heaven they do always behold the face of my Father which is in heaven, Matth. xviii. 20.; yet what this is, we know no more than we do that in Rev. xxii. 4. of the triumphant church that shall see his face. To come a little lower, and to fpeak

focak of the first man who was made a little lower than the angels: This also is beyond our understanding how God did manifest himself unto him, and how he beheld God's glory: though we are fare that both were. But when fin came in, then plainly the minds of all men are so defiled and darkened, that there is a necessity that they must be all taught of God that do know the Lord; and blessed be his name, that he hath promised this in the new covenant, and fulfils it to the heirs of promise, as they are called in Heb. vi. 17. John vi. 45. Jer. xxxi. 32, 33, 34. Yet, when the faving knowledge of God and faith are given, such is the weakness of this eye, that, on any special appearance of the glory of God, fear and amazement feizeth on their hearts. Whence that faying, fo usual in old times, Judges xiii. 22. We Shall furely die, because we have seen God; though God appeared in mercy to Manoah and his wife, and with a promise of a fon to them, and a judge and faviour to Ifrael. Jacob had wrestled and prevailed with the angel, and was bleffed by him: yet he faith with thankfulness and wonder, I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved, Gen. xxxii. 30. What made Isaiah to say, on his seeing of God's glory, Wo is me. I am undone, chap. vi. 5.? Did God threaten him, did God smite him? No; but, Mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. "I have feen his glory, and " his spotless holiness hath been proclaimed in my "ears. Thereby I fee, that my own uncleanness, " and the uncleanness of others I dwell amongst, doth " greatly endanger me."

3. Notwithstanding all this depth of God's glory, and darkness in all mens minds by nature, since the sall of Adam; yet all men, in all ages, have been seeking out, and studying, and making to themselves, some representations of God. They know that there is a God; they quickly come to know that this God is out of their sight; and, on a little deeper thinking, they know that this invisible God is also beyond the reach of their minds and thoughts. Is there a curious student of God's works of creation, that findeth not fomething in the smallest of his creatures, that our understanding cannot find out? What must we think of the Former of all things? Can any find out God to perfection? lob xi. 7. A conviction of this depth in God, and darkness in man, seemeth to have been declared in the infeription on the altar at Athens, Acts xvii. 22. This Paul takes for his text, (if I may fo fay), and makes an excellent fermon upon it. conviction that is in mens hearts, of the depth of God, and of the darkness in themselves, hath bred a desire in all men to know fomewhat more of God than they do, that they may pleafe, and ferve, and worship him. and obtain his favour. And this darkness and defire have brought forth two great plagues on the world, that are like to last as long as the world lasts, and as long as finners live in it; two reprefentations of God devised by men.

1/1, The first way of mens studying to represent God unto themselves, is the more fine way of the better fort of the Heathens, and their philosophers. And that was, by framing thoughts, ideas, and contemplations of God, from the light of nature, and exercife of their reason. This way the apossile takes no-tice of, as a poor way, and unprofitable, Rom. i. 20. That philosopher spoke like a divine, who, when he was asked by his prince, What God was? defired a day's time to think on it. When that was granted, and done, he asked two days time to think on the question. After the two days, he asked four days. And when the king wondered at his delays, he gave this true and ingenuous answer: "The more I think " of God, the less can I tell what he is." And this will be the fure effect of all that, without the light of God's word and Spirit, do bufy themselves to frame representations of God himself in their minds. The heathens have indeed spoke and wrote many good thoughts of fome of the divine attributes, which may be read with profit; and some do read them with wonder, how they came by fuch thoughts; and many have thought, that some of these philosophers might have seen some part of the Old Testament scriptures. Paul quotes one of them at Athens, A&s xvii. 28. whom he calls one of their own poets; and another in Tit. i. 12. whom he calls a prophet of their own: yet what he quotes of this last, is a complete Greek verse of poefy; and the other but a half-verse. But their philosophers taught and wrote, both in profe or verse. Yet though we who have the light of God's word, may make good use of their sparks of nature's light; we must not thence think, that they by their wisdom did know God favingly; contrary to 1 Cor. i. 21. The world by wifdom knew not God. An ungrounded charity to the falvation of the Heathen. that never knew God in Christ, is a reflection on the gospel of Christ. And if men will coin a new gospel. and a way of faving finnners, by Jesus Christ, as only preached to the Heathen, by fun, moon, and stars. contrary to the word of God, John. xiv. 6. and xvii. 2. Eph. ii. 12. Acts iv. 11, 12. do you know and remember, that it is false coin. And mens coining of another way to God but by his Son Jesus Christ, revealed in and by the gospel, is treason against the Majesty of heaven; and though it may deceive men on earth, it will never pass as current in heaven.

2dly, The other way of mens representing God unto themselves, is by images and outward representions of God. An old abomination. It is like it was not before the deluge: for it is not named; but only violence, and lusts, and general corruption in manners, are given as the procuring causes of God's destroying the world by water. Bisles, the world was but lately created, and the glory of the Creator stared every man in the face; and that Mathusalem, who died a little before the flood, had lived some hundreds of years, while the first man, Adam, lived-

Befides

Besides, Enoch's prophecy, cited by Jude, ver. 14, 15. makes no mention of idolatry. But however it was before the flood, idolatry came quickly into the world afterwards, and is like to continue, till it be purged by fire. Now, what is idolarry? and whence is it that the world is so mad upon idols, Jer. 1, 28.? Idolatry is the worshipping of the true God by and under any image or representation of God, devised by mens heads, or framed by mens hands. The first command of the moral law forbids the having and worthipping of any, but the true God. The fecond command forbids the making of any refemblance or image of God, and worshipping of God by it. Divine worship is that glory that God will not give to another, neither his praise to graven images, Ita xlii 8.; and that because he is a jealous God. Worship is God's throne in the world of angels and men; and he will admit of no rival or partner in it. The idolaters pretend that they only honour God, and give no divine glory to the image: but the Lord calls worshipping him by an image, a worshipping of the creature more than the Creator, Rom. i. 25. Now, how comes in idolatry into the world? And what keeps it up in it, fince all men by their reason think, as Paul faith, all ought to think, that the Godhead is not like unto gold, or filver, or stone graven by a:t or man's dewice? Acts xvii. 29. The true cause of this sin's rise and reign in the world, is this. I' men by nature know there is a God that made the world, and that they ought to worship him; but who he is, and what is pleasing worship to this God, they know not. They know, that if there be a God, he must not be like any creature in heaven or earth. The distance betwixt God and creatures, is, in its greatness, known only to him that can comprehend his own glorious majefly, and the emptiness of nothing creatures. And therefore we see how he speaks in Isa. xl. 17. All nations before him are as nothing, (that is, pretty lo ; but he yet lays them lower), and they are counted to bim him lefs than nothing, and vanity. To whom then will you liken God? ver. 13. But though God only can comprehend the greatness of this diffance hetwixt Gcd and creatures; yet all men do apprehend. that it is, and must be great. Then, when reason tells them, that this God that made all things in time. is eternal; that he is immense and unsearchable in all perfections; that he is a Spirit; every one of thefe names of God do stun and puzzle the man's understanding; so that all must say, as one did, Job XXXVII. 23. Touching the Almighty, we cannot find him out. So that, in this confusion and darkness, they must (as they did, John iv. 22.) worship they know not what; and because they know not God, so as to glorify him as God, &c. they change the glory of the uncorruptible God, into an image made like unto a corruptible man, &c. Rom. i. 2, 22, 23. Man in his ignorance and fiofulness, first thinks that God is such an one as himfelf, Pfal. 1. 22.; and then thinks any representation of God may ferve. And indeed the meanest creeping thing is an image too good for fuch a god. A god altogether like a finner, is no other than the god of this world, the devil, 2 Cor. iv. 4. See the first gross idolatry among Ifrael in the wilderness, Exed. xxxii. They had heard the fiery law proclaimed dreadfully, but about forty days before; and idolatry specially prohibited and threatened in that law: yet they had hardly the dread of that voice our of their ears, before their hearts are turned ande, their hands bufied in making an idol, and they on their knees worshipping it. In ver. 1. they say, Up, and make us gods to go before us. What a poor God is he that is of man's making? All Ifrael could not make one fly or guat; yet they are for God-making. When they had their golden calf, they said, ver 4. Theje be thy gods, O Ifrael, which brought you out of the land of Egypt. Did they not know, that, a few weeks before, they had brought that gott out of the land of Egypt, of which they had now made their idel ?

idol? Did they not know, that this idol could no more go one step before, nor with them, nor after them, than a floue? And doubtless they meant to carry it, if Mofes had not made them to destroy it, and drink it, ver. 20. But they had brought up their idolatrous hearts out of the land of Egypt, Ezek. xxiii. 3, 8, 19.; and they thought this a fit representation of the true God; and therefore preclimation is made of a feast to-morrow, to the Lord, to Jehovah, Exod. xxxii. 5. As long as God is not known by his word and Spirit, no man is fecured from falling into idolarry. Let us look into the Antichristian state; and there any Christian may see, that the whole of their worship, from the beginning to the end, is a mere mais of idolatry, and wicked reprefentations of God. Their hearts, their houses, their streets, and highways, their temples, are all filled with idols: many falle gods, as angels and faints; many wicked reprefentations even of the divine persons, Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Justly may it be called, as old Babylon was, a land of graven images, Jer. 1. 38. The old Pagan, and the new Antichristian Rome, equally full of idols; only with difference in names. Heathen names laid afide, and Christian names taken up in their rooms: but the idols the fame, and the idolatry the fame; with the addition of a god made of bread, to be first made, then worshipped, and then eat. An abomination enough to make the natural conscience of a cappibal to keck at.

To conclude this head, about worshipping of God by images, I would fay only, that it is a fin as plainly forbid in God's word as any fin whatfoever; as fearfully punished as any fin: that it is a fin that both rifeth from unworthy thoughts of God, and increafeth these unworthy thoughts. It stupises men, and takes away their reason: Ifa. xliv. 20. He (the idolater) feedeth of ashes: a deceived heart hath turned him aside, that he cannot deliver his own foul, nor fay, Is there not a lye in my right hand? But they that make them, are like unto them; fo is every one that trusteth in them. Pfal. cxv. 8. The idol, and the idolater, are much alike. The idol is void of all natural life and fenfe, and the idolater is as void of all foiritual life and fense. Hath that man the foul and spirit of a man in him; hath he any fente of the majesty of the true and living God, who can call a log of wood, or a bit of bread, a god, and worship it? I have faid the more of idolatry, because it is the sin most dishonourable to God, most destructive to the souls of men, and a dreadful flumbling block to the Jews and Turks, who do justly abhor idols, for as blind and sotiss as otherwise they be. Nor can any man wonder that they stumble at the name of Christianity, when they fee the greatest part of such as profess that name, as much given to idolatry, as ever the Heathen were, either before or fince Christ came into the world. This sin is also a disgrace to mankind, and a shameful defacing of that image of God in which he was first made; when a man so debaseth himself even unto hell, (Isa. Ivii. 9.), as to worship what either his own or other mens hands have made. Yet this sin of idolatry is a demonstration, that the light of nature, and the notion of God, (notwithstanding all the weakness, darkness, and corruption mixed with it in fallen man), is deeply and strongly rooted in mens hearts, that they will rather take up with any thing for a God, yea, make a God to themselves, rather than have none. It is no rare thing, to fee an idolatrous prince, who is as proud as Lucifer, and who faith in his heart as he did, Ifa. xiv. 12, 13, 14.; and who hath pride and ambition enough to defire to be lord of the whole earth: yet fuch a wretch as this, who is not worthy to live among his fellow-mortals, will humble himself, and kneel before a proud priest, confess his fins to him, and ask, and receive pardou from him, as from a God, and worthip the work of the meanest of his subjects hands. This was the proud boast in the last age, of a confessor to a great king, Vol. II.

"When I have my king on his knees before me, and "my god (meaning the confecrated wafer) in my hands, what can I not do?" From fuch gods, fuch kings, and fuch priefls, may the only true God deliver us, and all the nations on earth. But as long as the spirit of Demetrius prevaileth, Diana will not want a rich temple, and many worthippers: Acts xix. 25. Te know that by this craft we have our wealth. For if false gods were not rich gods, and rich-making gods, they quickly would have neither priefts, nor temples, nor worthippers. And quickly may it be, is the hearty prayer of every true Christian.

And this leads me to the point in hand, That the Lord Jesus Christ, God-man, and our Mediator, is the only true representative of God unto the church. God only makes himfelf favingly known to men in his Son Jesus Christ. Men that would know God favingly, worship God acceptably, and enjoy God forever, they must feek and get all in and by Jesus Christ.

In handling of this, I would speak to two things.

1. The fitness of Christ to be God's representative to his church, 2. The glory of Christ in being fo.

First, As to Christ's sitness to represent God unto men: It appears in three things.

1. In the divine dignity of his person. He is God's eternal Son, and God equal with the Father. I know that this rock, the church of Christ is built upon, is boldly struck at in these last and worst days. But we should know as well, that the gates of hell shall not prevail against it, Matth. xvi. 18. I would only fay now, that that man or woman that owns the authority of the New Testament, (though Christ's Godhead shines very brightly in the Old Testament), and shall read but three first chapters, John i. Col. i. and Heb. i. and can fay, that Christ is a mere man and creature, is under a judicial blindness. All that worship Christ, and call on his name in prayer, and deny deny him to be true God, are guilty of idolatry. A mere creature image and representation of God used in worship, is an idol. But the eternal Son of God, who is in his person the image of God, and the character of the Father's perfon, is fit unspeakably to declare God unto men. John i. 8. He alone doth it. and none elfe can.

2. The Son's assuming man's nature unto his own divine person, makes him fit to represent God to men, John i. 1 .-- 18. His being God-man, made him fit to represent God to men, and to represent men to God. God is only to be favingly known by men, as he is a God in Christ; and sinners are only accepted of God, as they are in Christ. His human nature is a creature; but the Son of God that assumed and dwelleth personally in this nature, is a divine person. It is not his nature as man, but his divine person dwelling in that nature, that doth make him the only right representative and image of the invisible God unto his church.

2. Christ's being installed in the office of Mediator, makes him fit to represent God unto men. He is the one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jefus, 1 Tim. ii. 5. Such as, on this account, talk of Christ's being a God by office, know neither God, nor Christ, nor his office. Our Lord Jesus Christ is God in office; and to be worthipped by his people, as clothed with it. In this office, as Prophet, he reprefents and revealeth the mind and will of God, to be known and believed by the church; which is commanded by the Father to bear bim, Matth. xvii. 5. As King, all judgment is committed to the Son: that all men should bonour the Son, even as they bonour the Father. And he that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father which hath fent him, John v. 22, 23. And as Priest, as all in that office are taken from among men, and ordained for men in things pertaining to God, that they might both offer gifts and facrifices for fins, Heb. v. 1.; fo the Son was confecrated for this office

office by an oath, Heb. vii. 28.; and as Priest, he must have somewhat else to offer, Heb. viii. 3.; which offering was himfelf, and this he hath offered, Heb. ix. 26. and x. 5 .--- to. And after this offering, he entered in, as Priest, into the holy place; even into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us, Heb. ix. 12. 24. And there he remains, and liveth for ever to make intercession for us, Heb. vii. 25. until he shall appear the second time, without sin, unto falvation, Heb. ix. 28. Now, in this office Christ represents his church unto God; and in his prophetical and kingly office, he reprefents God unto his church. Both equally needful for our falvation, and both only performed by Jesus Christ as Mediator; who only can represent God unto us, that we may favingly know God; and represent us so to God, that we may be graciously received by him. Wherefore, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Christ Jesus, Heb. iii. 1. Consider how fit he is to do all God's business with us, and all our business with God, for our falvation, and his Father's and his own glory. He is clothed with a most honourable office of Mediator, (the honour and work of which office no mere creature could bear and dispatch), furwithed with all fulness for its discharge and management. This office he discharged when on earth, in our nature as man; and in the fame nature, is doing what remains to be done in that office, in heaven. And this high officer, this man Jesus Christ, is God over all, bleffed for ever, Rom. ix. 5. So that his fitnefs for making a true and faving reprefentation of God to his people, is evident; but so great and glorious, that we cannot fully apprehend it by faith. We have in our Lord Jesus Christ, a Mediator between God and men, to take away the breach that fin had made between them, and to make an everlafting friendship; a Mediator fo furnished for his office, that any may trust him in it. We have this Mediator in our own nature, a partaker of flesh and blood, as we be, Heb. ii 14, 17.; in all things made like unto his brethren, that he might be the fitter for us, and that we might be the more familiar with him. And this Mediator by his office, this real and true man by the taking of our nature, is God, the only begeiten of the Father. Can any make a doubt of this truth we are upon, That the Lord Jefus Christ, God-man, Mediator, is the true, real, and only reprefentative of God to his church?

So much for this first head.

Secondly, What is Christ's glory, in being God's representative to his church? Herein he is exceedingly exalted. How greatly is it expressed, Eph. i. 20,---23. and in Phil. ii. 6,---11.? and how hard to think fuitably of them? I shall only touch at three particulars in it.

1. It is glory to Jesus Christ, that all the faving difcoveries of God are made to men in and by him: 2 Cor. iv. 6. The light of the knowledge of the glory of God shineth to men, in the face of Jesus Christ. Till a man know Jesus Christ, he knows not God; nay, he hath not a God: Eph. ii. 12. They that are without Christ, are without God in the world : " Ye were "Atheifts," (so is the Greek word); though the Epliefians, to whom he writes, had been great idolaters, and had gods and goddeffes more than were worth having, Acts xix.

2. Great is Christ's glory in this, that all the worship that is given to God, if right, and as it is commanded, is given to God in and by Jesus Christ. No coming to the Father, but by him, John xiv. 6. If we believe in God, we must also believe on him, John xiv. 1. Thro' him we believe on God, 1 Peter i. 21. If we believe on him. we believe not on him (only, or alone), but on him that fent him. And he that feeth him, feeth him that fent him, John xii. 44, 45. If we pray, we must do it in Christ's name, John xiv. 13, 14. and chap. xvi. 23, 24. Yea, whatfoever we do, whether in word or deed.

deed, must all be done in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, giving thanks unto God and the Father by him, Col. iii. 17. All our gospel-sacrifices are to be offered to God by him, Heb. xiii. 15. Now, consider how great a person this must be, as the apostle argues about his type, Melchifedec, in Heb. vii. 1,---4. And he is there exalting that unknown man's priesthood above the Levitical, in this, that Abraham, Levi's greatgrandfather, gave the tenth of the spoils to him. How much greater is Jesus Christ, of whom Melchisedec was but a type and shadow, to whom we must not only give a tenth, but all, of that worship and service we pay and owe to God?

3. All the mercy, favour, and bounty of God to men, comes to us in and by Jesus Christ. No spiritual bleffings in heavenly things doth God blefs us with.

but in Jesus Christ, Eph. i. 3.

APPLICATION. All the use of this doctrine I shall at this time make, is in one warning; which I with may be as well taken, as it is needful, both to me to give it, and to you to take it. And it is this, That the fecret moth and poison in many people's religion is, that it is not Christianity. God out of Christ is a confuming fire; God not worshipped in Christ, is an idol; all hopes of acceptance out of Christ, are vain dreams; a heaven out of Christ, is little better than the Turks paradife. How fad is it; how visible is it, and common that many men and women do pray every day, and hear every day, and would fain know God rightly, and worship him acceptably; and, if we might believe their words and profession, they know a great deal of God, and ferve him not a little; when, in the mean time, Jesus Christ, as the only glass in and by which the true God and his glory is to be known and adored, is not minded by them? They have no fenfe, no experience of it, no conviction of the necessity of Christ's representing an invisible, incomprehentible God, unto them; they make no effays to know God in and by this only right way. Hence is it. that there is fo much of that that bears the name of religion, that not only men may carry to hell with them, but that pusheth them into hell. Hence is it, that fo many have a form of godliness, who are fatal strangers to its power. Is it not sad, to see and hear men, who bear the name of Christians, playing the philosophers about God's nature and attributes, while in the mean time they are utter, yea contented strangers, unto this only true representation of God unto men, in his Son Jesus Christ? All I shall say now, is to glance at one scripture, in 2 Cor. iv. 3, 4, 6. If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, I cannot deny, would the apostic say, but that soe all the plainness and closeness of our preaching, of which in ver. 2. yet our gospel is hid; but it is so to a lost company. But how comes it, that under such preaching as Paul's, the gospel is hid from any that hear it? This he answers, ver. 4. wherein he names two causes concurring, one fad effect flowing from these causes, and destruction consequent on the effect. The causes are, unbelief in their hearts, and Satan's working with it, and fecuring of it. The fin-ner is blind by nature, his blindness grows by the abused light of the gospel, and the devil spreads a thick vail over their blind eyes, that let gospel-light shine by an apostle, no ray, no beam shall dart in upon them. Now what is the effect of this doubleblinding? What doth Satan defign in his pains on unbelievers? What is he afraid of, and studies to prevent? It is, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them. As if the apostle had said, the devil in his diligence to keep finners in the dark, thinks and knows, that if ever one beam of the glory of Christ in the gospel, comes in to finners hearts, they are lost to him, and faved to Jesus Christ. O that sinners knew this, as well as the devil doth? But why hath not this bufy devil the fame power on all? How come any to have their eyes opened to fee? To this he answers in ver. 6. For God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, bath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the face of Jesus Christ. Observe, that the apostle in speaking of the causes of the perdition of unbelievers, names their own blindness and unbelief, and Satan's activity; but as to the falvation of believers, he afcribes it folely unto the grace of God, and its power and freedom; without which Satan would prevail on all, as he doth on many. But, for as blind as unbelievers are, and for as diligent and powerful as the devil is, God that commanded light in the first creation, did so to us, and this light so commanded, gave us the knowledge of the glory of Cod, in the face of Jefus Christ, by which we are faved. There are many glorious truths, that shine with some beams of light into the minds of natural men, fo as that they are convinced of them, fall in love with them, and make profession of them; but never is a finner throughly changed and converted to God, nor rescued from Satan and the power of darkness, till this light, this knowledge, this glory of God in the face of Christ, be given by this great Commander and Creator. Paul himself, while an unbeliever, had the light of the knowledge of the glory of God, in the works of creation and providence, as a man of fenfe and reason; he had the knowledge of the glory of God in the law, as a zealous lew; but the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, he never had, till it pleased God to call him by his grace and to reveal his Son in him, Gal. i. 15, 16. And let me tell you, that unless you have feen more of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Chrift, and in God's way of faving finners by him, than ever you faw of his glory in his works of creation and providence (in both which, not a little of his glory shineth) the Lord hath not yet dealt with you, as he doth with them he faveth. The right faving knowledge of God centers in this one perton, Jesus Christ.

See how the aposse project, Col. ii. 2, 3. That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full affarance of understanding, to the acknowledgment of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ; in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. So that all who would be enriched with true wisdom, and the saving knowledge of God, must by faith dig in Christ, and find them.

SERMON X.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou loveds me before the foundation of the world.

THIS great subject, the glory of our Lord Jefus Christ, which he hash received of his Father, is that which his people fee fomewhat of here by faith, Heb. ii. 9. and are called to the hope of full beholding of it hereafter, when this prayer of our Lord shall be fully answered. It is so deep a theme, that it is not easy to enter upon it, but imposfible to declare the thing plentifully as it is. All I mean to speak on it, I shall confine to two heads; the glory of Christ, as representing God unto us; and his glory, as representing us to God. In the first, he reprefents God unto us, to our faving knowing of God: in the other, he reprefents us to God, unto our faving acceptance with God. I began to speak of the former last day, and did proceed to it by these Vol. II.

three steps. 1. That the true knowledge of God is simply needful for man's happiness, both in this and the next life. 2. That God in himself is incomprehenfible, unbeholdible, urknowable, unless he is pleased to make himself some say known to men. 3. That yet men in all ages have been fill framing repretentations of God in their own minds. A little of nature's light remains, and of the ruins of that effate God made man at firthin; but fo defiled and mixed with the darkness brought on men by the fall, that natural light and finful darks-fs, mixed together, are but like the chaos in the beginning of the creation, Gen. i. 2. So that we may apply that to this case of mens inquiring after God, in Eccl. vii. 29. Lo, this only have I found, that God bath made man upright: but they have fought out many inventions. A man can think of nothing, but in and by that thought there is some idea or representation of it made in his mind. When we think of our own fouls, (by which we do think), how dark is our idea of them? But when we begin to think of creatures higher and nobler than ourselves, as angels are, what a dark idea do we frame of them? When we fay they are spirits, what know we what a spirit is? When we say a spirit is an intelliger being, free of matter; how far is this from plant a just representation in our minds of those nob' eatures? If we raife our thoughts above all crees, unto the perfect Former of all things, the g JEHOVAH; every thought of him, every name an perfection of his, swallows us up; as Job xxxvii. 19. Teach us what we shall fay unto him; for we cannot order our speech (or our thoughts) to him by reafon of darkness. Our own light in us, is but dark. ness; and the infiniteness of his light and glory, is as darkness to us. Shall it be told him that I speak? If a man freak, finely be shall be fivallowed up, ver. 20. Is a man know, either who he is that speaketh, what he either speaks or thinks, or who he is that is spoke or thought of. The world hath been flriving, either by their wildom to know God, I Cor. i. 21. or in their folly to reprefent an invilible God to their bodily fenfes. And this last hath filled to great a part of the earth with idols; an old abomination, which, it may be, will continue till this earth be purged by the last fire. And these things led me to the only relief in this difmal flate of mankind, as to the right and fiving knowledge of God; that the Lord Jefus Christ, the Son of God, clothed with man's nature, and with the office of Mediator between God and men, is the only true representative of God to men. That he is such, and of his glory in being so, I have spoke fomewhat; and shall enter upon the use we should make of him, as the representative of God unto his church, after I have given you a little account of the gradual rifing of this light to and unto the church.

When our first parents had singed, and were ashamed of themselves, and afraid of God, and ignorantly thought to hide themselves from him, he calls them to his bar, arraigns them for their fin; and when they had no reason to expect any thing but pre-fent judgment and execution, instead of that, the Lord, in a threatening against the serpent, brings forth the first promite of salvation by Jesus Christ, called there the feed of the women; who, though he should suffer by the serpent, should yet bruise his head, Gen. iii. 15. In the faith of this, and it may be of other explanations of it not recorded, the believing fathers before the flood lived and died. And Abel and Enoch are noted, Heb. xi. 4, 5. the one a martyr, the other translated to heaven. And Noah, before, in, and after the flood, ver. 7. is called an beir of the righteoufness which is by faith : which none but a believer is. No righteousness is by faith, but that that hath both the Lord our righteousness in it, the light of God's word to discover him and it, and a promife of the covenant to warrant faith's apprehending of it. If we go on to the Patriarch Abraham, we find the light growing more bright, especially if we Y 2 read

read Gen. xii. 14, 15, 17. &c. with Paul's comments on them, in Rom. iv. in Gal. iii. and iv. and in Heb. xi. 8 .--- 20. and what our Lord faid of Abraham in John viii, 39, 40, 56, 58 Who can read these, and not be perfuaded, that Abraham knew the Son of God, and God in him, and justification and salvation by him? Let us next take a view of the church-state which the God of Ifrael brought his people into; first, in a more transient manner in the wilderness, and thereafter fixed them in it in Canaan. In this flate. we find that the tabernacle and temple, their ordinances, priefts, and facrifices, and all their ceremopies, were all but types and fliadows of Jefus Chrift, Heb. ix. and x. There were many things in that difperfation that had fome appearance and femblance of idelatry; but there was none in it, for two reasons. 1. Because they were all of God's own appointment. 2. Because they were instituted on purpose to presigure the Messiah to come. If therefore any of Israel had devised of his own head a worthip of this fort. then that man had been as guilty of transgrossing the second command, Thou shalt not make unto thyself any likeness, &cc. as if he had ferved Baalim. And because they were all types and shadows of Christ, and of the good things to come by him; therefore if any church or person, now after the substance is come, and the shadows are gone, should attempt to bring Christians under the Levitical dispensation of the Old Testament church, they justly might be called Anti-christians, and deniers that Christ is come in the slesh, 1 John iv. 3. Come we to the prophets, David in the Pfalms, Ifaiah, and all the prophets, we find a fair dawning of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, wrought in their hearts by the Spirit of God, and fhining in their ministry to the church. This is fo plain, that it need not be infifted on; and fo full, that it would be too great a digression to infit on it as it deserves. We find Stephen, Acts vii. and Paul, Acts xiii. preaching Christ

by fuch a narration; warrant enough for this finall account. Let us now go forward to Christ's coming into the world. The angels proclaim him, a born Sa-viour, Christ the Lord, Luke ii. 11. Old dying Simeon calls him, when a babe in arms, God's falvation, and the light of the Gentiles, and the glory of Ifrael, ver. 30, 31, 32. Yea, Elifabeth calls him, when in the womb, My Lord, Luke i. 43. What a great anointing of the Holy Ghost was on this good woman, and how strong was her faith in Christ? When he is to be made manifest to Mrael, John Baptist proclaims him to be the Lamb of God, that taketh away the fin of the world; to be the baptizer with the Holy Good; to be the Son of God; and that all grace is received cut of his fulness, John i. 15, --- 34. When he is baptized, what a glorious tellimony is given from heaven to him, Matth. iii. 17? When he lived on the earth, and went about doing good, all that knew him, paid him divine worship in faith, and love, and prayer, and obedience; and were never checked for it; as Peter did Cornelius, Acts x. 26.; and the angel, John the divine, twice, Rev. xix. 10. and xxii. 9. Yea, when he was dying, one faw him to be God, and dealt with him by faith for eternal life: the rarest faith in all the scripture. When dead, and supposed by Mary Magdalene to be still so, the called him, My Lord, John xx. 13. Thomas calls him when rifen, My Lord and my God, John xx. 28. Yea, when he had led them out as far as to Bethany, and had lift up his hands and bleffed them; and while he bleffed them, he was parted from them, and was carried up into beaven; (a bleffed parting; and there will be shortly as bleffed a meeting again); they worshipped him, and returned to Jerusalem, with great joy, Lake xxiv. 50, 51, 52, 53. Strange joy! when, at the tidings of Christ's leaving them, forrow had filled their hearts, John xvi. 6. But, now their Lord had done all his work on earth, and was received up into glory, they worshipped him joyfully still; knowing, that though though now no more could they worship him as they did, when he was with them, with the help of that bodily presence of Christ with them, and with that fight they had of him by the eyes of their bodies terminated on his visible appearance; yet by faith, and with joy from that faith, they worthipped him ftill. But when Christ was not only ascended into heaven. but had tent down the promise of the Father, his Holy Spirit, upon the infant Christian church, Acts ii. the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ, shone out as the sun in its strength. All believers, all preachers, all ordinances, were filled with Christ's glory. In this gospel-temple, did every one, every thing, fpeak of his glory; as the word is, Pial. xxix. 9. All divine worthip was given to him, and to God by him; all grace dispensed by him. And thus it will be until his coming again. While God hath a church on earth, it is gathered together in Christ's name; built on Christ as the rock and foundation, I Cor. iii. 10, 11.; grows up in him, and on him, Eph. ii. 20, 21, 22. 1 Pet. ii. 4, 5.; worthips him, and the Father in him and by him; is fed and nourished by his Spirit, and the influence thereof, until that bleffed flare it is to be brought to at the last appearance of the great God, and our Saviour Je. fur Chrift, Tit. ii 13.

I would finish this narrative with two singular texts, among I many, to the fame purpose; one in the Old Testament, and another in the New Testament. That in the Old Teffament is in Numb. xii. 8.; that in the

New Tellament is in Col. ii. o.

The first in Numb. xii, 8, I would labour to explain. What the matter was that occasioned the strife betwist Mofes and Aaron and Miriam, we know but little; whether Mofes did right or wrong about the Edicpian woman whom he married, ver. 1. Yet one would think, that Aaron the high priest, and his elder brother, and Miriam his fifter, and a prophetefs, might have reproved him for what they thought was amis, amifs, without fo fevere a rebuke from the Lord. But their fin lay in reflecting on the high station God had put him in. And their fin was something akin to that of Korah and his company against both Moses and Aaron: Numb. xvi. 3. You take too much upon you. To this strife between Moses and his brother and fifter, the Lord puts an end by very extraordinary words. I will read them, because one pare of them belongs evidently to our present purpose: Numb. xii. 6. Hear now my words: If there be a prophet among you, (as there were feventy fet apart in the preceeding chapter), I the Lord will make myfelf known to him in a vision, and will speak unto him in a dream (And these were the usual ways and means of God's darting in prophetical light into the minds of his prophets; either when awake, by vili-ons; or when afleep, by dreams; and both were attended, doubtiefs, with fuch fignatures of God's interest therein, as did satisfy and secure their saith). ver. 7. But my servant Moses is not so, who is faithful in all my houle. " (I have let him above those " yays and ordinances"). ver. 8. With him will I speak mouth to mouth, (the same with face to face, Exod. xxxiii. 11. as a man speaketh unto his friend; and in Deut. xxxiv. 10. So Moses saith of God's way of giving the law: Deut. v. 4. The Lord talked with you face to face in the mount, out of the midst of the fire), even apparently, and not in dark speeches, (as Pfalm. lxxviii 2. I will utter dark fayings of old); and the similitude of the Lord shall he behold, (as much beyond the other, as feeing is beyond hearing darkly of a perfon or thing): Wherefore then were ye not afraid to speakagainst my servant Moses? Now what was this similitude of the Lord that Moses did behold, and was so dignified by reason of this singular priviledge? You know he tells them, Deut. iv. 15, 16. Take ye therefore good heed unto yourselves, (for ye saw no manner of similated on the day that the Lord spake unto you in Horeb, out of the midst of the fire), lest you corrupt your feives, &c. It is like, if there had been any feen that day, that they might rather incline to make the refemblance of that in their idol, than of the Egyptian ex or calf. There are divers opinions about this fimilitude of the Lord that Moles did behold. But that I like best, and think it nearest the truth in so dark and deep a matter, is what you have in the annotations of Mr Pool, a learned and godly divine, on this place: "That the Son of God appeared to Moses in an hu-" man shape: which he took up for a time, that he " might give Moses a foretaste of his future incarna-"tion." And many grave divines think, that most of the appearances of God to Abraham, and to the patriachs and prophets, were made by the Son of God in a human shape, foretelling his being made fleth in the fulness of time. Man was made in the image of God, after his likeness, Gen. i. 26. If this fense be not approved, that it was so done, because God had purposed, that one of the blessed three, even his eternal Son, the natural and effential image of the Father, should in time be fent in the likeness of man; yet this is certain, that the first man was made in the image of God; and, by his fall, got on him and his posterity the image of the devil: and to recover us from this woful likeness, and to bring us to a better likeness to God than Adam was made in and lost, God's Son takes to him the likeness of finful flesh, Rom. viii 3. yet without fin, that in and by that likeness men might come to know God favingly, and be made like unto God.

The other scripture is in Col. ii. 9. For in him (Jefus Christ) dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. A remarkable text, and fo is the context. What dwells in Jesus Christ? The Godhead, the fulness of the Godhead, and all the fulness of the Godhead. How dwelleth it in him? Bodily, really, fubflantially, nottypically, as in the temple and fanctuary. The fulnefs of the Godhead did not only thus dwell in Christ when he was on earth, but it dwelleth in him still, and for ever. Where then can a man find God, but in this man lefus Christ, in whom dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead, really, substantially, and eternally? The context hath two things in it. 1. A warning against seduction, ver. 8. 18, 19. Their and our danger lay in two things, that then were, and to this day are, the chief springs of apostasy from Christ, and the simplicity that is in him, as 2 Cor. xi. 3. The one is adhering to the Old Testament ordinances and ceremonics, antiquated by Christ, the end and substance of them all. The other is, man's reason, wisdom, and philosophy; which never could, nor can, find out God, fo as to direct men to know God favingly, and to worship God acceptably, I Cor. i. 21. And therefore, by its poor principles, and beggarly elements, (as Gal. iv. 9.), this wisdom of man rebeis against the faving wildom of God in his Son Jesus Christ; and doth but puff up men by their fieshly mind, Col. ii. 18. And from those two cursed springs, all the herefies, apoltafies, and the grand Antichriftian defection, have evidently flowed.

2. In the context we have the privileges of Christians by Christ, that should endear him to them, and engage them to that stedfastness in the faith which he had exhorted them to in ver. 5, 6, 7. Those privileges are many and great. The Christian is complete in him, ver. 10. and needs not hunt after any good out of him. All is to be found in Christ, and in him only. He is circumcifed in him, that is, fauctified, ver 11. He is buried with Christ, and rifen again, ver. 12.; made to die to fin, and to live to God. He is quickned with Christ, ver. 13. and forgiven. All the Christian's enemies conquered, the law cancelled, and the devil over-come, and triumphed over by Christ, at and by his lowest, ver 14, 15.

Now, to come to the application of this dostrine fo oft named, That the Lord Jefus Christ, God-man, Mediator, is the only true representative of God un-Vol. II.

to the church: There are three exhortations I would give from it. 1. Study God in Christ. 2. Content yourselves with this knowledge of God in Christ. 3. Use and improve the knowledge of God you have in and by Jesus Christ.

Exhart. 1. Study God in Christ. You must know God, if ye be saved. You cannot know him, but as he reveals himfelf; he reveals himfelf no other way but in Christ, so as to be favingly known. There are four books (if I may so call them) that many use in their studying to know God; but they are, and will be but poor scholars, if they have not better, and fitter, and plainer books. 1. Some will fludy an absolute God; God as in himself. An absolute God is a pit, and an abyss, that all that go near it, fall into it, and will be destroyed. It was a bold word of blessed Luther, " Let hypocrites and unbelievers do as they pleafe, "I will have nothing to do with an absolute God." God as in his Son, God as in covenant with us in his Son, God as clothed with grace and mercy, shining in his promifes in Christ, is the God we must study to know; and when by his grace we attain it, we may glory humbly in it: Jer. ix. 24 Let him that glorieth, glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord, which exercise loving-kindness, judgment, and righteousness in the earth: for in these things I delight, faith the Lord. 2. Some study God in his works. And much of his glory thineth therein, and we ought to observe it. But what is all the fruit of this alone! Only to render men inexcufable, Rom, i 20. This light of the knowledge of the glory of God, is both dim and cold light. It hath no heat nor power in it. Never did a man come by the faving knowledge of God by the fludy of the book of creation and providence, though a true Christian may both fludy and profit much by it, when he hath known Gul, or rather is known of God, Gal. iv. 9. 3. Some study to know God in his holy law. And in it is a glorious discovery of God. But it is of a holy, just, fin-hating, fin-forbidling, fin-threatening God. Here he is feen as a terrible judge. No man ever did, or can know God favingly, in bare law-light. Only God can be favingly known in that representation of him wherein he is manifested as a faving God; and that is, only in his Son Jesus Christ. 4. Some study to know God in and by his ordinances. Precious appointments of God, much to be valued and used by us; and their profit great, when bleffed by their appointer, and when used by us in the right manner. But we must know, that as the virtue of all the Old Testament ordinances lay in their relation to, and shadowing forth the Messiah then to come; so all the virtue of New Testament ordinances lieth in their relation to, and shewing forth of Christ come. If therefore a man now shall study to know God savingly in and by the greater light of the gospel-appointments. without regard to Christ's interest in them, that man will as furely perish in ignorance of God, as a carnal Jew, uncircumcifed in heart; as Jer. ix. 26. Rom. ii. 20, 29. Phil. iii. 3.

But, above all these, if you would know God savingly, study to know him in and by that only saving representation he hath made of himself in his Son.

1. For here it is you have the only true, and new place to find God in. Job in his distress said, O that I knew where I might find him! that I might come even to his feat, or throne! Job. xxiii. 3. He is only to be found in Christ. God dwelleth in Christ, Col. ii. o. There, and there only, you must feek him, and find him, and know him favingly; and acquaint yourselves with him, and be at peace, Job xxii. 21. There is no creature, no part of the work of God's hands, that is so nearly related to God, as the nature of the man Christ, assumed by the divine person of the Word, the only begotten of the Father. This is the true tabernacle which the Lord pitched, and not man, Heb. viii. 2. This is the new and living way, which he hath consecrated for us through the vail, that is to Z 2 fay, fay, his flest, Heb. x. 20. And this is the only way to the holiest, ver. 19. The devil, Christ's great enemy, hath done much to darken and disgrace this way to the world: on the one hand, by the gross idolatry of Aptichrist, wherein a vain show is made, by images of Christ, and of his flesh, and fusserings in it; all obscuring and perverting of Christ as the ordinance of God for our falvation. On the other hand, when men by their reason see the vanity of this Popish pageant and puppet-shew, into which Antichrist hath turned the true gospel-representation of Christ, Satan hath brought in a mystical and metaphyfical gospel, on the presence of greater spirituabov; wherein the flesh of Christ, and his faving pertormances in that fleth, are either hid, or turned into allegories, and mysteries, and notions, that have no room but in vain minds that hatch them, and are quite unprofitable to them, that harbour and hug them. But let Christians beware of both, as of ways of perdition; and by faith fix on the flesh of our Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ, which was given by him for the life of the world, John vi. 51. In this taber-nacle of his body we by faith fee God the Son personally dwelling, and by the some faith see the Father dwelling in the Son. And thus only do we favingly know God.

2. In Christ only we have the new names and relations of God, in and by which God only can be favingly known. When God fent Mofes to Israel, and to Pharaoh, to bring sfrael out of Egypt, Moses saith to the Lord, Exod. iii. 13. If they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them? (And what a deep answer is given to this bold question, vol 14?) So may we, What is that name and relation of God that he only can be favingly known by? It is eafily answered, God can only be favingly known is and by that faving name by which he makes himfell known; and that is his name in Christ. The Lord faid to Ifrael in Exod. xxiii. 21. Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not : for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him. And this awful word about Christ, the angel of the covenant. that he will not pardon refusers of him, is but the fame we have in Heb. xii. 25. But all the faving names and relations of God unto us, are all in and from his names in Christ, and relations to Christ. He is Christ's God and Father, and so ours, John xx. 17. But more of those anon.

So much for the first exhortation, Study God in Chrift.

Exhort. 2. Learn to be content with the knowledge of God in Christ. Seek no more knowledge of God, feek no other knowledge of God, fave in Christ. Ask not Philip's question; or if you do, take Christ's anfwer to it, and feek no other, John xiv. 7, 8, 9. Christ had told them, that they knew his Father, and had feen him, Philip, not understanding this, faith unto him. Shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us. " Thou " hast told us much of thy Father, of his love to us, " and of his mercy in fending thee to fave us; Lord, " give us but one fight of the Father, and we will "ask no more." To this Christ answers, Have I been fo long time with you, (and three or four years was not long time, but that one day of being with Christ was a vast mercy), and yet hast thou not known me Philip? He faith not, " Have I been fo long time " with you, and hast thou not yet known the Father?" (as he told the unbelieving Jews, John viii. 19. neither know me, nor my Father; and John xvi. 3. They have neither known the Father nor me.); but, Hast thou not known me? "You do know the Father, " because you know me; though you do not know so " distinctly that you do know him." Therefore Christ adds, He that feeth me, hath feen the Father; as John xii. 45. He that feeth me, feeth him that fent me. "But thou Philip hast feen me, both with thy bodily eye, and with the eye of faith," (as this fame Philip faith to Nathanael, John i. 45. We have found him of whom Mofes in the law, and the prophets did write. "He hath been long promifed by God, long " looked for by Ifrael; now he is come, and we have "found him; Come and fee."): How fayest thou then, Shew us the Father? Believest thou not, that I am in the Father, and the Fother in me? " If thou truly be-" lierest in me, this thou must believe, and dost be-"lieve." And to this way of believing he exhorts him, ver. 11. It is no eafy thing to hold a strait rein on an inquifitive mind, and to confine all our knowledge of God's glory unto that that shineth in the face and person of Jesus Christ. There is enough there to busy us happily in time, and to eternity; and to good can be got in transgressing this landmark. If men go but one step in studying God out of Christ, they wander immediately, and they do wander dangerously; as every man may feel in himfelf, and fee it visibly in many others.

Exhort. 3. Use and improve this representation of God in Christ. It is our greatest privilege to have it; and our greatest care and diligence should be used in the improvement of it; and our greatest profit comes to us by that improvement. This I would insist upon in these particulars.

1. Improve this representation of God in Christ for fixing and determining your spirits, in all your thoughts of God. There must be thoughts of God. His people are called thinkers on his name, Mal iii. 16. On the contrary, of the wicked it is faid, Pfal. x. 4. God is not in all his thoughts. There are two thoughts about God in Christ, that I am afraid some deceive themselves by. 1. Some think that they do know God in Christ, when they know that Christ is God. This is indeed absolutely needful to falvation. But it is not all. A notional affent unto this truth, that thineth to brightly in every page of the New Testament, may be in an ungodly man. The devil knows, and believes it, Mark v. 7.; and he only puts a wicked if upon it, in his tempting of Christ, Matth. iv. iv. 3. 2. Some think they know God in Christ, when they know that Christ only can reveal God unto men, Matth. xi. 27. and John i. 18. This is indeed a proper work for Christ only; but that pertains to his prophetic effice. But we must go further; not only to believe that Jesus Christ is true God, and the only true and effectual teacher of the knowledge of God; but that all the right knowledge we have, or can have of God, is of God as he is in Jesus Christ. What Paul resolved on in his office, (and it may be that he meant more than his way in his office of apostleship), you must take up in all your religion: 1 Cor. ii. 2. I determined not to know any thing among you, fave Jefus Christ, and him crucified. And if we had more ministers of Paul's spirit in their preaching, we should fee more of Christianity in the people's religion. But when some ministers preach, as if they had taken up the reverse of Paul's determination, even to know, and to make known any thing, every thing, fave Christ, and him crucified; is it any wonder, if many of their hearers may fay, as they did about the Holy Ghost, and his dispensation, Acts xix. 2. We have not so much as heard whether there be any Jesus Christ. and that crucified? And such may justly tay also of the Spirit, We have not so much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghost: for the Spirit is received only by believers on Christ, John vii. 39.; and by the hearing of faith, and not by the works of the law, Gal. iii. 2. 2. Improve this representation of God in Christ, in your dealing with him for eternal life. Whoever would be faved, must have some heart-dealings with God about it, and for it. You know it is the gift of God, through Jefus Christ our Lord, Rom. vi. 23. A. ny way, every way of dealing with God for falvation. will not fucceed. There is one special, and the only right way; and that is with God in Christ. Can you deal with God as the Creator of the world, and as a Lawgiver? Unless God had revealed himself in Christ.

Chrift, no finner durst lift up his face before God's throne, to beg eternal life, or to expect it.

3. Improve this reprefentation of God in Christ, in all your worshipping of God. The word is the word of Christ, Col. iii. 16. We pray; but how? We must pray in Christ's name, and ask, whatever we ask of the Father, in Christ's name, John xiv. 13, 14. and xvi. 23, 24. The God that the apossile prayed to, is the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, Eph. iii. 14, 15.; and to him he gives glory by Christ Josus, ver 20, 21. O that men did know, that to worship God out of Christ, is to worship they know not what! as Christ faith in John iv. 22. But we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. Out of them the Messias cometh, and salvation by him; and in him God is favingly known, and knowingly worshipped.

4. Let all Christians improve this doctrine in their fpiritual exercise, and in the actings of the graces of the Spirit. All those graces are from God in Christ, and dispensed and enlivened by the Spirit of grace. And they are (if you take the expression rightly) as fo many distinct members and powers of the new man, whereby it acts on its original. I would name feveral of them, and shew of what use this representation of God in Christ is in their asting.

1st, Faith. We by Christ believe in God, who raifed him up from the dead, and gave him glory, 1 Pet. i 21. Faith is justly called the fundamental, radical grace in the new creature; because it is that grace whereby he is built on Christ the foundation, and taketh root in Christ, in whom is all the Christian's life, fap, and fatness. There are two acts of faith I would speak of; an act of faith for peace, and an act of faith for fupply.

(1.) Faith acts for peace. There is a fad quarrel betwixt God and us by fin, which must be taken away, or no peace can be. God hath provided the way; Christ hath made the way, yea, is become the way; the gospel reveals it, and faith improves and useth it. I shall give you four names of God in Christ, which you will know and use, if you ever know what believing is. 1. The name of God is love to sinners, John iii. 16. 1 John iv. 8, 9, 10. 16. It is impossible that a sinner can act any dependance on God for falvation, unless there be fome manifestation of his name, as love. Whenever any beam of this love darts in upon a poor finner, the man begins to live and hope immediately. I mean not, that every one should believe this proposition, That God loves me; but only, that God hath a wenderful great love to fave finners, which he hath proved in giving his own Son to be a Saviour; that this love runs out to men in and by Jesus Christ; and all that would have it for themselves, should strive to get near to this fun, that when its light and heat is feen and felt, they may be faved. 2. Another name of God that faith acts on, is God with his redeeming blood. Sumble not at the phrase; it is that of the Holy Ghost, Acts xx. 28. When the apostle is counting the privileges of Christians under the New Teftament, see how he riseth, Heb. xii. 22, 23, 24. Ye are come unto mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels; (all beyond what the Old Testament church was brought to); to the general affembly and church of the first-born, which are written in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect. But is it not terrible to be brought to God the Judge of all? No; for ye are come to Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel. As if the apostle had said, " Fear " not to come to God the Judge of all, when ye fee "Jesus the Mediator of the new covenant, and his blood that sealed and consirmed that covenant, so " near to God. God the Judge is your friend, and " will Vol. II. A a

" will absolve you; and the blood of the covenant (as it is called, fleb. xiii. 20.) will speak better things " for you, and speak louder for your falvation, than " the guilt of hu, and the thunders of the law, can " speak against you." And never had a sinner been faved, if the voice of Christ's blood had been outcried by any voice from heaven, or earth, or hell. 3 Another name of God in Christ, is, he is a God that justifies the ungodly, Rom. iv. 5. Papills, and others. in their pretended zeal for holiness and good works, do either defire that this name of God were not in the Bible, or the true fenfe of it were taken out of the church. It is a's plainly: That as no man needs the bleffing of justification, but a finner and an ungody man; fo whenever God gives this bleffing, he gives it freely to a man that is ungodly till he get it. And when a finner pleads for it, he doth plead as guilty and ungodly. He begs it of God as an alms of free grace; the Lord gives it as fuch; and he that gets it, holds it, and praifeth for it, as fuch an alms of mere grace. God be merciful to me the finner, faid the justified publican; Let the unjustified Pharisee boath of his fastings, prayers, and good works, Luke sviii. 9. 14. 4. The way by which peace with God is brought about in and by Jesus Christ, is a name of God in Christ. that faith hath much to do with. When God proclaimed his name to Mofes, Exod. xxxiv. 5, 6, 7. (Mofes had earnefully delired to fee the Lord's glory, God promifeth it graciously, chap. xxxiii. 18, 9): Let us read this glorious proclamation: And the Lord paffed by before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious, long fuffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, keeping mercy for thoufunds (of generations, as Exod, xx. 6. and Pial. cv. 8), forgiving iniquity, and transgression, and fin, and that will by no means clear the guilty; whiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the childrens children, unto the third and to the fourth generation : Here was much of the giory of God's grace unlcovered;

and Moses made good use of it, ver. 8, 9. But yet how dark and dreadful was this name! how hard to understand it! Here is both grace in pardoning fin, and justice in visiting for sin. By this name we cannot tell when, and whom God will pardon; and when, and whom he will not clear; for all are guilty. By this name we cannot tell how God can do both; how he can pardon, and yet not clear the guilty; how he can pardon without reflecting on his justice; or how he can punish iniquity, and not restect on his grace and mercy. In chap, xxxiii. 9. the Lord faith, I will make all my goodness (or beauty and glory) pass before thee. Yet was it short of New Testament light: for the bright gospel-name of God in Christ resolves sweetly this riddle, Rom. iii. 24, 25, 26. In Christ only mercy and truth are met together, righteousness and peace have kiffed each other, as Pfal. Ixxxv. 10. And by this meeting and kifs, we are faved; and when we fee it by faith, we are comforted. By these, God's glorious names of justice and mercy kis one another, and do kis and save the believer; and the believer by faith kissent the Son of God, as Psal. ii. 12.; and then the Father, as a reconciled God, in him. I would speak somewhat of this from two foriptures, both deep in themselves, and yet full of light and comfort to believers. One in 2 Cor. v. 12. 20, 21. In this place, the apostle tells us what his gospel was, as committed to him, and preached by him. It was this good news, That God was in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, (But the world lieth in wickedness, I John v. 19. and God is holy, and a hater of wickeduess; how then can such a God as he is, be reconciled to fuch a world as this is?), not imputing their trespasses unto them. God out of Christ judgeth and condemneth the finful world for their trespasses; and this is the glory of his justice. But God in Christ does not impute their trespasses unto them; and this is the glory of his grace. But how can this be? The world is guilty; trespasses they have com-A a 2 mitted;

mitted; sin is not a transient act, no more to be heard after it is committed; but as it is in un, it flows from a deprayed finful nature, and contracts a permanent guilt, binding us over unto eternal vengeance, and is only removeable and diffolved by pardoning grace. The nature of God, and his law, requireth that this high crime of fin be either avenged on us, or fatisfied for by ur, or by another for us. The just revenge of fiv, is the eternal ruin of the finner; and fatisfaction to justice for fin, is eternally beyond the power of the finner, or of any creature whatfoever. How then can God be just, and not impute sin to the sinner? It is answered in ver. 21. For he hath made him to be fin for us, who knew no fin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him. The sules Son of God in man's nature, is by God made fin for us, that the finful fons and daughters of men may be made the righteousness of God in him. How can this be; that one that is finless is made sin, and that such as are true and real finners are made righteous, yea, made the righteousness of God in him that was made fin; and they are made thus righteous, by his being thus made fin? Is not this to depress Christ too low, and to exalt believers too high? No; it depresseth Christ no lower than his Father did lay him for our falvation, and exalteth believers no higher than faving grace defigued them. How is he made fin? By the bearing of, and being a propitiation for fin. Sin was imputed to him: not his own: for he had none, and could not have been our Saviour if he had had any: Heb. vii. 26. For fuch an High Priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens. But the iniquity of all his flock was laid on him, Ifa. liii. 5.; for this was he bruifed by law and justice, and by these stripes are we healed, Isa. Iii. 5. Christ was finless in himself, and only made fin for us. We are finners in ourselves, and far from, and void of all righteousness in ourselves; yet by grace are made the righteoufness of God in him;

not, nor never in ourselves. The sanctified believer is made truly holy in himfelf, by Christ's holiness imparted to him by the Spirit of Christ. The glorified are made perfectly holy. But neither of them are made fanctification or righteousness for themselves, or for others. The glory of this is Christ's crown and property, I Cor. i 30. and the blefling of it is the glory and falvation of his people. Another scripture, among many to this purpose, is in Gal. iii. 13, 14. Christ bath redeemed us from the curse of the law, (a great mercy; but how?), being made a curse for us; (How proves he it?): for it is written, Curfed is every one that hangeth on a tree ;---(taken from Deut. xxi. 23.) For he that is hanged, (i. e. on a tree, as ver. 22), is accurred of God, or the curse of God; Hanging to death on a tree, was named in the law an accurfed death, (though it probably be one of the easiest ways of putting malefactors to death, as it is generally used in Christian kingdoms), on the account of one Jefus Christ, the Messiah, who was to die this way) :--- that the bleffing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ. What is the blesfing of Abraham? It is that that comes to men by faith in Christ: Gal. iii. 9. So then they which be of faith, are bleffed with faithful (or believing) Abraham. Both are bleffed with the fame bleffing, and by the fame Bleffer, and in the fame way of believing in Christ. These two scriptures (as Christ himself was) have been a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offence, and as figns to be spoke against. But can any say or think, that the inspired writer of them did not highly honour his Lord and Matter, Jefus Chrift, or that he did not wifely confult the edification of the church, in his using these words? No: no mere man excelled him in both. Zeal for Christ's glory, and love to sinners falvation, did eat him up. If we rank thefe words amongst some of the things that are hard to be underflood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their destruction, 2 Peter iii, 16.; yet furely they are most needful to be understood, are capable of a very good meaning, and are made very plain unto many. Sin against God, and the curse of God for sin, are the worst things in this and the other world. Sin, and the curse for it, are inseparable. If fin be committed, it is imputed, and the curse follows in course of law. If the curse fall on a man, fin did precede it, and deferve it. Yea, when our Saviour bore our fin by imputation, the curfe must follow that charge. But observe the dialest of the Holy Ghost in these two scriptures, and see what provision is made for the honour of Christ in this way of speaking, as well as for our peace and salvation in what is spoken. 1. Christ is faid to be made fin. Thus no finner was, or can be. When angels fell, they were made finners, but not made fin. So of Adam, when he finned, he became a finner, and a fin and death-conveying head to himfelf, and to all his natural posterity; but he did not become sin, tho' he came nearer it than ever any other finner did or can. When we fin, (and, alas! when do we not fin?), we were finners by nature, before we commit actuil fin; but by finning we only become greater finners, and are not made fin. Jerobeam did fin, and made Ifrael to fin, I Kings xiv. 16. The idols he fet up, became a fin, 1 Kings xil. 30. But neither he, nor they were made fin. So Christ is faid to be made a curfe, And this is not to be faid properly of any, but Christ. A finner unpardoned hath the curfe lying on him, and he is under it, as Gal. iii. 10; but he is not made a curse. 2. Christ is faid to be made fin by God. All fluners are made fuch by Satan and themicives. God makes no finners; but to fave them, he makes his Son to be fig. So Christ was made a curfe, and that by God too. He that laid fin on him, laid the curfe also. 3. Christ is made fin and a curfe for ethers. So it is in both places, f. us. A proper finper hath both his own fin charged on him, and God's curfe laid on him, for himfelt. He hath none to blame but himfelf, Hofen will o. The fin is committed by himself, charged on himself, and punishment lights on himself. All quite contrary to God's way in dealing with his Son. All the charge on him was for others.

4. Christ's finlessens and blessens in himself is expressed in 2 Cor. v. 21. and hinted in Gal. iii. 13, 14. He knew no fin, yet is made sin. He was the great blessing of his church, yet is made a curte for ir. Lasily, Observe the fruit, design, and effect of this marvellous way of God's making of Christ. He is made fin, that we might be made righteousness. That imputed righteousness in which believers stand before God, is the fruit of Christ's being made sin for them. Our blessing we have, springs out of Christ's being made a curte for us.

So much for the grace of faith, and its afting for peace with God. Whenever you are in good earnest in dealing with God for his favour, and reconciliation with him, one or more of these names of God in Christ-God as love, God with his redeeming blood, God that justifies the ungodly, God making his Son to be fin and curse for his people; I say, some of these names of God must either be your anchor-ground, or you will perith in the sea and storm of your fin, and of God's wrath and curfe. I know, that while men are fecure, (as the most are), and know not what God, nor sin. nor conscience are, they may either deride them, or wantonly talk pro and con of these facred things of God: but I can affure you of this, that if ever (and woe to you, if you never felt) the terrors of God, and the power of his law, break in upon your awakened consciences; if you ever think in earnest of death and judgment, you must have your recourse unto God in Christ, or perish eternally. No refuge but in him. Heb. vi. 18, 19.; no hope but from him, and on him

2. There is an aft and exercise of faith for supply. When a sinner is made by grace a believer, and hath peace with God, he is yet in a wanting condition. He may be poor and needy, not only in his own eyes, but really, on whom the Lord thinketh favourably, Pfal. xl. 17. Every believer can tell fomething, none can tell all he wants. How are they supplied? Phil. iv. 19. My God shall supply all your need, according to his riches in alory, by Jesus Christ. It hath pleased the Father, that in him should all fulness dwell, Col. i. 19. And how pleafing should it be to his people, that it is lodged in fo fure a hand? And how pleasant ought it to be to them, to come, and ask, and receive, till their joy be full? John xiv. 13, 14. and xvi. 23, 24. We all know, by natural light, that God is the fountain of all our supplies, from whom cometh every good gift, and every perfect gift, James i. 17. But gospel-light tells us by whom he giveth, and on what ground; even out of Christ's fulness, and according to his promifes in Christ.

So much for the grace of faith.

2dly, Another grace that this representation of God in and by Christ directs us in the acting and exercise of, is, repentance unto life, as it is called in Acts xi. 18. There is a faving repentance, as well as there is a faving faith. Both are given to them whom God faveth. No impenitent person is saved, nor unbelie. ver. Two things only I would note about repentance. 1. Never man did truly repent, but a believer in Christ. 2. Never did a man truly repent, but for his fins a-gainst God in Christ. If you know nothing more of repentance but what you feel in the twinges of your conscience, by the light and hear of God's holy law, you are not yet come to gospel-repentance. Poor and confused are the notions that most sinners have. They think, that all their fins are against God, and all their relief is in Jesus Christ; but they do not know, and lay to heart, that all their fins are against God in Christ, and that all their relief against sin is likewise in God in Christ. Men fin against Christ, 1 Cor. viii. 12.; they are forgiven by Christ, Col. iiii. 13. He is exalted with the right hand of God, to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Israel, and forgivenefs of fins, Acts v. 31. If, in the exercise of your repentance, you forget that you have pierced Christ by your fins, you are not acted by the promised Spirit of grace, Zech. xii. to. And all expectations of pardon that are not only grounded on Christ and his mediation, are not only vain, but finful.

3dly, I might speak of the grace of love, that precious and everlasting grace. Love must act on God in Christ. It is fad to see and hear people busying their heads with speculations about the excellencies and perfections of the divine nature, and imagining by the force of their reasoning on these things, to blow up a fire of love to God. But let men know, that till God be known to us as love, no love that is true, will ever kindle in our hearts. Now, God as love is only discovered as he is in Christ: 1 John iv. 8,---19. We love him, because he first loved us.

4thly, All holy obedience is to be performed unto God in Christ: Col. iii. 17, --- 24. And whatspever ye do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jefus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him. Yea, relative duties are urged by most spiritual motives and patterns; husbands love to their wives, by Christ's love to his church; wives subjection to their own bufbands, by the church's subjection to Christ, who is its Head and Saviour, Eph. v. 20,---33. Even Christian fervants obedience to, and ferving of their mafters, is required and sweetened by this, that therein they serve the Lord Christ. It is not unlike, that, in those times, Christian fervants might be flaves and servants of infidels, and of fuch as served the devil; yet, faith he, " in your lawful service of such masters, ye serve Christ, "though they do not know him." Surely, the spiritual tincture of true worship is lost, when Christ is forgotten in it; and the favour of Christian obedience is perished, when it is not done as to the Lord.

5thly, Patience under affliction is a grace that every faint hath need of, as Heb. x. 36.; and must use in all his race heaven-ward, Heb. xii. 1. Let us run with patience the race that is fet before us. There is not a step in our journey wherein patience is needlefs. Running and patience feem inconfiltent; but he that runs without patience, makes but fools hafte. Now, this needful and useful grace can only be exercised by faith in God through Christ. If God afflict us as our Creator, as our Judge, as our Lawgiver, reason and moratity may afford not a few arguments to patience and submission to his will: but true Christian parience will never be found, unless the love of the afflecter be in some measure seen by the affl. Red. Our blessed Lord gave us an example to follow, John xviii. 11. The cup which my Father bath given me, shall I not drink it? If men or devils only had given it, (and they had no little hand in it), the matter had been otherwise. He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth, Ifa. liii. 7. Christ's cup was more bitter, his fusserings greater, than ever any of his people tafted and felt. His patience was invincible, and that because his faith was perfect, Isa. 1. 6, ... 9. David faith, Pfal. xxxix. 9. I was dumb, I opened not my mouth, because thou didst it. When God is seen as an enemy, affliction will rather work fretting than patience. Therefore when the apostle is directing Christians how to bear God's afflicting hand rightly, without fainting, or despising it; his main argument is, that in all of them the Lord dealeth with them as a father with his children, Heb. xii. 5,---11. And furely no man can have the comfort of this relation to God, of a child to his h. avenly Father, that by faith takes not up the high foundation of this relation, that God is the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.

6thly, lastly, The hope of glory ariseth from, and acts on God, as God in Chrift. This grace is a great mercy; and that all that have it know. It should be tenderly cherished. But this is a great fault in many Christiane, that they do not feek it so diligently as they ought, when they want it; nor act it so carefully, when they have any of it: and forely do they

fmart for this, in walking mourning without the fun, so many days, as Job xxx. 28. See the exhoriation in Rom. xii. 12. Rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing inflant in prayer; and all this is to be done in ferving the Lord, ver. 11. You all readily think, that murmuring under afflictions, and restraining prayer before God, are ungodly practices; and yet you do think it no fault (but a great misery you will own it to be) to neglect the leading duty, to rejoice in hope, and in the hope of the glory of God, Rom. v. 2. This hope is in Christ; yea, he is our hope, 1 Tim. i. 1. Christ in you is the hope of glory, Col. i. 27. The hope of glory grows on no root but Jesus Christ. He is eternal life, 1 John i. 1, 2. He that knows him, knows eternal life. He that hath Christ, hath eternal life, 1 John v. 11, 12, 13.; and he that hath Christ dwelling in his heart by faith, Eph. iii. 17. hath eternal life abiding in him, which the apostle denieth of a murderer, 1 John iii, 15.

And thus I would conclude this truth, of the glory of Christ as he is the representative of God to his church, and of the good use we should make thereof. I have infifted longer upon it than I defigned. But the importance of the subject may excuse it. But when all is faid, we need to begin again, that we may inculcate this truth deeply into the heart and consciences of Christians. Assure yourselves, that God out of Christ is an idol whom all the world worshippeth, (as Demetrius faid of Diana, Acts xix 27), except the few that can fay, as I John v. 20, 21. And we know that the Son of God is come, and bath given us an understanding that we may know him that is true : and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jesus Christ: this is the true God, and eternal life. Little children, keep your-felves from idols. Amen. All representations of God, fave what is made to you in his Son, are idols. And as you love his glory, and your own eternal well, watch, and ward, and keep yourfelves from all, or any of them.

SERMON XI.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou loveds me before the foundation of the world.

Y O U have heard at fome length of the glory of Chrift, as he is the reprefenter of God unto his church; and the rather I infifted on it, because it is a point of divine truth of the main importance to be believed, and of the main influence and direction in the whole of Christianity. There are many poor fouls that are ruined with irreligion; and not a few are ruined in and by their religion, such as it is. Some know not that there is a God, or live as if they thought there was none, or wished that there was none. And fome fay, they know and believe that there is a God, and they nake fome fashion of worshipping and ferving him; but they know not who he is, and what his right name is. It is only God in Christ who can be only known, and favingly known, by men. It is only a faving name of God that can be favingly known by men. And this name of God is only proclaimed in his everlasting gospel; and the knowing of this name can only be attained by Christ's declaring it, John xvii. 6, 26. 1 Cor. xii. 3. by the Holy Ghost. All contemplations of God out of Christ are but vain imaginations, and can never bring a man to the faving knowledge of God: and all worshipping of God out of Christ, is but will-worship, and provocation.

Secondly, It now follows to fpeak of another beam and branch of Christ's glory; and that is, in Christ's representing his church and people unto God. It is one part of his glory, that he doth fo represent God unto his church, that all the faving knowledge of God is only in him and by him. Another part of his glory (if the word part were proper in speaking of his infinite glory; but ye know what I mean, and none can mistake but the wilful) is, in his representing his church so unto God, that all the acceptance we have with God, all the faving mercy we receive from God, and all the favourable views God hath of us, are from our being feen as in Christ, and as we are represented by Christ unto him. God out of Christ is a maze, a labyrinth to men, yea, a dreadful enemy : and men out of Christ are an abomination in his eyes.

My work on this fecond head of Christ's glory. shall be in three things, 1. I would shew you wherein Christ represents his people unto God. 2. What is Christ's fitness for making this representation, 3.

What is his glory in making of it.

First, Wherein doth Christ represent his church unto God? By his church I mean a felect company of Adam's feed (not excluding our fiest parents themfelves) appointed to eternal life by Jesus Christ. This is his body, whereof he is Head and Saviour, Eph. v. 23. All the favourable appearances they make in God's fight, are all as they are represented unto God by Jesus Christ. This I would instruct in a few of the main and principal.

1. May I begin with the first, the deepest of all, election, that facred eternal purpose of God's grace concerning his church? This grace is in Jesus Christ: Eph. i. 3, 4, 5. Bleffed be the God and Father of our Lord Jefus Christ, who hath bleffed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places (or things) in Christ; according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy, and without blame before him in love : having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself. It is but little that we do, or can know of God: little of his works, little of his word; but least of all of his thoughts thoughts and purposes. But when men think of these thoughts of God's heart, and judge of them according to their own, no wonder that they widely mistake: For his thoughts are not our thoughts, neither are our ways his ways, faith the Lord, Ifa. lv. 8, 9.; but as far above them are his ways and his thoughts, as the heavens are above the earth. How far is a purposing, decreeing God, above the reach of the most differning of creatures! Yet vain man that would be wife, and quickly dreams that he is fo, (and thereby bewrays his folly), will venture to pry into, judge, and reason of the unsearchable counsels of God; when they that have most of the Spirit of God say, as in Rom. xi. 33, 34. O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord, or who hath been his counfeller? We cannot be his counfellers; but we may, and must be his scholars, and learn, and adore, and believe what he revealeth. And in the scripture named, we have much to learn about his purposes. As, 1. That all spiritual bleshings in Christ Jesus slow from election-grace. 2. That this election grace is eternal. 3. That this election-grace passed upon distinct persons, us and we. 4. That the means, and way, and the end, are all included in this decree and purpose: That we should be boly, and without blame before him in love; and the end is, the adoption of children, ver. 5. the heavenly inheritance, ver. 11. And, 5. That which pertains to my prefent purpofe, is, that this election-grace, thus expressed, thus qualified and diftinguished, is in Jefus Chrift, ver. 4. by Fefus Christ, ver. 5. This purpose and grace was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began, 2 Tim. i. 9. Now, what is Christ's interest in election-grace? It is not to be thought, that Christ purchased the love of election, as he did all the fruits of it; but only that election-love paffed first on Christ the head, and then on his body the church: (though I own, that the the words first and second are very improperly applied to the counsels of God, which are but one act in the divine mind; but we must think as a child, and reason and understand as a child, while we are as a child, I Cor. xiii. 11.) Christ was chosen head to the church, and the church chosen to be his body. He is chosen of God, I Pet, ii. 14.: and his church is a chosen generation, ver. 9.; and chosen in him, not without regard to him. Election determines all the persons; election determines all the blessings these persons are to be blessed with; and election determines the way in and by which all these blessings are to be given to all these persons: and that way is in and by Jesus Christ.

2. Christ represents his church unto God in redemption. This redemption is in Christ Jesus, Rom. iii. 24.; it is in him we have it, Eph. i. 7. There is a Redeemer; the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God. There is a price of the redemption; himself, his life, his blood. There are redeemed ones; a great multitude out of every kindred, and tongue, and people and nation, Rev. v. 9. In speaking of the redemption in and by Jesus Christ, I would consider it four ways.

1/1, This redemption is to be confidered as required and demanded by the Father from the Son. work of redeeming was laid on the Son, and the price of redemption fixed upon: Even that the Son of God fhould, in the fulness of time, take on him man's nature ; (but as the childrens nature, Heb. ii. 14. as the feed of Abraham, ver. 16.): that in that nature he should stand in their room and stead, and suffer what his people deferved by their fins; and purchase blesfings for them, which they could never procure to themselves, and without which they must perish. This price of redemption was required of Christ, John x. 18.; and required in honour to God's holy justice, in love and mercy to his chosen, and in a design of glory to his Son. A price of redemption for a sinner was never required by God of a finner. He knoweth well.

well, that they have nothing to pay. Yea, the damned in hell are not fent thither to pay, but to be punished. Your proverb, That a prison pays no debts, is true of God's dreadful prison, hell, and of the miserable prisoners there. The Lord save you from it, and instruct you in the only way to escape it. You are great debtors to God; you can never pay the first, much less the last farthing of it. He doth not require payment of you; but all he craveth of you, is, that you would humbly own your debt, and your inability to pay, and betake yourselves unto the surery's payment. It was no improper saying concerning the gospel, used by a minister in preaching to an ignorant people: "The gospel (he said) is nothing but good "news, that a rich man is come into the country to "pay poor folks debts." On this errand the Father sent him: and for this end we should believe on him.

2dly, Consider Christ's redemption as paid by Jefus Christ, and so wrought out by him. All the price demanded, he paid fully. The debt was perfectly paid, in full measure, heaped up, and running over. For when the righteousness of God is paid for the redemption of finners, and of their transgressions, (as in Heb. ix. 15.), we quickly see where the advantage lieth: for the demerit of fin is mainly heightened by the dignity of the party offended; and the merit of righteousness, by the dignity of the party that performs it. On this, as on other accounts, grace doth much more abound than sin, Rom. v. 20, 21.; and this grace doth reign, where fin had reigned. Since fin came into the world, and grace appeared in the first gospel-promise, Gen. iii. 15. there never was a sinner redeemed and faved, never was any propitiation made for fin, but what our Lord Jesus Christ the Redeemer did, and made, by his dying at Jerusalem. The virtue of it, according to the covenant, was effedual to believers, before and after his death, Acts xv. 11.; and will fill be till his fecond coming, Heb. ix. 28.

3 dly, Confider redemption as accepted by God. Though a price be demanded, and paid as demanded: yet the redemption is not a concluded bargain, unless it be accepted. But the price of the church's redemption was accepted with the highest good-will: Eph. v. 2. Christ leved us, and gave himself for us, an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour. The sacrifice was offered to God, but offered for us. The favour of this facrifice afcends upwards, and giveth fatisfaction to divine justice; and it descends downwards to the hearts and consciences of believers, for their peace and falvation, Heb. ix. 14. It pleased the Lord to bruise him, he hath put him to grief, Isa. liii. 10. And both this way and means, and the fruits and effects thereof, are the pleasure of Jehovah, which prospers in the hand of our dying Lord Jesus; as in that verse, The Father loved his Son, for laying down his life for his sheep, John x. 17, 18. And this commandment he received of his Father. Our Lord had this commandment in his heart, and came to do it, and delighted in doing it, Pfal. xl. 6, 7, 8. with Heb. x. 5. -- 10. The divine acceptance of the price of his church's redemption, is demonstrated two ways especially. 1. In the glory that the Lord Redeemer was admitted unto, Phil. ii. 6.---11. Eph. i. 20.---23. Heb. i. 3. ii. 9. and xii. 2. and in many places. Only confider his own words to his disciples, and to his Father. To the disciples, in John xvi. 10. He (the Holy Spirit whom I will fend from my Father) shall convince the world of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more. The conviction is deep, and so is the reason and ground of it. Christ going to leave them, and their feeing him no more, as before and now, was their main grief. They could not think that any good should accrue to them by this fad parting, much less so great blessings as Christ told them of, and which quickly after they knew and owned: As ii, 33. Being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promise Vol. II.

of the Holy Ghost, he hath shed forth this, which ye now fee and hear. And as he spoke this, and words to the same purpose, in the sulfilling of this promise, three thousand finners, and bloody ones too, are convinced of fin, righteonfness, and of judgment, and made believers. Christ's words to his Father are in John xvii. 4. I have glorified thee on earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do (in it). If Clarift came back again into the world, (save to juage it; and that will be in the clouds), men might think, that he had not done all he first came for. But he did all, as it was foretold in Dan, ix, 24. He finished the transgression, and made an end of sins, (28 Heb. ix. 26. He put away fin by the facrifice of himself), and made reconciliation for iniquity, and brought in everlasting righteougness, and fealed up the vision and prophecy, and anointed the most holy. 2. As Christ's glory in heaven, on his paying the price of redemption, is a demonstration of its acceptance with God; fo all the grace and glory on earth, and in heaven, in time, and so eternity, which is poured forth abundantly comen, (all which flows from the virtue of this p ce), is another demonstration of God's accoprance of this required and paid most precious price. Of which apon.

4thly, Consider redemption in Christ as it is applied to the redeemed. As the price was demanded by the Father, as it was paid by the Son, as this payment was accepted of the Father; all those concern the redeemed nearly: but all is only about them, and for them. But application is to them, on them, and in them. And all the application of Christ's redemotion, depends on, and flows from the defign of the Father and Son in this great work of redemption. would confider redemption as applied to perfons, and to bieslings, and their order. 1. As to persons. Christ's redemption is applied to all, and none but them, for whom it was paid. He fhall justify many: (whom! how many! and how! and why!): for he shall bear their iniquities, Ma. lii. 11. Universal election is rather nonfenfe, and a contradiction in its terms, than an error: for if there be an election of grace, (as there is, as fure as there is a fovereign God of all grace, as he is called, 1 Pet. v. 10), some are chosen, and not all: and therefore some are passed by. Univerfal iz varion is a gross and damnable error, that few or none dare own. But universal redemption hath many advocates and patrons. Whoever defend it fo as to exclude the special, particular redemption of the elect of God, they do fight against the tenor of the gotpel. Christ died for distinct known persons for his sheep whom he knew, John x. 14. 27. He died for them, in love to them: and doubtlefs he knew well whom he loved. His blood, the price of redemption, is the blood of the everlasting covenant, Heb. xiii. 20. which did confirm this covenant, Heb. ix. 15, 16. And was not this price paid according to the terms of this covenant? And did not this covenant fix both the price, and who should pay it; and the purchase, and who should enjoy it? This you all may be fure of, that however men, by their wit and learning, may dispute and talk about Christ's death, and its extent, in his and his Father's defigns in it; yet this precious gospel-truth, of redemption by Jesus Christ, is never rightly known, rightly believed, nor rightly used. till a particular, loft and fold finner put in by faith for a shire and interest in it. Thus Paul, Gal. ii. 20. The Son of God loved me, and gave binsfelf for me. How could Paul know this? When Christ died, and redeemed his church, Paul was an ungodly wretch, a very hypocrite; and after Christ had died, and rose again, and ascended up into glory, Paul hated the very name of Christ, and perfecuted to death all that called on his name. But after God, that had separated him from his mother's womb, had called him by his grace, and revealed his Son in him, Gal i. 15, 16. then, and not till then, he knew that Christ died for him, and that in love to him; and ever after he lived by the C C 2

the faith of it. 2. This redemption by Christ is applied as to bleffings also, and that in a wife order. Faith is first, and a fruit of Christ's redemption: John xii. 32. And I, if I be (or when I am) lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me; i.e. "All " whom I am lifted up for, them will I draw unto me." It is no wonder, that some men do not look on faith as the purchase of Christ's redemption, that dream of a kind of faving faith that Christ the Redeemer is not the object of. But we know, that unto us it is given on the behalf of Christ, t believe on him, Phil. i. 29.; and that fuch as have true faith, have obtained this precious grace, through the righteoufness of our God and Soviour Je/us Christ, (for so it should be read, according to the original), 2 Pet. i. 1. And he is the author and finisher of our faith, Heb. xii. 2. And this leads me to speak of the bleffings of Christ's redemption, that the redeemed get by the virtue of it, and by Chrit's representing them unto God.

(1.) They are reprefented by Christ unto God for their justification; and obtain it, when, and as, and because, represented to God in him, and by him. This justification of a somer by faith in Christ Jesus, is, ever was, and ever will be, the darkest riddle, and the greatest stumbling-block, to all the unbelieving world. And it is always fo as to gofpel-truth; that the nearer relation a gospel-truth hath unto the person and undertaking of the wonderful Saviour, (as he is called, Ifa. ix. 6.), the less a natural man seeth, and the more ready is he to stumble at it, and to mistake it. It is but a vain attempt of them, (how good foever their defign be, and how learned and wife foever they be that manage it), who fludy to accommodate the gospel-doctrine of justification by faith in Jefus Chrift, upto the guft, liking, and understandings of unbelievers. Such will never, nor can know, an. like it, 1 Cor. ii. 14. It is (as all the things of the Spirit of God are) dark, and foolighness to them.

And they that know least of Christ, and of faith in him, and of justification by faith, are most bold and daring to reproach all, and to speak evil of things they know not. None need to wonder at what a poor wretch faid and wrote, (though he bore no fmall name in the world), " That of all the writers of the new " testament, Paul was the darkest and most obscure " author." It was however plainly (though wickedly) faid; and it is the true meaning of all unbelievers. and the fruit of their unbelief; and remains in all men till faith come, as Gal. iii. 23, 25. This attempt of making justification by faith in Christ palatable to a natural man, is not only vain and ineffectual; but it hath no small influence on manifold corruptions of this truth, and of mens bringing in of another gospel. (Gal. i. 6.), that a natural man may fooner know, and better like. When natural men hear of the doftrine of justification, (by which they understand, that a finner is counted and accepted as righteous before God, and is pardoned all his fine, and adjudged to eternal life), they all immediately and naturally think, that this blefling can only come to men, by one, or other, or both those ways, which are both false ways: 1. Either that God will abate somewhat of the strictness of his law: or, 2. That he will fome way enable a finner to do fomething, and to bring fomething to God, in order to his acceptance with God: Either that God will bring down his law to a finner, or bring up the sinner to obey it. As to the first, That God will abate of the strictness of his law, and demand less; it is a vain and false notion. But it is natural and conflant in unrenewed men. Christ's great enemies, the fcribes and Pharifees, that were wholly for righteoufness by works, to support this Babel, did necessarily explain God's holy law in such a manner as was no hard thing to fulfil it; and all their successors are driven to the fame shift. Our Lord, (who came not to destroy, but to fulfil the law, Matth. v. 17.), to overthrow their rotten foundation, tells all, in ver. 20. Ex-

ceft your righteousness shall exceed the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven. This our Lord proveth, by a true interpretation of the law in its perfection, and spirituality, and vast extent; so as that no sinner can fulfil it, and get righteousness and life by it. And thus always God's law ought to be preached to men; as so holy and perfect a law, that no sinner can fulfil it; and as fo ftrong and dreadful, that no finner can escape its reach, nor endure its sentence; that they may look out for relief in Christ alone. 2. The other thought of a natural man is, That a finner must do fome good, and be made holy, that he may be justified and pardoned. And though the poor finner is all naught, bath nothing, and can do nothing that is good; yet the legal spirit in himself, and the legal teachers whom he loveth to hear, do use him more severely than the Egyptian taskmasters did the children of Israel. For Ifrael had earth to make Pharoah's bricks of, and, with much pains, might gather stubble in the land of Egypt instead of straw. But a sinner under the law is in a worse condition: for there is neither earth por fraw in all God's world for a finner to make one brick, one good work, of; and yet they are called upon daily to do a great many; and are feverely beaten when they do not fulfil their tasks. Many are ready to fav. Doth not God command finners in his word to repent, believe, and to do well? Yes, furely he doth. The old and new testament is full of such commands; and ministers may furely, and must teach men what God commands. But they should teach men those things as God means and intends; and that is declared in his word. They should teach them as God will have them to teach, and all men to learn; that is, that those things are God's will, and our duty; but those things are God's will, and our duty; but that power and will to obey is not in men, but must be wrought by grace in them: Phil. ii. 13. For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleafure. John xv. 4, 5. For without me ye can do nothing. If so it be said of believers, and of true branches in the true vine, what must be said of sinners, in and of themselves? Those commands are not given to make finners proud, and to think what they can do; but to tell them God's mind, and what is their duty to do; that by the hearing of God's holy will, and feeling of their own utter inability to do any good, they may be humbled, and betake themselves to Christ by faith, on whom all our help is laid. But a replier against God may yet say, Where is justice in commanding what he knows we cannot do, and then in panishing for not doing? Many things have been said to answer such a cavil. I shall name but three. r. All were once in Adam able to do God's will. This ability is lost by the first sin. If man by his fin have loft his power to do God's work, God hath not lost his authority and power to command man's duty, nor his right to punish man's sin. 2. All men naturally think that they can do something that is good, and a great deal too. The Lord therefore justly tries them, and lets them try what they can do. 3. This natural inability in finners to do any good is what they love; and fo is doubly finful, as well as miferable. His cannot, is inseparable from his will not. He is a captive to the devil at his will, 2 Tim. ii. 26. And the captive loves his jailor, and his chains, and his drudgery; and neither longs for liberty, nor welcomes the news of a Redeemer; yea, striveth against him, till Christ subdue him by his grace, 2 Cor. x. 4, 5. So that either of those notions are false, that God will abate of the strictness of his law, or will enable a finper to do any thing pleasing to God before he be justified. Besides, if either of those were, they would quite alter and invert that mystery of justification by Christ that is revealed to us so plainly in the scriptures. It is not the justification of a good and holy man, but of a finner; yea of a finner under the law, guilty of manifold breaches of this law, for which he is accused, arraignarraigned, curfed, and condemned by it, and his mouth stopped; having no defence and no excuse to make, and no shift or way of escape lest him, but what the gospel reveals, Rom. iii. 9 .--- 31. It is about the jusrification of a man in this fad condition that the gof-

pel fpeaks, and tells us thefe good tidings. 1. That a perfect righteousness, answering fully all the commands and the demands of the law, bath been wrought out by the Lord Jesus Christ. He was made under the fame law his people are under whom thus he redeems, Gal. iv. 4, 5. If we had been under one law, and Christ made under another, it would not, nor could it have been fit and profitable for us. You hear by some of the mediatorial law, proper to Christ only. It is true, never had any but Christ a command from God to redeem lost finners; and it is as true, that this was in the fame command, that he Should be made of a woman, and made under the law, that he might redeem them that were under the law. So that the work of Christ to redeem, and his being thus made for that work, are equally peculiar to Christ. For as the work and glory of redeeming the church is his only; fo his being made of a woman, and made under the law, can be faid of none, but of Christ as man; no more than it can be faid of any but Christ, that he is God's own Son, fent, Rom. viii. 3. Adam the first man was created by God; the first woman built and made of the man, Gen. ii. Of this blood all nations do fpring in an ordinary way; and fo all mankind are begotten by a man, and born of a woman. But the Son of God took man's nature of a woman only; and fo, whereas all befides are born of a woman, he alone was made of a woman. So we all are born under the law, and under its curfe, by Adam's first sin. Christ only was made under the law. This law demands perfect obedience to all its commands and demands, and layeth on the finner God the lawgiver's wrath and curfe for the least disobedience. Christ answered the law in both. eternal eternal Son of God, he was above the law; and as finless man, the law had nothing to say against him. But when he took on him man's nature, and therein took on him the law-place of his people, and they so sinful; obedience was justly craved of him, and the debt of his people's sins justly exacted on him. And both he chearfully and fully did perform and endure. And thus are we faved.

- 2. That this righteoufness wrought out by Christ, was wrought out for others, and not for himself. He wove and made this coat, for the covering and coching of his naked people. The gospel is full of this, in telling us both the errand his Father sent him on, and the work and business he did when the case. He needed no such garment for himself; but wove it out of his own blood and bowels, for his people, whom he loved, and who he well knew needed it greatly.
- 3. That this righteousness, thus wrought out by Jefus Christ, is freely and fully tendered and offered to all that hear the gospel: all of it (for it is not divided nor divisible) unto every man and woman; (for gospel-offers have no exceptions). Thus Peter made the offer to every one of them that heard him, Acts ii. 38. He excepts not the very murderers of Christ, nor the mockers at him on the cross, when Christ was working out this righteousness. So his beloved brother Paul (as he calls him, 2 Pet. iii. 15.) preached, Acts xiii. 38, 39. Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man (alas! this man is little known by most men) is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins; and by him all that believe, are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses. Do you then believe on him, and be justified by him; lest that word be fulfilled on you, Behold, ye despisers, and wonder, and perish, ver. 41. And no longer than the next Sabbath-day was it in fulfilling, ver. 46, 47, 48. And if the company were never fo great nor so bad, a gospel-minifter may make this large offer, as Christ himself did, Vol. II

John vii. 27. In the last day, that great day of the feast, (when the great convocation of the people was), Josius stood and cried, (that he might be seen and heard by all), soying, If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink. And this coming to him, and drinking, is believing on Christ, ver. 3, 39. When he is in heaven, and fender a letter by john his messenger, to a forry church, nd in a fiel case, he faith so to them, Rev. iii. 20. Behold, I fland at the door and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To name no more of the large otters of Christ in the gospel,) will conclude with the last in the Bible, Rev. xxii. 17. As, ' let him that is athirit, come: and whofeever will, bim take the water of life freely.

4. That this large offer made of Christ in the gofpel, is the ordinary and appointed means of sor ing faith in Christ. Thus, Rom. x. 17. Faith cometb by hearing, and hearing by the word of God; and Rom. i. 16, 17. I am not albamed of the gospel of Christ; (and never did an honest preacher make a poorer li e in worldly things, of the gospel, than Paul did): for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and a so to the Greek. For therein is the rightecufness of God revealed from faith to faith: as it is written, The just shall live by faith. I need not insult on so plain a truth.

5. That this r inteousness of Christ is upon all that believe. It is of ed to all to be embraced by faith; and it is given and conferred upon all that believe, upon their believicy. Whenever the hand of the Lord is upon the hearts of hearers of the gospel, and draws them forth to betake themselves to this righteoutness of Christ, to embrace it, and to trust all their acceptance with God upon it alone, they are jufrified by it: Rom. iii. 22, 23. The righteousness of 200d, which is by faith of Josus Cirist, is unto all, and upon all that believe; sor there is no difference: for all have finned and come short of the glory of God. A bleffed saying, and an odd-like reason to consirm it. Are all sinners alike? and are all believers alike? No, surely, Are not some sinners greater sinners than others? and some believers better believers, and greater saints, than others? Yes, surely. But in this matter of Christ's righteousness there is no difference. All sinners are alike in this, that they are in a condemned state alike, and alike past all relief, save in and by Christ and his righteousness: and all believers in Christ are alike in that saved state they are in, by Christ's righteousness being on them. All sinners are alike needy; and all believers are alike partakers of this righteousness of God.

6. Laftly, That upon this righteoufness of Christ's being on a believer in him, these three things follow: That the believer is justified; God justified in justifying of him; and the justified man's mouth is stopped as to all glorying, fave in the Lord. The believer is iustified, counted and reputed a righteous man, thro' the righteousness imputed to him. On the account of this same imputed righteousness of Christ, all his fins are forgiven and blotted out, and he is paffed from death to life, and shall not come into condemnation, John v. 24. Rom. viii. 1, 23, 34. He is reconciled to God, and dealt with as a friend of God. God is also justified in his passing this sentence of justification on the believer. In all things, and above all, we should be tender of God's glory. There are specially three cers of Gcc's righteous judgment that are centured much by the ungodly, and that Christians should be careful to justify God in. One is, his just judgment on the first Adam and his posterity. How full are most mens hearts, and fome mens mouths, and too many pens, with censures of this awful, but just sentence? The other is, the Lord's way of dealing with the fecond Adam, Jefus Christ. He was not spared, but put to fore fufferings. Any may fee amazing mercy; but who behold, and glorify God's righteousness and Dd 2 justice.

justice, in the de th of Christ? And the third is his I am upon, the justice of God in justifying a believer. And the cause of mens confures and mutakes about a'l the there, is much the fame, and the conforce are ulually the fame fort of perions. The true caufe of these challenges of God's judgments, which are a great depth, Plal. xxxvi. 6. is, mensignorance of the justice, majesty, and greatness of God. Unto such arguers against God, the words of Elihu to Job may properly be applied, Job xxxiii. 12, 13. Behold, in this thou art not just: I will answer thee, that God is greater than man. Why dost thou strive against him? for he giveth not account of any of his matters. In these three instances we may cally see how this ignorance of these worketh. In the first act of justice in God, we find one man's one act of disobedience conveying guilt, condemnation and death, to all his natural offspring. In the second instance, we find all the fins of many finners charged and laid on a finless person, and justice dealing with him as with a criminal. In the third, we find the righteoutnets of Christ, which he wrought out in making a propitiation for fin, imputed to he justifying of a believer: and in this God is just fied : Rom. iii. 26. To declare at this time his righteou/nefs; that he might be just, and the justifier of him that believeth in Fefus. Lattly, In this justification, the justified man's mouth is stopped as to all glorying, but only in the Lord. For as vait a bleffing as it is, there is no place left for glorying. Therefore, in the next verse, the 27th, he saith, Where is boassing than? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay; but by the law of faith. The law, when it condemns, stops the sinner's mouth from re-plying, to justify himself, Rom. iii. 19.; and the gofpel, when it absolves, stops the believer's mouth from glorying in himself, when justified. But doth not the low of works exclude boafting fufficiently? That law that commands mere than the man can do, doth it not thut out boasting? Can any man say, that he hath fulfilled that law? No, furely. No man that in any measure knows the holiness of that law, and knows himself, his heart and doings, will say so. But befides that many are so blind and ignorant, both of God's law and of themselves, that they are ready to boast without any cause; all men that seek justification by the law, and by doing, they do design boasting, though they never reach it. Though they cannot reach glorying before God, yet would they fain be at it. But the justified believer, as he never reacheth it when he is justified, so he never defigns it when he feeks justification. The righteousness in which he is justified, is wholly wrought out by another; and one fo great, that none that know him will adventure to put in for a share in his crown; the Lord our righteour-ness, Jer. xxiii. 6. Yet the blessing of it is given to his church, and she is called by her husband's name, ler. xxxiii. 16. The revealing of this rightcoufness is from the Lord, by his word and Spirit; without which no man could ever find it out. The faith by which he layeth hold on it, is the work of God; and neither grew up in his heart, nor was acquired by his own industry, nor conveyed by the power of any creature. The imputing of this righteousues unto his justification, is God's act of free grace, Rom. iii. 24.; nothing in the man moving God to impute it; and nothing in God but his grace in Christ Jesus. The and nothing in God but his grace in Christ Jesus. The sinner, when he seeks it by faith, looks on nothing but this grace; and when he hath got it, and knows it, owns heartily, that this spiritual blessing (as all others are, Eph. i. 3.---7.) is to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved. It cannot be defined, but a man may be proud of his justification, and of his faith. But in that case I am bold to say, that one of these things are: Either that it is a false justification, and a false faith, that this man boasts of, (and these are too common amongst professors); or that true justification is out of his fight, and his faith out of exercise, when any boofling rifeth in the heart of a real believer. For let but a believer fet himself before God the Judge of all; let him read God's law, and his own heart and contcience; and see what he hath to boast of: nay, he will fee, that he hath all reason for fear and shame, when he stands before this tribunal. Let him next by for the lesis Christ at this same judgment seat, charged with this man's fine, and discharging that debt, and buying all grace and glory for him by the price of his precious blood; and, lastly, let him, by the tame faith, behold God justifying him freely, and f ilv, and only, on the account of this fatisfaction , and by Christ: and then, and thus, let this man fee a down, that as there is no room left for boafting, fo he will find no inclination in his heart unto it. It is the character of a true Christian in Phil. iii. 2. For ave are the sums firm (true Jews, as Rom. ii. 28, 29.) which worthip Go : is the Spirit, and rejoice (or glory) in Christ Jesus, and have no considence in the stell. So that, whereas righteoufaels by the law is both tought by men in pride; and when they dream that they shall either reach it, or that they have got it, (and fuch dreams are not rare, though groundlefs), pride and boafting increaseth to much, that not only are their hearts pulled up within, not only do they glory befor men, as Christ tells us of fuch hypocrites in Mat. vi but they dare boast before God, as the Pharisee did, Luke xviii. 11.: fo, on the other hand, the justifying righteonfacts of God, wrought out by Christ, and applied to the believer on Christ, was appointed or God, brought in by Christ, revealed in the gofpel, and given to the believer, for the highest glory of the free giver, and the deepest lumbling of the happy, but unworthy receivers. And thus is that prophecy and promife fulfilled in Ifa. xlv. 24, 25. Surely, shall one fay, In the Lord have I rishteoufness and Brength. In the Lord shall all the feed of Ifrael be justified, and shall glory.

What then is God's justifying a believer in Jesus Christ

Christ? It is nothing else, but God's gracious looking on a man, judging of hum, and dealing with him, as in Christ, and as represented by Christ to God, for justification of life. There is a fimilitude commonly used, taken from Jacob's getting his father Isvac's bleffing, in his brother Elau's raiment, Gen. xxvii. All similitudes, even in feripture, taken from mens ways, to express Ged's ways, want some grains to make them pass current; and this especially; for old Ifaac was deceived in bestowing his bleshing, Heb. xi. 20. By faith Isaac bleffed Jacob and Esau, concerning things to come. Though Haac did so by faith; yet the blessings he gave his fons, were not only greatly different, but he was also at first deceived in the perfoos whom he did blefs. Yet though Jacob supplanted his brother of the birthright, Gen. xxv. 20,---24. and Gen. xxvii. of the bleffing, by his mother's cunsung, and his own lying; yet neither of these did hinthe Isaac's taith, nor the lighting of the bleffing on Jacob, according to the election of grace, and the oracle that declared it, when they both were in the womb, Gen. xxv. 23. But though Jacob deceived his father in the way wherein he fought the bleffing; yet, in giving of his bleffing by faith to Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, Heb. ix 21. he guided both his hands wittingly, and his words wifely, and gave the bleffing, by the spirit of prophecy, Gen. xlviii. 14 --- 20. But the Lord always hnoweth who are his. 2 Tim. ii. . .. He always knows whom he blefferh, and what bieffir he gives. All our acceptance with, and justification before God, comes by the representation Christ makes of us to God. He was charged at the bar of justice for our sius; he answered this charge by a perfect fatisfaction, and thus was justified in the Spirit, 1 Tim. iii. 16.; and when this latisfaction is put to our account, we are justified by his blood, Rom. v. 9.

So much for the first blefling of justification.

(2.) Christ represents his church unto God for their

their fanctification. Election in Christ is an eternal purpose in God's heart and counsel about his people. Redemption by Christ, is a divine bargain for them and their falvation betwixt the Father and the Son. Justification is a gracious sentence of God in Christ, on them that are represented by him for acceptance. By this act and fentence the state of their persons is favourably changed. But fanctification is a divine work on them, that changeth their heart and nature. The Spirit of fanctification is a precious gift of divine love: and is only given to them that are in Christ, and because they are in him: Gal. iv. 6. And because ye are fons, God hath fent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. All the anointings of the Holy Ghost that believers receive, are but fome drops that fall down from the head of our High Priest, unto the skirts of his garments, Pfal. cxxxiii. 2, 2. He received the Spirit without measure, John iii. 34. that to his people, even to every one of them, grace may be given, according to the measure of the gift of Christ, Eph. iv. 7.; not according to the measure that Christ got, but the measure that Christ giveth. And all of them receive it. Rom. viii. ix. If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his. Let him not name the name of Christ (as his Lord and Master), that departeth not from iniquity, 2 Tim. ii. 19. All whose iniquities Christ did bear for their expiation, in due time Christ bleffeth them, in turning every one of them away from their iniquities, Acts in. 26. This bleffing of fanctification is of pure grace: for as there is nothing of worth in a man, or regarded by God in justifying; fo there is nothing of goodness, or of fit matter, for God to work upon in his fanctifying. God's word is as clear about this, as about the other. The account that we have fo largely of the natural state of all men without Christ, is sufficient to show the absolute necessity all stand in of God's grace to fave them, and to declate both the freedom and power of that grace in all its applications to men.

Grace is the spring of salvation, and of all its parts; Christ is the root of all; and eternal life and clory is the ripe fruit of all that grace of God, that reigns through rightecusness unto eternal life, by Jesus Christ our Lard, Rom. v. 21. See but these texts, and read them, and conclude this truth, 1 Cor vi 11. Eph. ii. 1.—7. and Iit. iii. 3.—7. In all which places justification and saudification are joined, (as they are certainly and constantly in all that partake of them); unworthiness in the receivers overcome, and passed over, by the grace of the giver; and the interest of Jesus Christ, in God's giving, and in his people's receiving of both these blessings, is plainly told us.

(3.) All the communion, and fellowship, and familiarity with God, that a believer receiveth, and is admitted unto, is all by Jesus Christ, and by his representing him to God, Rom. v. 1, 2. 1 Jehn i. 3. John xiv. 23. Blessed be God there is a great deal of it; and more might be attained, if we were painful and diligent. This is so great a mercy, that come and fee, come and tasse, is the best countel can be given, Psal. xxxiv. 8. And such as tasse it, know its worth better than the apostle can tell them; and that it all comes by the grace of God in Jesus Christ. He is not only the only Mediator of reconciliation and of intercession, but of fellowship with God: Eph. ii. 18. For through him we both (Jews or Geniles, if believers) have an access by one Spirit unto the Father.

(4.) Lally, The crown of glory, and admission to heaven, is granted to believers upon the account of the righteonsness of Christ on the believer: Rom. vi. 22, 23. But now being made free from sin, (from the condemning and commanding power of sin, in justification and sanctification, of which the apostle had been speaking in the 5th and 6th chapters), and become fervants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ cur Lord. Sanctification by faith in Christ, Acts Vol. II.

xxvi. 18. is a precious gift of God. The perfecting of it by faith on the promifes, is a bleffed defign and exercise through the whole life of a Christian, 2 Cor. vii. 1. It is most pursued after, but never attained by the best, till they attain the prize of the high calling of God in Jesus Christ, Phil. iii. 13, 14. But when this prize is attained by them, and bestowed on them, it is not given them because they are holy, (though none but the fanctified inherit it, Acts xxvi. 18.), but because they are in Christ, members of his body; and because he is made all things for them for their falvation, I Cor. i. 30.; and because they are represented by him, and presented unto God, for this last, greatest, and everlasting acceptance. Behold, I, and the children which God hath given me, Heb. ii. 13. The righteousness of Christ is the eternal robe of the glorified, and their most glorious one; and the cause of their perfection in holiness, and of its eter-nal duration. The glory and whiteness of their robes, is in their being washed, and made white in the blood of the Lamb, Rev. vii. 14. If Christians be but careful to give God's grace in Christ its true use and praise, while they are on earth; no doubt but ail that get to heaven, will fing the fong or the Lamb with everlalling joy, To him that loved us, and walk-ed us from our fins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father, to him be glary and dominion for ever, Amen. Rev. i. 5, 6 and v. 9, 10. And though some true Christians may possibly (either by the fnare of dark or unfound doctrine, or by a mistaken zeal for inherent personal holiness) have less exercise by faith on Christ's righteonspers than fome others, and though fome may advance by grace farther in fanchification than others, (and it is a very valuable attainment); yet all of them, when they come to die, and to knock at heaven's gate for entrance into their Master's joy, do mind far otherwise the blood that bought the inheritance, than any thing wrought in them to make them meet for it, Col. i. 12.

or than any pains they have been at in walking and running their race towards it.

So much for the first thing, Wherein doth Christ

reprefent his church unto God?

Secondly, What is Christ's fitness for making this representation of the church unto God?

1. In the constitution of his person. He is a rare, fingular person; God-man, God's Son made man. And because he is God-man in one person, he is a person only fit, and highly fit, to represent God unto man, and man unto God. He is fit to represent God unto man; for in Christ we see God in a man, in our nature. And he is fit to represent man unto God; for God feeth our nature in his Son. We fee God in him, and God feeth us in him. We can never fee and take up God rightly and by faith, but as he is in his Son Jefus Chritt: nor can God ever graciously look on a finner but in his Son.

2. Christ is fit for making this representation of his church to God, by his office of Mediator. None is fit for this office but Christ; none is put in it but he, I Tim. ii. 5.; and none but God-man can discharge it. The greatness of the work that is to be done in this office, and the greatness of the glory that follows on its discharge, are far too high for a mere creature. Such as deny that Christ is true God, or deny that he is true man, or deny that he is God-man in one person, (and from the apostles days to ours, the enemy hath been fowing such tares in God's field), do deny a fit Mediator betwixt God and men, and thereby strike at the rock the church is built upon. Now, the office of a mediator is to deal with two parties: Gal. iii. 20. Now a mediator is not a mediator of one; but he is betwixt two. The high priest under the law, was in his office a type of Christ in his priesthood. Aaron and his fucceffors did, as high priefts and typical mediators, represent all Israel (then God's only church) unto God, especially in the solemn day of atonement, Ley, xvi.; when the high priest offered the facrifice, after confessing of, and a typical imputing of Maei's fin to the innocent creature to be facrificed, and went with its blood into the holiest of all, (a piece of earth likest heaven of any thing or place made with hands), there to make atonement. This high priest was also to bear their names (whom he represented) before the Lord upon his two shoulders for a memorial, Exed. xxviii. 12. and ver. 29. And daron Shall bear the names of the children of Ifrael in the breast plate of judgment, upon his beart, when he goeth in unto the holy flace, for a mental it before the Land continually. As on bare but the general names of the tribes of Israel: but Christ our High Priest hath a larger heart and breaft plate; and bears upon it all the particular names of his people, and represents them all unto God, both in his offering of himfelf as a facrifice for them, in his entering in with his own blood into the true holiest or all, and in his appearing in heaven in the presence of God for them, Heb. ix. 12 .-- 24. And, by the way, I may fay, that the epistle to the Hebrews is a key to all the Old Testament, and especially to the book of Leviticus, and the Old Testament worship.

Thirdly, What is the glory of Christ in making this representation of his church unto God? We easily conceive, that there is much glory in his representing God unto his church; but his glory in representing them unto God, is not so casily seen by us. But it is surely a great glory. So the apostle saith, Heb. v. 5, 6. Carist gloristed not himself to be raide an High Priest; but he that said unto him as in Psal ii. 7 and Psal, ex. 4. He gloristed him, and made him an High Priest. But what glory was there in this, when he was to be the sacrifice himself who was made the priest; and to make this sacrifice in all the lowest and most humbling circumstances, smitten of God, despised of men, and abased even unto death and the corfe; wherein was the glory of this? At first view, nothing appears but shaine and dishonour. A few things shall conclude this matter at this time.

1. Consider whom he did, and doth represent unto God for acceptance. They are all finners. The vilest thing is fin; the baseit creature is a sinner: yea, finners are not properly creatures of God's making, but are vile things of the devil's and of their own making; the only shameful things in God's world. And fin had never been permitted to enter into the world, if God had not refolved in himself to gather in a reat of glory to his justice, in punishing it in mamy; and to his mercy, in pardoning it in others. And this glory to pardoning grace comes by the redemption in Christ Jesus, Eph. i. 7. Many of these pardoned finners are of the worse fort of finners, I Cor. vi. 9, 10. 11.; and all of them think themselves such, r Tim. i. 15, 16.; and they therein do not think amifs. And they are a great many, as will appear in the day of their last gathering together to Christ, as it is called, 2 Theff. ii. 1.; though not fo many as the loft. Thence we read of a loft world, and of a faved world, in the word. When a finner hath his eyes opened to fee himfelf, he lothes himfelf; and thinks that he is enough to pollute, and defile, and burden the whole creation of God: he abhors himself, and thinks every one, especially the godly, should abhor him too: but mainly he judgeth himfelf most justly lothfome to God. Must it not be a great and glarous thing in that person, that can, and doth reprefent such vile creatures unto a gracious acceptance with God?

2. Consider to whom they are represented for acceptance; even to an holy and just God; a God that hates all iniquity where-ever he feeth it, Hab. i. 13.; and feeth it where-ever it is; and punisheth it where-ever it is not covered and pardoned. All difcoveries of God's glorious holineis, and of our own finful vileness, render this representation for acceptance the more needful to be got, and the more hard to be believed, (as all exercifed Christian w), and the more glorious to Christ when it is med.

3. Lastly, Consider what a glorion trance this representation by Christ doth the Equation of the beloved; are received into all familiarity with God; and, in that love, adjudged unto all bleffings in heavenly things in Christ Jefus.

APPLICATION. I shall at this time only add one word or application; and it is this. I have been speaking to you of Christ's glory in representing his church unto Ged; I would only ask your consciences this one question, How do you think to appear before God? You all know, or profess you know, that there is a God, (as certainly there is; and, I may fay, more furely than that there is any thing elfe; for God only is the necessary, all creatures are but contingent beings, Rev. iv. 11.); you know, that this God doth always fee you; that as he thinks of you, fo is your state in his fight; that God will at last judge you, and proclaim to you, and all the world, his thoughts and judgment of you; you daily worship and serve him: But how do you now appear before him? is a queftion few ask. Many never think of this till it be too late, By what means and ways shall I make such an appearance before G as to be graciously accepted with him? This feems to be on their hearts in Micah vi. 6. though they did not know the right way. And to is it at this day with many finners. I would warn you of fome of those false ways in which men think to appear before God.

1. Some think to appear before God in the same own, that they are not so good as he was, nor so good as they ought to be; but they think, that since men are so impoverished by Adam's fall, God will now accept a man with a little, if it be his all. But such deluded people do not know, that as Adam left them nothing at all that is pleasing to God; fo he hath left them in a state of sin, wrath, and condemnation, in which all his posterity are born, and live in, and perish at last in, unless they are delivered from it by Jesus Christ.

2. Some think to appear before God in the best drefs they can make for themselves, by their good meanings and purposes, their good duties and works. They labour hard and long to amend their ways, vo adorn their duties, and themselves by them; and thus think to prefent them! wes to God's acceptance, This garment of our own righteousness is beautiful in their own fight; for felf-love naturally makes men to prize their felf-doings. It is a garment beautiful al-form the fight of men; and of them they have their reward, as Christ told such men, Matth. vi. 2. 5. 16. And this dress is the more praised when it is in fallion. Hypocrites praise hypocrites: and the church is full of them. So, from their own valuing, and others praising of them, they, in their ignorance, think that God will be as well pleafed with them. But, aias! this is no better than that fad state Paul speaks of, Rom. x. 3. For they being ignorant of God's righteoufness, and going about to establish their own righteousness, have not submitted themselves unto the righteousness of God.

3. Some think to appear before God for acceptance with their sufferings. If they can do but little, they think they suffer much. This is a strange vanity. Of these sufferings, some are voluntary, sinfully imposed on men by themselves. That people speak strangely, Mich vi. 6, 7. Wherewith shall some before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt officines, with cales of a year old? (and these were commanded in the law); will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? (those were more than ever God commanded, or than they could bring); shall I give my first-born for my transform. greffion.

greffion, the fruit of my body for the fin of my foul? A Hrielly forbidden abomination. When you read of this practice that fome were left unto, to offer their children in facrifice, think not that they hated their children: nay, they loved them as well as you do yours: but they loved their fouls better, and teared God's anger more; and they thought, that what was dearest to them, and what they were lothest to part with. God would most accept of. (What a conviction may this give to many Christians, who find it so hard to submit to the Lord's taking away their children, either by a natural or violent death; when a blind idolater is fo mad upon his idols, that he will voluntarily make a facrifice of his children unto their false gods, or devils, as they are called, Pful. cvi. 37.?). So natural is it unto men, in their ignorance of God, to think, that what they do impose upon themselves, especially if it be troublesome to their flesh, is pleasing unto, yea meritorious before God, From this fpring do all the voluntary felf-scourgings, &c. amongst Papists proceed; which have no bet te example in God's word than that of Baal's prophets in I Kings xviii. 28.; and have no better acceptance with God than they had. But what will not a suner do; what shift will he not betake himself unto, who feeth his fins, feels or fears God's wrath for them. and is ignorant of the only city of refuge, Jefus Chrift? Many mock at the folly both of Pagans and Papills, in their ways of feeking pardon and peace, whic, if they were as much awakened in their confeience, and as ignorant of Christ as they, would either betcke themselves to the same poor shifts, or to others as vain. Again, Some fufferings are commanded; as James iv. 9 Be offlicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to beaviness. There is a time to mourn, and there are calls to it; and we fliould differn both, and fet about this duty. There are many merry and jovial profeffors, that never mind mourning for themselves or others.

others, but when God makes them by his rods; and it is well if they do so then. But now, when a man, with much pains, hath laboured with his beart, and hath afflisted it with grief and forrow; and when this ftorm within breaks out in tears, and he pours them out before the Lord, as they did, Judg. ii. 4, 5. and may call his bed, (as David did his, Pfal. vi. 6.), or chamber, or closet, a Bochim; how eafily doth a man grow proud and vain, and think within himfelf, "Now I have offered an acceptable facrifice to God?" It is true, that the facrifices of God are a broken spirit: A broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou will not despise, Pfal. li. 17. But we must always remember these three things about all our spiritual facrifices. 1. That as they must be all of his requiring, so they must be of his providing. We have nothing to offer to God that he will accept, till he give it to us, and till he first work it in us. David's broken heart was first given to him. Dreadful fins first lay quiet in his hard heart, till God broke it. 2. That a broken heart is always a humble heart. It begins to grow whole again (and quickly it will, unless the breaker of it keep it broken) when it begins to be proud. Such as have a good opinion of their own hearts, know not what a broken heart means. He that hath a broken heart, is broken with his vile heart; as the Lord speaks of his grief at mens whole hearts. Ezek. vi. 9. 3. That all our spiritual facifices, and a broken heart, must be offered to God for acceptance on the right altar, and by the right High Priest, Jesus Christ. As he, in dealing with God for our redemption, was both altar, and priest, and facrifice; so, in all our dealings with God by him, we must be furnished with our facrifice out of his store; we must offer up all to God by him as our Priest, Heb. xiii. 15.; for they are only acceptable to God by Fefus Christ, 1 Pet. ii. 5. And we must have and use Christ as our altar to fanctify our gifts, Matth. xxiii. 19. is

is grievons to hear what fad ground there is to fear, that fome professors think more oft, and think more highly, of their own tears, than of the redeeming blood of the Son of God. Lastly, There are affic-tions of God's inslicting and laying on; always laid on justly and righteously. No man should complain of them, or of God, when under them. All believers thould neither despife nor faint under them. Heb. xii, 6, 7. But no man must think of appearing before God with acceptance, merely because he is afflided. God afflids his children in love: and he loves them not the less that they are afflicted. But affliction itself, and our own cross, must not rob Christ's cross of its glory, of making peace with God for finners. Col. i. 20. I should not mention this, but that you know, that there are some so ignorant as the say when greatly afflicted, "I am now enduring the punishment of my sins;" yea, when dying, they think that the very agony of death is a punishment of, yea an expiation for all the sins of their life. So grossly ignorant are many that live in a land of light. It is true, that all the miseries of this life, yea death itself, to an unbeliever, are the punishment of sin; they are but a finall and short part of that punishment. But, alas! where is the payment of fin, and the fatisfaction that God demands, and will only accepi? Nothing a sinner can do or suffer, can ever amount to that.

I would conclude this exercise with these two words.

r. All that adventure to appear before God as they are in and of themselves, are ignorant both of God and of theinfelves. They neither know how holy and just he is, nor how vile they are. If they did, they would never venture stubble fully dry before this confuming fire.

2. Al that dare not adventure on Jesus Christ, and or its reprefenting them to God for acceptance, known either the Father nor the Son. This is the glorious

glorious contrivance in his eternal counsels, and is delivered to us in his word, as the record of God, 1 John v. 10. 11. extracted out of these counsels, that a great number of finners, vile and unworthy in themselves, shall be accepted in that beloved, and shall be beloved for his fake, and in him. How hard a thing do believers themselves find it to believe this firmly and constantly, what a glorious representation Jesus Christ can make of fuch vile creatures as we be in ourselves. when he clothes us with his righteousness? It is no easy thing for a true Christian, when he is digging into the dunghill of his own heart, and lothing himfelf for all his abominations; at the same time to believe, that he stands accepted before the throne of God, as found and feen in Christ, clothed with Christ's garment of a spotless righteousness, that no fault can be found with, even at the highest tribunal, nor any condemnation can come from thence to the happy man that wears it. There is no condemnation to them that are in Christ Jesus; because it is God that justifieth all that believe on him, Rom. viii. 1. 33, 34.

SERMON XII.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou levedst me before the foundation of the world.

Am yet on the third thing in the matter of our Lord's prayer in this verse. The first was, the description of them he prays for: Those whom thou hast given me. The second is, the blessing he prays for to them: That they may be with me where I am. The third is, the end for which Christ prays for this blessing to them. What shall they get by being with Christ where he is? What shall they do, and how shall they be employed? That they may behold my glory which thou hast given me. That will find them work enough, and bliss enough, to eternity. On this I proposed two things to be handled. I. The glory of Christ. And, 2. The beholding of his glory.

On the first of these, the glory of Christ, I have spoke a little on two heads. 1. Christ's glory as he represents God to men. 2. As Christ represents men to God. There are two most important questions that rise in the mind of every serious man; and he is a sintul and miserable person that never sound them in his own heart, and knows not how to answer them rightly. 1. How may a sinful man so take up God, as we know him truly and savingly? And, 2. What way may God look upon a sinful man graciously? Both suswered one way. It is only in his Son Jesus Christ. If we look on God out of Christ, we are consounded; if God look on us out of Christ, we are destroyed.

destroyed. We are not able to behold the glory of God, but in the face of Christ; and we are not able to avoid his wrath, unless we be found in Christ, and accepted of God in him.

Wherein Christ represents his church to God, how fit he is to make this representation, and what Christ's glory is in making of it, I spoke of last day. This representation that Christ makes of his church unto God, is for their acceptance with God; and that acceptance never fails, where this reprefentation is made. It is acceptance with that God that knoweth all things, and judgeth rightly of all things and perfons. How then can a just God accept a man that in himfelf is a finner, and therein do justiy? A hard question, that only is answered in the gospel. It is, because Christ represents a sinuer to God for acceptance; and this acceptance must be, where this reprefentation is made by Christ. 1. Because Christ covers all that is finful and lothfome in the man, by his righteousness. And, 2. By the same righteousness, not only covereth his nakedness and deformity, but puts a beauty upon the man; though it is not in him, but in Christ, yet is on him by grace; as Ezek. xvi. 14. Thy beauty was perfect through my comeliness which I had put upon thee, saith the Lord. By this imputed righteousness of Christ put upon a believer in Christ, his own sin is covered, and the believer flands clothed, and fo is beautiful in God's fight, in this gifted righteoufness, and is justly justified by God the Judge of all. See Pfal. xxxii. 1, 2. with Paul's comment on it, in Rom. iv. 6, 7, 8. Even as David also describeth the blessedness of the man unto whom God imputeth righteoujness, without works, saying, Bleffed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, whose sins are covered. Bleffed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute fin. A few remarks on these two fcriptures, thall be all I shall fay on the doctrinal part, and then proceed in application. The first thing I remark, is this: That the apostle names only those words words of the Pfalmist that belong to his present purpofe. He is handling the doctrine of the justification of a figner. This bleffed doctrine he had taught in the preceeding chapter, with fo clear a light, that all the darkness of hell will never be able to put out, or quench, in the church of Christ. This blessing, he teacheth, comes by the free grace of God, in and by the redemption made by Christ; and is given by God. and possessed by men, by faith in Christ's redeeming blood, without any interest of the works of the law therein. Christ indeed dealt with the law, and fulfilled all the righteousness thereof, for our justification: but we have nothing to do with the law, in our dealing with God for our justification; but to come with is condemning fentence in our guilty conscience, that we y lay hold of Christ's righteousness; which, as it initialed the law, when wrought out by Christ; so it sprinkles our consciences, when applied to us by his Spirit and grace, and when it is applied unto by us by faith. And those two applications are inseparable, and both the fruits of the faving grace of God. This doctrine Paul confirms by two instances, in two emineur taints, in this fourth che pter; Abraham before the law, ver 1 .--- 5. and afterwards in this chapter; and David under the law, ver. 6, 7, 8. Whatever difference there was in the dispensations they were under, (and there was a great one); yet there was none in the way of their justification before God. Both were by God's grace, without the works of the law, without work, without hire, without any glorying before God. Now, David had faid in Pial. xxxii. 2. Bleffed is the man also, in whose spirit there is no guile. But this pertaining to the bleffing of fanctification, though inseparable from that of justification, (which is the apostle's distinct theme in this context), is therefore wifely omitted by the apostle. A second thing I remark, in comparing these two scriptures, is this: That whereas David lays the blessedness on the pardoned man, the man whose sins are covered, the man to whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity; Paul tells us, the herein David describeth the blessedness of the man unto whom God imputeth righteousness without works. when he said so. David saith nothing of the inputing of righteousness, but only of the not imputing of fiv. Paul teacheth, that the not imputing of sin, is the same with the imputing of rightenus-ness, and that without works also. A few things will ferve to clear this. 1. Every man's state before God, is as God judgeth and reckons of him. His account and reckoning of a man is always right and true; and it is always decifive and determining; for it is the highest Judge's sentence. Thus is it now, thus will it always be. This judgment of this supreme Judge concerning them, is always about fin, or righteousness. His condemning sentence is for sin; his approving sentence is for righteousness. To clear the guilty, and to condemn the righteous, are both an abomination to the Lord, in an earthly judge, Prov. xvii. 15. And who, without blasphemy, can charge the Judge of all the earth with it! Gen. xviii, 25. Every man therefore, even now, is in God's fight under a sentence, either of condemnation, because of fin; or of approbation, because of righteousness; that is, in the dialect of the Holy Ghost, hath either fin imputed to him for condemnation, or righteousness imputed to him for the justification of life, as Paul calls it, Rom. v. 18 3. Sin and righteonfiness are contrastics, and expel one another, and cannot confift together. Guilty, or not guilty, every one is, and must be in the eye of God, and at the bar of God's law and judgment. If guilty, then not righteous, and therefore condemned; if not guilty, then righteous, and there-fore absolved and acquitted. This alternative, finful, or lawful, reacheth to all our thoughts and actions; and thus are they judged by God, as contrary or confonant to the law, the rule. And also graty, or not guilty, or rightcous, reacheth to the flate of all persons before God; and thus are we all judged and iccounted

accounted of by the Lord, as we are under fin, or under rightcousness. 4. Now when man is fallen, and there is nothing but fin in man, and no rightcousness can be found in him, God hath provided a righteoufness without him, in and by which he may only, and may furely, and may justly, be justified before God. Of which we have been speaking. This is that righteousness of Christ, in which all believers on him fland accepted before God. It is imputed to them. and therefore their fin is not imputed to them; and thus are they judged and absolved at God's throne of grace in Christ Jesus. So that, to conclude this, un-less all that we are, all that we have done, be cover-ed by this rightcousness; unless there be a reckoning of this righteousness of Christ to us by God; sin, our own fin, will be imputed to us for condemnation. It is only this righteoufness that is justly precious in the judgment of God, and makes sinful man accepted with him.

Inference 1. Behold here the wonderful grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, in thus representing his church and people to God. The apostle said, 2 Cor. viii. 9. For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich. He supposeth, that all true Christians doth know Christ's grace: and justly; for God knows, and all men may judge them unworthy of that name, that do not know it. Christ's grace is a lovely theme to hear of, and to think on, by all that have tafted of it, and live by it. This grace shineth brightly in his representing his people to God for acceptance. It was a great condescendence of his grace, to take the office of a reprefenter of his church. He knew his own divine dignity; he knew the vileness and unworthiness of them whom he was to reprefent: yet neither of them hindred his chearful undertaking of this office. And as it was condescending grace in him to undertake it;

fo was it costly grace to him to go through with it, and discharge it. Blessed Jesus laid out all his estate (to speak so) to redeem the lawful captives of justice. Before they can be represented to God for acceptance, he must die, and shed his blood; and in his garments dyed with his own blood must he present himself as a perfected Mediator unto God, and in the fame garments prefent his church to God for acceptance. This matter of our acceptance with God is not brought about by the prayers of Christ on earth, nor by his intercession in heaven: though we are apt to think, that such prayers of such a supplicant might do any thing. Yea, any thing but this: Without shedding of blood, there is no remission, Heb. ix. 22. And no blood but Christ's goes for an atonement, Rom. v. 9, 10. He had no fin of his own. But when he was charged with the fins of his people, he must shed his blood as a sacrifice for propitiation. When Christ stands thus charged at the bar of justice, he was not spared, but was dealt with as strictly as another finner. When law and justice takes a finner by the throat, it faith to him, Pay me that thou owest; as Matth. xviii. 28. in the parable there. And this charge is still on all that are out of Christ; though they are now deaf, and do not hear it. This charge is on all the prisoners in hell, "Pay your debts to "God, or no getting out of prison." But this charge was only on Christ, "Pay what thou owest as surety " for a multitude of beggars and debtors. They have "nothing to pay; thou art rich, and able to pay. "Thou hast undertaken to pay; and therefore full " payment must be made ere thou enter into glory, "and thy people be prefented to God with accep-tance." And this charge Christ obeyed and anfwered, by which his church is faved. So great was his obedience to his Father's commandment, fo great was his zeal for his own and his Father's glory, and so great was his love to his church, that he gave himfelf for it, Eph. v. 25, 26, 27. Now, as it is all Christians Vol. II. Gg

Christians duty to behold this grace of our Lord lefus Christ, and it is their great advantage so to do; fo the best find it no easy thing to believe it with application to themselves, so as to say, as in Gal. ii. 20. Christ lived me, and gave himself for me. For when they see a little of themselves, (and but a little is seen, and all bad), and a little of his glory, (and it is but a little of that that believers can fee, with fuch ball eyes as the best have, and in so dark and distant a place as this is where we are); then they find it hard to believe, that Christ will clothe their filthy nakedness with that garment of falvation wove out of his own blood and bowels; and in it prefent them to God's favour and love, and to all the precious fruits of it. But for as hard as it is, all the true worthippers in the New Testament temple are bound to believe, that their great High Priest set over the house of God, doth represent them unto God for acceptance, far more really, (for that was but typically), and much more successfully, than Aaron did Israel in the folemn day of atonement. But it is as truly, as commonly, faid, That fuch as think believing easy, know not what believing is.

Inference 2. Here we may fee the excellent way of our acceptance with God. We are accepted in his Son Jesus Christ. The salvation we get upon our acceptance with God, and the blessed way in which this acceptance cometh, are equally to be beheld with wonder, and praise, and saith. This excellent way is the only way of a finner's acceptance with God. There was another way; but that was of the acceptance, not of a sinner, but of a sinless man, with God. But that is gone. In commending this only way now, I would have you confider, that there have been two ways of man's acceptance with God, of God's making. One way was, that in the first Adam; that is past. The other is in the second Adam; this stands, and will remain for ever. There is also another way, of man's making, that is neither in the fiell.

first, nor second Adam. This is a dream that the greatest part of mankind dream to hell in. They dream of it as long as they live; and when they die, and go to hell, they awake, and behold it was a dream: for neither the mourning of the law, nor the piping of the gospel, awakens them out of it, Matth. xi. 17. And this way is by a finful man's own doing. and pleasing God. Of each of those a little.

1. The first way of man's acceptance was fixed in the first Adam, and in God's covenant with him. Obedience was required, and death threatened for difobedience. But God graciously furnished him with endowments fufficient for his work. The Lord by this way, did therein fignify, that mankind should fland accepted with him as represented by his covenant-head. So in Rom. v. 14. the first Adam is called the figure (or type) of him that was to come; that is, Christ. The apostle is, from ver. 12. to the end of the chapter, shewing vast unlikeness, yea, contrariety betwirt these two heads of mankind: in what each did; obedience and disobedience: in what they brought in; the first man brings in by his disobedience fin, condemnation, and death; the fecond man brings in by his obedience, righteoutness, justification, and eternal life: all as contrary as light and darkness, heaven and hell. How, and wherein is Adam then faid to be the figure, the type of Jefus Christ? Is it not in this, that as the two were true men, and so they were single persons; yet they both were federal, covenant-heads, and representatives of a great many; Adam of all his natural off-fpring; Christ of all his spiritual offspring, given to him of the Father? And as the first Adam stood accepted with God in the righteousness of his obedience; so did his posterity stand on the same account. And if he had continued in his obedience, all his posterity had been accepted in him: but because he became by his fall a sinner, the first Adam became thereby a destroyer, and brought in fin and death death on all his posterity, by the justice of the curse of the broken covenant; and hath the guilt of fin imputed, and the depraved nature which by his fin he contraded, propagated unto all his posterity. So that the best of saints is conceived and born in sin, Psal. li. 5.; and all are by nature children of disobedience, and of wrath, Eph. ii. 3. So this way is quite unpaffable. A covenant betwixt a holy God, and a dead defiled finner, was never intended by God: and it is dillionourable to God's holinefs, and wifdom, and justice, to imagine any fuch covenant.

2 The other was of God's making, is, for the acceptance of finful men by his Son Jefus Chrift, and God's covenant with him for his redeemed offipring. If our Father Adam had flood as God had placed him, there had been nothing required of us, or needed by us, in order to the instating us in the favour and friendship of God; whatever had been needful for our continuing in it. His obedience, if continued. would have entailed and conveyed that to us in our feveral generations. So now in Christ, the second Adam, the favour of God was bought for us by him, (for it was lost by the first Adam); it stands in him, and is conveyed to us through him, when the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus, doth make us free from the law of sin and death, Rom. viii. 2. Those are all the ways of God's making. But,

3. There is a way of man's making and deviling, (as fallen man is full of foolish inventions); and it is this, to obtain God's favour by their own doings and obedience. The Lord never put any to this, though many think that he hath put all men to it. There never were but two finless men in the world; Adam and Christ. The obedience God required of Adam was not to instate him, and bring him into God's favour and friendship; (for that he was created in): but it only was to continue him in it, and to convey the same friendship with God unto all his posterity. But how to regain God's favour when lott by fin,

what way to make up the breach when made, Adam did not, could not know it, till God revealed it after his fall. So Christ's work and business in the world, was not to obtain God's friendthip for himfelf; for he from eternity was the Son of his Father's love, and his Father's everlasting delight. As man, when conceived in the womb of the virgin, he was that holy thing that was to be born of her, Luke i. 35.; and while he lived in the world, he always did these things that pleased his Father, John viii. 29. As to his office of Mediator, he was installed in it most honourably, and glorified by it, Heb. v. s. His discharge of it was the pleasure of Jebovah, Isa. liii. 10. He made it his meat to do the will of him that fent him. and to finish his work, John iv. 34.; was straitened, pained, till his baptism, in his own blood, was accomplished, Luke xii. 50.; desired with desire to eat his last passover, Luke xxii. 15. After that, he appointed his supper for a memorial of his death, and for an ordinance-feal of that new testament which he was the next day to confirm and ratify by his blood. And when all this is done, he opens his heart in love to his disciples about his death, and the good they should get by it in his absence; with a firm promise of their happy meeting again, in a better place and state than he either found or left them in, in John xiv. 15, 16. And last of all, he opens his heart to his Father, John xvii. 4. I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. When all things stood thus betwixt Christ and his Father; what need then was there of all the heavy fufferings which he was put to, and which he must endure, as he often told them before? That necessity he was under of suffering, was from this, That he came to give his life a ranfom for many Matt. xx. 28.; and was verily fore-ordained before the foundation of the world, to redeem his people with the price of his precious and spotless blood, i Peter i. 19, 20. But this invention of man's heart, in feeking God's:

favour and acceptance by their own works and doings. is not only not appointed by God, and never successful to any man, (for that no man is justified by the law in the fight of God, it is evident, Gal. iii. 11.; but no evidence is convincing to a blind and proud legalift); but also this way is a perverting of both the ways of God's appointment. If they will be for God's old way with Adam in innocence, then they must be sinless, and in God's friendship, as he was; they must have all the abilities Adam had for obedience, to maintain that friendship. But though sinful man be proud and vain, yet none have the forehead to pretend to innocent standing Adam's covenant-state and ability. As for the only way of regaining God's favour by Jefus Christ, this new and wicked way overthrows it. For if righteousness come by the law, then Christ is dead in vain; and Paul thould fruftrate the grace of God, if he fought to live by the law, Gal. ii. 19, --- 21. But the unbelieving world runs after this invention: for they are too poor to answer the exact perfect holinefs of God's true law, and too proud to fubmit themselves to the righteousness of God. They do as the cunning knave did, Luke xvi. 2, 4 they cannot dig with old Adam, and to beg of the fecond Adam, they are all amed; and therefore strive to live by nicks and cheating. But God is not mocked. And thus multitudes periff, not only in the Heathen and Antichristian world, but in that that is called Christian: For this damnable error is natural, and is in the heart of every one that is an unbeliever, profess what he will in words and principles.

But the only gospel way of finners acceptance with God, by the representation that Christ makes of them unto God, hath these things to commend it above God's first way with Adam and his seed in the first covenant.

1. In that it is a most glorious way of acceptance, far higher and better than what Adam had while ho flood, or than his posterity would have had if he had flood.

stood. For, on this supposition of Adam's Standing, fin had indeed been kept out; but the acceptance continued to Adam and his posterity, had had no better and nobler foundation than that of the obedience and righteousness of a creature, a mere man. Hue now believers in Christ stand accepted of God, in the obedience and righteousness of Christ, who is God over all, bleffed for ever: fo that every one of them may fay, as Ifa. xlv. 24. In the Lord have I rightecufness and strength. I own that this way stops all glorying in ourselves; but it is fitted for raising, and keeping up eternal glorying in the Lord, 1 Cor. i. 29,--21. It is not the least, but the greatest, rather, of the honour of the crown of glory in heaven, thac the crown itself, and the kingdom, and the heirs of it, were all bought with the blood of the Lamb: and that their title to it now, and their possessing of it to eternity, hath no other, nor lower foundation, than the righteousness of God, the righteousness of a man, who is the Lord our righteousness, Jer. xxiii. 6. And thus God's Israel half be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation. Isa. xlv. 17.

2. This way is a more fafe way and fure than Adam's way, or God's old way with Adam. The uncertainty of that way was feen in the event quickly. The flock of mankind was all in his hand: he was furnished with sufficient grace to keep him standing, (his case is enough to make us hate the popish diffinetion, and fense, of sufficient and efficacious grace, with reference to fallen man); but he was but a mere man, and was left to the freedom of his own perfect will, (enough to difgrace the false name of free will in a finner, a flave to his will and lufts, and a captive to the devil at his will, 2 Tim. ii 26). But it pleafed God (and against that no man should reply) not to give him establishing, preferving grace. It seemed hi unto God, that establishing grace should only be difpenfed in and by Jefus Christ, who was to restore fallen man, and to be the head of a new and better covenant, of which Christ is Mediator, which was eflablished on better promises, Heb. viii. 6. Establishing grace was given to the flanding angels. Christ is their head, Col. ii. 10.; and they are called elect angels. 1 Tim. v. 21. Now, if it had been affeed Adam. or an angel, concerning him, How long thall Adam fland in God's fayour? the only answer could have been, As long as he is obedient to his maker and covenant-party. Ask again, How long shall Christ the Mediator stand in God's favour? It is answered. For ever: and it is impossible it should be otherwise. But if it again be asked, How long shall a believer in Christ, whom Christ hath represented to God for acceptance, how long shall he stand accepted? this hath feveral answers, but only one good one. And that is, A believer flands always accepted with God, as long as Christ is accepted with God as the reprefenter. As long as the believer is represented by Christ, fo long continueth his state of acceptance with God. Adam, in his first state, had all grace but establishing grace, in his good state. The elect angels had it, and thereby flood, and do always behold the face of Christ's Father which is in heaven, Matth. xviii. 10. They need no other grace, but establishing grace to keep them well, when they were well. But Adam fallen, and all his offspring, need restoring grace to make them well, and more grace to make them better, and preferving grace to keep them unto the heavenly kingdom. All this grace is out of Christ's fulnefs, and secures the happy state of all that are in him.

3. By this way of our acceptance with God in Christ, a greater bleffedness cometh unto men than could have come by Adam if he had stood. The first mention of eternal life, is made after his fall, Gen. iii. 22. It is indeed a deep and dark text; but that I named it for, is, That in it, living for ever, is first named, which afterwards is so frequently promifed in Christ

Christ to his church. To this that plainly relates, Rev. ii. 7. To him that evercameth will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God. We need not trouble our heads about the extent of the bleffings in the first covenant of God with Adam, and mankind in him. The Spirit of God fpeaks very little thereof: and that wifely; for why should he reveal bleffings which no man was to partake of? But what is plainly revealed, is, that this covenant was utterly broke by Adam's fin; and by that breach, guilt, and wrath, and death, came in upon the world; for which the only relief is by Jesus Christ. The first dawning of which our first parents faw in that first gospel, Gen. iii. 15. and expressed their takh of it in that worship which was appointed them, Gen iv.; and they did recover the favour of God by this new way and covenant, which they had loft by their fig under the first. There was doubtless somewhat hagular in that communion with God, which our parents, and Abel, and who elfe of mankind were then born, had, that is called the face of the Lord, Gen. iv. 14. and the presence of the Lord, ver. 16. that the reprobate Cain counted it his mifery and punishment to be banished from: for he thought, that when he was cast out of God's presence, he was also cast out of God's protection; and then was afraid, lest every man or beast might prove his executioner: and therefore God gave him a pass and a protection; which it is Lke was all he fought, or got. But now in Christ Jefus, and on the account of his righteouthers, not only all the curfe of the first broken covenant is removed, but greater bleffings are conveyed to us, and bestowed on us, and a better paradife provided for us, than that which Adam finned in, and was driven from. He finned in it almost as foon as he was put in it; and was driven out of it as foon as he had finned: and both of them concern and affect all us his posterity, as much as they did him. Sinners we are in and by his fin, and cast out of God's favour in and by his being cast Vol. II. Нh out;

out; and there is no relief for us but in Jesus Christ. But this relief is with vast advantage, Rom. v. 12,---

Examine then your hearts, how they stand affected towards this new and living way to the holiest of all by Jesus Christ. It is a good rule for one to judge his own state by; even by his true, fixed, and approved thoughts of I fus Christ, as the only way to God's favour and friendthip, 1 Cor. v. 23, 24. 1 Pet. ii. 7. How blind must that man be, who hath hopes of heaven, and hath no hearty favour and relith of God's only way to heaven? If men mind heaven, and feek it, and hope for it in ways of their own deviling, they are never a whit the nearer to it, nor the furer of it. That you may not be deceived now, and disappointed wofully at last, I would show you some thoughts of mens hearts, that are common, fieful, and dategerous; that ye may beware of them.

1. Some fay within themselves, and it may be to Ged too, "O that God would accept of me of his " great mercy, and look graciously on me!" And is not this a good with? Is it not a frequent prayer of faints in the word? and is it not to be still used by all? Yes: all this is true. But it is only good when it is well meant: in many it is ill meant; and therefore is a faulty with. All the mercy of God flows to men only in and by Jesus Christ. If Christ be torgot in your prayers, you can never put up one good one, nor get a good answer. The mercy of God without Christ, is a dream that the greatest part of the world dream to hell in; and all the while think they are in the right road to heaven. How oft have you heard, that there is no God to be favingly known, and rightly worthipped, but in Christ? and that there is no faving mercy to be found from God, but in Jefus Chriff?

2. Some fay, and think they fay better, "O that God would make me perfectly holy, that I may be " accepted of him!" Is not this a brave defire and prayer? prayer? True holiness is indeed an excellent blefling; a main part of the image of God in flanding Adam. utterly lost and defaced in fallen man, renewed again by Jefus Christ in regeneration, and perfected in heaven. The study of holiness is an excellent study, and a study for all our days. We should be still perfecting of it. 2 Cor. vii. 1. but cannot in this life be perfect in it, Phil, iii. 12. Perfect holiness is an excellent aim and defign, and is in the heart and eye of every one that is truly holy. Diligence, and continuance in it, and to grow in holiness, is a faint's best exercise; and success therein his choicest mercy. The holiest man on earth is furely the happiest man on earth: and the perfection of holiness in heaven, is a necessary constituent of the happiness of heaven. A patron of fin, a despifer of holiness, and he that defires but a little of it, hath not the Spirit of God. But for all this, there may lurk some evil thing in this wish for perfect holiness. To search it out, I would name a few things to you. 1. There is no true holiness but what is from Christ, who is made of God unto us sanctification, 1 Cor. i. 30. None are andified but by faith in him, Acts xxvi. 18. It is Christ's image in them. All the moral virtues of the Heathen, for all their splendid lustre, had not any bit of true holiness in them. And so is it as to the morality that is fo prized and praifed by many. 2. As all that are truly holy, would fain be perfectly holy, (for no man is void of this defire, but fuch as would fin more, and love fin); fo no man is truly holy, but he hath a mean and low efteem of his own holiness; and the most happy proficient in holinefs, is furely the humbleit faint. 3. Whenever holiness is sought to recommend us to God's acceptance, without faith in Christ, there is no holiness in that defire, nor will it ever be granted. For in this case the language of the heart is, " O that I " were fo holy, that I might not need Jefus Christ!" What an ungodly wish is this? I hope you all abhor the thought of it. 3. Ir Hh 2

3. It is also common with many to fay, "O that "Go" would accept of me, and my good works and "dution, or Christ's fake!" Many poor creatures take plans to do all they can in obeying God's will; and war a they find it is but little they do, and that also full of finful mixture and importaction, then they bring in Christ to help them cut. But this is to abase, and to affront Christ: for Christ was never appointed to help men under the first covenant of works; but only to bring them out of it; and then fave them by the new and better covenant, wherein the Mediator doth all the redeeming work for them by himself alone; and by his Spirit given them, works in them what is pleasing in his fight. But this carnal wish of having our works accepted for Christ's sake, faith, 1. That the man thinks he can do fomething (and that is no small thing in this vain man's eyes) without Christ; contrary to the well-known word of his, John xv. 5. Without me ye can do nothing, spoken to, and of them that were in him: and much more may it be faid of them that are not in him. Yet there is hardly to be found a natural man, who thinks not but that he can do somewhat that Heafeth God, and may further his acceptance with God: but because it is not fo much and fo good as it should be, he would have help from Christ to make it better, and more effectual with God. But the bottom of all this is felf. 2. Christ's righteousness was not wrought out by him, and tendered to men in the gospel, as a clout, or patch, or ornament, to be put upon any one part of the shameful nakedness and deformity of a finner, but as a perfect and entire garment for covering all. So that they that have it all on them, have none of it; and he that received it not at a'l, and doth not trust alone to Christ's righteousness, as to the only screen from the holy justice of God, and the only ornament of beauty in God's fight, is still stout-hearted, and far from righteousness. 3.

The acceptance of our fervice and obedience to God, is indeed a precious thing, and much defired by all fincere Christians; but the way it is got, is hittle known by many that feem earnest for it. The Lord's way is this: First, by Christ, and union with him, the believer's person is accepted of God; and then through Christ the fruits of his faith (as all true good works are) become accepted alfo. So in the beginning of the world, Gen. iv. 4, 5. when the two brothers offered their facrifices, and both to the Lord. to the same true God, and the offerings in themselves lawful, and afterwards by the written law were required; yet it is faid, that the Lord had respect to Abel, and to his offering; but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. Wherein lay the difference between their offerings? Heb. xi. 4. By faith Abel offered unto God a more acceptable facrifice than Cain; by which he obtained witness that he was righteous; God testifying of his gifts: and by it, he being dead, yet speaketh, or is spoken of. And from distinguishing grace, as Abel was received and accepted: so Cain was enraged, and turned a murderer of his brother, I John iii. 12.; which made Luther fay, that Cain hath been murdering Abel in all ages, to this day; that is, the zealots for the righteoufness of works, do Hill hate and perfecute the beirs of the righteoufnefs which is by faith, as Noah is called in Heb. xi. 7.

But the only right breathing of the heart of one that truly knoweth and believeth this truth, That Christ is the only representer of his people unto God for acceptance, is that of Paul, in Phil. iii. 8, 9, 10, and it is in three things. 1. Pliat he might win or gain Christ, ver. 8. Then he counts he is rich enough, and despiseth all losses, for this gain 2. That he might be found in Christ, ver. 9. As if he had said, 11 know the day is coming, when God the judge of 12 all will find out every man, and me also. My defign and desire is, that I may be found in Christ; 13 and then I am sure I shall be found in peace.

But how would he be found in Christ? Not having mine own rightecufness, which is of the law, (I am aresid and ashamed of appearing before God in it); but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteoufness which is of God by faith; that righteousness which is of God's providing and accepting, that which is of Christ's working out, and which is applied and put on by faith. It is this righteousness the apostle defires to be found in, in order to his acceptance with God; and so will every person do that hath that spirn that Paul taught this dostrine by. 3. That I may know Christ, ver. 10. "If I win Christ, I am rich " towards God; if I be found in him, I am fafe; if "I know him, I am wife to falvation." Bleffed is that man or woman that feeleth in his or her heart. fomewhat of that deep humility, strong faith, and warm love, which wrought in Paul's heart, when he, by the Holy Ghost, wrote these words. Then they would be plainly and eafily understood. But when men know and feel nothing of themselves, and of their own unrighteousness, nor of Christ, and of his righregularels, and no Christian should wonder at such mens blundering about, and mistaking of such evangelical expressions of faith in Jesas Christ, which thine as day to an exercifed believer; while the unbeliever, though a master in Israel, can see no light in them, but gropes, as if he had no eyes, and stumbles at noon day, as in the night; as it is said in Isa. lix. to.

So much for the two in rences from this doctrine. I would now further apply this truth in two exhortations: one to unbelievers, and another to believers.

Exhart. 1. Unto unbelievers. Who are they? By unbelievers, we mean fuch as never had any bustness with Christ, to obtain by him acceptance with God for themielves. He is an unbeliever, call him by what name you will, that never employed Christ for repretenting him unto God for acceptance. Of fuch there are many forts; paffing what hath been faid of some, that seek the acceptance of their works, not of their

their persons. Some beg communications of grace and mercy from God, and use not God's way of giving all, in and by Jesus Christ. Some beg the pardon of their sins, and the washing away of their defilements; but do not ask this, How shall a finful man fland so beautiful in God's eyes, as that God may look on him, and not be angry; may look on him. and love him? That fort of pardon that many feek, is never given; and if given, would not answer the end. A mere pardon of ha, (if it were possible), without a garment of righteousness upon a man, might deliver him from wrath and hell; but would not make him lovely in God's eyes, nor intitle him to eternal life: for it is grace that reigns to eternal life through righteousness; and that grace, that reign of grace, that righteousness, and that eternal life, are all by Jefus Christ our Lord, Rom. v. 21. But true gospel-lorgiveness, and the imputing of Christ's righteoutness, are inseparable and indivisible.

Of those unbelievers are specially three forts. 1. The fecure, fleepy unbelievers; fuch as hive no heart concern about this matter; and never think in earnest how they shall stand accepted of God; nor of Christ's concern in procuring it, nor of their own concern in obtaining it by him. Such men are much like to that great man, though a blind Pagan, in Acts xxv. 19. They had certain questions against him of their own suferstition, and of one Jesus, which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive. Little did that poor Roman know, that he must perish for ever, if he knew not this Jesus, and the virtue of his death, and the power of his refurrection. As indifferent and careless are many toners this day, that when they hear of Christ, and of the necessity of his righteousnefs to finners for heir acceptance with Gol, they are ready to fay, That they are certain hard questions about things and perform that they have no concern with. Whether Jeins was dead or plive, whether the lews or Paul was in the right; all was alike to Feffus. So to many now, Whether a finner can weave and work for himfelf a garment to fland accepted with God in? or, Whether he must have one made for him, and given to him by Jefus Christ, or perish for ever? are counted but questions for miniilers and scholars, and such as they have different and contrary opinions about. And the careless unbeliever troubleth not his head about them; and that only because his heart never selt the weight of sin, and the vast concern of eternal falvation. All fuch are gross un-believers. They may fometimes ask what ministers, what Christians think of them; but never this, "What doth God think of me? How shall I stand " accepted before him?" Affure yourfelves, that all other cares, concerns and inquiries about yourselves, are mere trifles in regard of this; and that all such persons are but triflers in religion, pretend and profefs what they will. who mind not falvation in the first place, as the one thing needful, Matth. vi. 33. and

2. There are awakened and roufed unbelievers, like many of John Baptist's hearers, whom he won-dered at: Matth. iii. 7. O generation of vipers, who bath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Such men come to know, and feel, from the light and power of God's word, 1. That their eternal state and lot stands in God's judging; that so it will and must fare with them to eternity, as they are accepted or not accepted with God. 2. That man comes to know, that as yet there is nothing in him to procure this fo necessary acceptance with God; yea, he feeth, that this God, in whose hands is his eternal lot, is many ways provoked to wrath against him for all his fins. In this condition, the native shift that all men take, is a new course of obeying, and doing the best they can, not knowing Jesus Christ. They take the first water, and next at hand, to wash away the filth that is upon them; but, alas! their filth increaseth by this washing; their soul-disease grows upon them by this washing; their soul-disease grows upon them by faste means of cure. There is no physician for fick souls, but Jesus Christ; no balm for a wounded conscience, but his blood; no washing from sin, but in it; none recover of the mortal disease of sin, but his patients.

3. There are desponding, despairing unbelievers. And there are of them at all times, and in greater numbers than many are aware of. This sad frame rifeth thus. 1. By clearer discoveries of the holiness and purity of God, and of the righteousness of his holy law. 2. By further discoveries of their own vileness and sinfulness; when they see sin within them, fin without, fin round about them; and that they are under sin, Rom. iii. 9.---19.; as a man may be said to be full of the sea, when he is cast into the midst, and lieth at the bottom of it. 2. A discovery of utter impotence to do any thing to help himfelt an of this woful plight. He hath tried many ways, and the ineffectual. Thus when a finner feeth a holy God threatening ruin, feels conscience condemning him as deferving ruin, and all refuge failing him; in this case despair is natural, and would be the result of all found awakenings, if the Lord's mercy in Christ do not interpole, and discover itself in this extremity. It is no fin for the damned in hell, but their great mifery, to despair of ever getting out; but it is their fin to blaspheme God. But for a sinner out of hell to despair, is a grievous sin, but too frequent: Ezek. xxxiii. 10. If our fins and our transgressions be upon us, and we pine away in them; how should we then live? " If we be so guilty, and God be so exact upon us by his judgments, must we not perish?" Nay, faith the Lord, Turn to a gracious God, and live. Unto such despairing unbelievers I have nothing else to fay, but what Paul and Silas faid to one in this cafe, Acts xvi, 31. Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be faved. And to back this exhortation to Vol. II. I i fuch fach, I would recommend four things to be confidered by them.

1/1, Confider how greatly Jesus Christ is accepted with God and his Father. You may think, that this is remote from your concern; but it lieth nearer than you are aware of at first view. He is highly accepted and beloved of God, not only as his own Son, but as our Saviour: Ifa. xlii. 1. Behold my fervant whom I uphs!d, mine elect in whom my foul delighteth. It would be a great encouragement to faith on Christ, to think what a great favourite in heaven Christ is; how gracionsly, yea infinitely, he is beloved of his Father. His person, his office of Mediator, his performances, his actions, his fufferings in that office, are all of sweet-smelling savour before God. Unbelief hath in its root, low, mean, and forry thoughts of all these. Say then, "How vile and abominable "soever I be in God's fight, yet Jesus Christ is pre-" cious in his fight with whom I have to do."

adly, Confider how great the acceptance with God is, that Christ doth procure to sinners whom he undertakes for. Many have found it, and such know it best: but it is but little that the best of them can tell of it: and what the gospel declares of it, believers themselves rather admire at, than fully know, or firmly believe. If you have not found it your felves, believe others have got this acceptance.

3 cly, Consider how many Christ hath made highly accepted with God, who were just such as you be; as unworthy and vile as you are, or can think yoursolves to be. What were the Corinthians of whom the apostle speaks, 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10, 11.? If the Holy Ghost had not written it, we would be ashamed to read over fuch a bed roll of abominations: Be not decrived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of chemselves with mankind, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God. (If it be so, what then shall become of them?). And Tuch

fuch were some of you: but ye are washed, but ye are sanctified, but ye are justified in the name of the Lord Jesus, and by the Spirit of our God. Every instance of Christ's grace on great sinners, (and every age is silled with many of them), should be an encouragement to every sinner to put in for a share of the same grace whereof Christ hath so great an abundance, and as great a good-will to show it.

athly, Consider that Jesus Christ never resused any sinner that employed him to do this great business with God for him. It is his proper office, he hath given his word and promise for it, John vi. 37. and vii. 37. And he hath been as good as his word to all that ever trusted in him; none of them were ever put to shame, Rom. ix. 33.

Let therefore hope come in, and spring ap. Say, "Though I fee myfelf vile and lost as ever somer " was, or can be, out of hell; though I can do no-" thing to relieve myself; yet there is help in Christ; " many have found it. I am commanded by God to " come to him, and to the Father by him; and there-" fore I will try and trust Christ in my forlorn state." Do fo, and you shall prosper. Christ will undertake vour cause and concern, and you shall quickly sind the bleffed fruits thereof. I shall conclude with an allusion to that passage in the gospel, Matth xiv. 22. 20. and Mark vi. 46 --- 51. wherein we read, that Christ did send, yea constrained his disciples to go to sea without him. They meet with a contrary wind in this commanded voyage, and toil all night to little purpose. Our Lord knew their difficulty; and nor only remembered them on the mountain at land, but made them a vifit at fea, and that walking on the fea; and, doubtless, he that made both sea and land, could use either of them as he pleased. His disciples faw him, and were troubled, faying, It is a spirit.
They all faw him, as in Mark vi. 50. and were troubled; for none of them knew him, but all miltook him, and cried out for fear; till he faid, Be of good cheer, it is I, be net afraid. On this Peter, always a forward disciple, said, Lord, if it be thou, bid me come unto thee on the water. Christ giveth the command, Come. Peter obeys: but when he feeth the wind boistorous, he is afraid; and begining to fink, he cried, faying, Lord, fave me. And immediately Jesus stretched forth his hand, and caught him, and said unto him, O thou of little faith, wherefore didit thou doubt? Christ faved him, and then rebuked him for his unbelief. Is not your condition fomewhat like this? Christ cometh to you as on the waters, in the night, and in a storm; you are afraid of him: he calls you by the gospel to come to him; you effay it, but the winds and waves fright you. Cry to him, Lord fave me. Affure yourfelves, that he that calleth you, will hear your drowning, dying cry; will stretch forth his hand, catch you, and fave you; and then chide you kindly for your unbelief: yea, you will then chide yourselves for it, when you find (and find you will) that Christ is more merciful than you did or could imagine. How vally doth the first experience of Christ's grace surpass all the desires and expectations of the first adventures and adventurers, upon Christ's tender heart, and on his mighty faving arm!

SERMON XIII.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

Y OU have heard, that this is the third thing in the matter of Christ's prayer that I have been speaking to. Wherein I proposed to speak to two things: The glory of Christ; and his people's beholding of his glory. In speaking to the first of these particulars, I did confine my discourse unto Christ's glory, as he represents God unto his people, to be savingly known by them; and as Christ represents his people unto God, to be graciously accepted by him.

It is to the latter of these I have been speaking; and have made some entrance upon the application thereof, which I would now prosecute. Last day I spoke to unbelievers; the true name of many, who will never own it, till they get their portion with them, Luke xii. 46.; unless the Lord open their eyes to see their disease, and stretch forth his hand, and heal it. Faith is wrought, and acteth, where unbelief is seen, and bewailed, and prayed against. Mark ix. 24. Lord, I believe, help thou mine unbelief, said a newbegun man in faith. I ranked unbelievers into three sorts. 1. The secure and supid unbeliever, that never saw and felt any quarrel betwixt God and him, nor any necessity of Christ as a peace-maker. 2. The awakened and roused unbeliever, who begins to open his eyes, and to see the importance of salvation, the danger of God's wrath, and the bad state he is at present in. Such people, unless God's Spirit work t ue faith in them, do naturally betake themselves to themselves for relief. That great word spoke by the jolor, Acts xvi. 30. What shall I do to be saved: however it was meant by that distressed sinner, it hath been by many as much mistaken as the apostle's anfiver to it in ver. 31. The true meaning is, "I am a lost undone creature, and have no help at home: " if there be none abroad, I am quite undone." And they take these words in vain, that use them, while they vainly and proudly think, they can do fomething, if they did but know it. 3. There are discouraged, despairing unbelievers, that know that they are in a had cafe, and cannot believe that it can ever be altered to the better. A very great fin, and too common. Many live, and die, and perish in despair, that 20 not down to the pit roating. We think their cafe fad, that die in expressions of despair; and their case ver worfe, that destroy their own lives in despair. And indeed this last case is exceeding dreadful, if they are themselves, and are not distracted. As to the former, there may be more charity due to fuch as have given good proof of their faith in their lifetime, though they die in a cloud, and utter heavy unbelieving complaints. Of which fort, I have heard of a Christian near death making a heavy complaint of the Lord's withdrawing from him in that feafon of his greatest need; and faid, he "did not think that " ever the Lord did fo with any of his children." The wife and happy minister to whom he made this complaint, gave him this answer: " Know ye not that thus it was with the Son of God, when, on the " crofs, a little before his death, he cried out, My " God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" Which words were to bleffed, that the florm ceased, and the good man died in peace. But there is a filent despair in many unbelievers, that goes along with them many days and years, and they perish in it without noise or

complaint. They inwardly think, that their state is bad, and they have no hope that it will ever be better. It is like an inward wound, that a man may bleed to death of, as well as of an outward one. But can Satan and unbelief prevail to that degree in a way not in hell, as to make a perithing finner look ou Christ's faving gracious face, and say, "Either thon "canst not, or will not help me?" No; Christ is surely out of that sinner's eye in whose heart despair hath the dominion. A glance of Christ's glory as a Saviour will expel despair, and beget and nourish faith in him. Never did a sinner see Christ's sace, but he looks for some good from him, and that not a little alfo: and that never in vain.

Exhort. 2. That which remains, is to give two exhortations to believers; though one of them will take up our time now. As I told you in the former exhortation who were unbelievers, fo now I would tell you who are believers, that the exhortation may be rightly taken, and not fnatched at by them to whom it doth not belong. By a believer in Christ, I mean a man that doth in heart and in experience know these two things, r. He hath feen to much of the holiaels of God, and strict purity of his law, and hach feen to much of his own vileness and impotence, that he doth despair of ever making himself accepted with Golby any thing he bath or can do. And this fort of despair (if we may give so ill-sounding a name to so good a thing) is to far from being inconfiftent with true fairh, that no true faith in Christ can be, or be acted, without it. That finner that both any hopes of getting matters betwixt God and him mended without Christ, will never, and can never believe on lefa-Christ. 2. A believer is one that hath so heard and fo believed God's record concerning Christ in the gospel, and his ability and good-will to fave finners, as voluntarily and deliberately to lodge all his acceptance with God for falvation on Jefus Christ alone. He feeth is to be his only thift, and a good one too.

Unto fuch believers I would give these two exhortations from the doctrine. 1. Study in the light of the word, and by the eye of faith, this glory of Christ in representing his people to God for acceptance. 2. Improve this truth by the activity of the fame fairb.

Exhort. 1. Study and behold the glory of Christ in representing his people to God. None see it once, but they will defire to see it again and again, and more and more of it. None see it rightly, but they wonder and admire at it; that not only our falvation is brought about by this reprefentation, but that Christ's glory is great in making of it. Whenever a man feeth any thing of the glory of God, before whom the reprefentation is made, any thing of the vileness of the persons represented, the divine dignity of Christ the representer, and the great acceptance the represented by him obtain of God; then will the man stand amazed, and cry out, "O the depths of grace in saving lost man!" See Heb. i. 3.; where the apostle teacheth us three things concerning Christ; what he is, what he did, and what he got. He is the brightness of his glory, and the express image of his ferson, (of God the Father's glory and person), and upholding all things by the word of his power. The whole creation oweth its original to him, and is preferved by him, and his powerful word. Who can doubt his Godhead, that believes that thefe, and many fuch expressions, are indited by the Spirit of truth? Who would think what follows? This divine person, this equal with the Father, this creator and upholder of all things, when he comes into the world, what is his business? what doth he? He by himself purged our fins. His work was about fin and finners, to purge fin, and to fave finners. Observe the phrase. It is not said, by himself he made the world; but only, that God made all things by him, ver. 2. It is not said, that he by himself uphelds all things; but only, he doth it by the word of his power. There is no need of the interpoling of himself, or of his person, (if I may use the word); his word of command was enough to do both. But when our fins are to be purged, a word of power was not enough: himself must come in, and be a facrifice; as Heb. ix. 26. He appeared to put away sin by the facrifice of himself. Nothing less was needful, nothing less craved by God offended by sin, nothing less offered by the Saviour of sinners. In and by this purging our sins, how low is this divine person the Son of God brought! But what became of him when he had done this work? He sat down or the right hand of the Majesty on high. He is high in his divine person was brought low in his work, and is exceedingly exalted when he had done it; as in Phil. ii. 6---11.

In order to the raising of your thoughts about this glory of Christ in representing his people unto God, I would offer you, 1. Some generals about it; 2. Some particulars in this chapter to the same purpose.

First, The generals about it shall only be these two. 1. Divine counsels about it. 2. Divine acts a-beur it.

1. Divine counsels about this. It was the eternal purpose of God to have a remnant of Adam's offspring represented to his favour, and its fruits, by his own Son made man, and dying in their stead. This eternal purpose was purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord, E.h. iii. 11. His good pleasure which he hath purposed in himself, Eph. i. 9, 10. It was in Christ Jesus before the world began, but is now made manifest by the appearing of our Saviour Jesus Christ, 2 Tim. i. 9, 10. It is unto this highest spring your faith must rise by all the lower steps it takes; even to the deep design of God in purposing salvation by Jesus Christ to his chosen. And it is revealed to us in the word a purposed by him, to the eternal praise of his grace, to the exaling of his Son Jesus, the undertaker of the Vol. II, the work of faving, and to bring in a great falvation for his people.

2. What paffed in time about this. In the fulness of time God fent his Son into the world. When he came, that was fulfilled, Ifa, ix. 6. Unto us a child is born, unto us a fon is given. He was born and given to us; for he came to die, and to be given for us.

On this I would offer tour things.

1/2, When our Lord came, and fet about his work he came for, he looked on himfelf, preached and declared himself, to be a representer, by his office, of his people to God; that he was the facrifice for fin and finners. Heb. x. 5 .-- to .: that his field and blood was the meat that came down from heaven, which he auft give for eternal life to his people, and that all must feed on by faith that had any mind to live, John vi. 35, ... 58. Yea, when he was first made manifest to Ifrael, John Baprid, the first preacher of Christ as come, presentth and points him forth to be the Lamb of God which taketh away the fin of the world, John i. 29. a Limb for purity, a Lamb for facritice, and the Lamb of God, fent and provided by God, (as his type was, Gen. xxi 3), and acceptable unto God. But what was spoken in the ear in closets in Christ's time on earth, was proclaimed on house-tops (as he bid them, Luke xii. 3.) when Christ had done his work, and was gone to heaven. His apoliles, and all his fervants in all ages, have made it their buffaels to fet forth Christ as the only facrifice for fin, and the only High Priest to introduce figuers into God's favour, in and by the virine of his facrifice. They have not begun 10 preach Chritt rightly, that have not first of all de-Lared bow that Christ died for our fins according to the scriptures, I Cor. av. 2.; and then of his refurrection, verte 4. Ministers must neither leave Christ in his g avé, nor preach a glorified Jesus, without remembe. ... leis death.

with our Lord, when he was come, as with a repre-

fentative of finners. There was nothing in him, that justice and law should exact on him for; he owed no debt of his own contracting; yet law and justice deat feverely with him. The Lamb of God was without fpot; yet his life must go, and his blood be shed for sin. There had been no justice in the Lord's bruising of his beloved and spotlets Son, if he had not been answerable at the highest bar for the sins of others, for which he was stricken, Isa. liii. 8. In that chapter, (in which it is fomething strange that a Jew cannot see Jesus; but far more, that any that bear the name of Christians, should make the eunuch's question, Acts viii. 34. I pray thee, of whom speaketh the prophet this? of limfelf, or of some other man? and will not take Philip's answer, ver. 35. who from that feripture preached unto him Jesus), in that of Ita. liii. we have the prophet preaching Christ like an apostle, concerning his work, his death, the cause and fruits of it, with New Testament brightness and glory; and this feveral hundreds of years before Christ came into the world. I shall touch at a few things in it that belong to my prefert purpose. In ver. 4. Surely he hath borne cur griefs, and carried our forrows. Every man is not charged with the forrows of others, except in common fympathy, which all owe towards others in diffrefs. Christ not only had this, but a near and close feeling of, and preffure by them, that was proper to him only; yea, he bore the forrows of many, whose forrows were over before he came, and citar more, whose forrows were not begun, long after he came to bear them. Yet he did bear them to fave them; for that grief and forrow that men have, which Chritt did not bear, will be everlafting forrow. But what had Christ to do with their fortow? In verse 5. 110 was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for cur iniquities. His wounds and bruifes were very heavy, but not without a cause; only the cause is strange: they were for transgressions, for iniquities; but the'e were none of his, but ours. The wounds were his; K k 2 but but the fia was ours, that deferved the blows. And thus our peace, our healing cometh. But what had Cariff to co with our iniquities? verse 6. The Lord hato laid on him the iniquity of us all. And he took the burden on him, and was only able to bear it, and did bear it away. The Lord hath refolved, that fin and forrow shall go together. So was it with the Saviour; if fin be laid on him, forrow thall follow it. So is it with finners; their fin will bring dreadful forrow, except Christ take away both. Sirs, you have formerly known, or do at prefent, or shall hereafter know, what a heavy burden fin is; how insupportable it is; and how furely that foul must fink into hell, that hath this burden lying on himself. And indeed, until the burden of fin be felt to be too heavy for them, and a burden that all the world cannot bear for them, men will think lightly of Christ's undertaking, and will never employ him, but in a compliment. Know this, and accordingly chuse your course: It is refolved in heaven, and declared in the gospel on earth, that every finner's iniquity shall either be borne by the fioner hunfelf, to his eternal damnation, or by the furety, Jesus Christ, to the believer's eternal sulvation. But well did the prophet preface to this doctrine, ver. 1. Who hath believed our report? and to whom is the arm of the Lord revealed? This gospel-doftrine will never be welcome to an unbeliever; and none are made believers, but by the revealing of the arm, and putting forth of the power of the Lord upon their hearts. Till then, finners will mock God, both in their contracting the debt of fin, and in their devices of payir r of that debt; and both are very finful work. God hal fixed his way of fatisfying his justice, and will not alter. Men must either betake themselves to Jesus Christ by faith, or lay their account with hell. That finner is blind, and ignorant of God's justice, and of the firstness of his law, that thinks that fin against God can be explared by any thing, but the blood blood of him that is God. And he that dare not trust to the sufferings and virtue of Christ's atonement made for fin, knows not God's mercy, nor the truth as it is in Fesus, Eph. iv. 21. Let all sinners therefore take heed, what course they take in the matter of the burden of fin. Take heed, that you mock not God in studying to pay it in false coin. All your own, all creature coin, is but reprobate metal in heaven's court and kingdom. It may pass on earth, and in a deluded conscience: but how little doth that fignify? and how fhort while will that little last? It is but hav and stubble, which Christ hath many fires to burn it up with. But for Christians, I advise you, in reading the prophets and apostles concerning Christ and his fufferings to make use of this as a key to open up all, as a light that enlightens all, That all the fufferings of Christ were laid on him, and endured by him, and prefented unto God, as he did reprefent his guilty people; otherwise justice could not exact on him, nor his people be saved by them. See how Christ expresseth this in the celebration and institution of his last supper. He taketh, bleffeth, breaketh, and giveth bread, and calls it, my body given for you. Like-wife also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the rew testament in my blood, which is shed for you, Luke xxii. 19, 20. I do not mind the Antichriftian fynagogue, (for a church it is not, but in an usurped name, or in a vain notion), who have abused and perverted these plain and easy words, more than devils or men did ever pervert any words of God or man before; and have, upon that abuse of them, set up the groffest idol that ever a Heathen worshipped; for fuch as worship fun, and meon, and the host of heaven, have God's glorious workmanship before their eyes; yea, the Egyptians garden and herb gods are preferable greatly to a bit of paste, knead and baked by a baker in his oven, conjured into a pitiful godhead by the mumbling of a priest, and first worthipped, and then fwallowed down as other food, by Site

the befotted people. Nothing lefs than the dreadful wrath of God can be in mens believing this lye. that the man's reason and all his senses militate against. 2 (ff. ii. 10, 11, 12. But many that are not infeet with this strong delusion, understand no more by Carift's words in this facred ordinance, than that the broad and wine, fo used as Christ appointed, do fignify the full rings unto death of our Lord Jefus Christ, cruelly handled by wicked men, and severely dea't with by the justice of God; but the cause and end of his death, they mind not. This Christ puts us in mind of, in these words: " For you, and for " your fins, and for the remission of them; you, and " your fine, are the cause of my death; and my death " is the cause of your forgiveness." Christians, if you keep out that word, for you; if your faith do not echo to Christ's for you, with your for me, I assure you, that the bread and wine on the Lord's table, and the fame creatures on your own table, will be of equal fignification, as to foul-nourishment; and that is, none ar all

ady, We find, that when Christ had thus been dealt with, as reprefenting his people, there was a high acceptance of his facrifice. The Father that put him to all this, was mightily pleafed with him, and with his death. Here behold the depth and mystery of God's faving men by Jesus Christ. God's justice against fin squeezed out Christ's life, and by that squeeze zed out eternal falvation for them he died for. Here is wisdom, and here is love, 1 John iv. 8, 9, 10.

4thly, Hence it is, that all believers on Christ are gracionfly accepted with the Father. Whenever this blood thed for them, is tprinkled on them; whenever the virtue of this blood is applied to them by his Spirit, and applied unto by their faith, they are represented to God in it and with it, and are therefore accepted.

Secondly, Let us, in the next place, look into this chapter, John xvii. and learn femething of Christ's reprefenting his church and people unto God. It is as fit a portion of the word, as any for that end; and in it I would look to two things: I. What is ia it about Christ, the representer. 2. What of his people, whom he reprefents in this felenn address to his Father.

1. About Christ, the representer, we find these

if, Our Lord notes the time in which he was to do his great work he came into the world for: Father, the hour is come; it is at hand: " the hour of " my dying for my sheep." John zii. 27. Now is my foul troubled; and what fball I fay? Father, face me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this bour. As if our Lord had faid, "I should lose my " main end I came into the world for, if it was not " for this hour." This was that special hour, in which Christ was to make the grand representation unto God, of all his people for their redemption, and of all their fins for their expiation. This was Christ's dying-hour, and the church's redemption-hour.

adly, Our Lord prays for the united and mutuallyinfluencing glory of the Father and of the Son: ver. 1. Glorify thy Son, that thy Sonalfo may glorify thee; as he prayed, John xii. 28. Father, glorify thy name; and was answered, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again; and as he foretold it, John xiii. 31, 32. Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him. If God be glorified in him, God fieall atfo glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him. What is this glorifying he prays for? It is of large extent. "Glorify thy Son, in making him a " facrifice; glorify him, in accepting the facrifice; " glorify him, in flaying him; glorify him, in railing "him from the dead; glorify him, in exalting him, " and making him head over all things to the church, " his body, his fulnels," Eph. i. 20.---23 and all this, that thy Son also may glarify thee; " may glarify "thy justice and thy law, in fatisfying both by my 66 blood :

" blood; may glorify thy grace and mercy to thy " chofen, by redeeming them unto God by my blood; " and may glorify thy wifdom, in contriving this way " of redemption, which is to be accomplished by my "death, the hour of which is come."

adly, This that our Lord defines of his Father, was according to the everlalling covenant: ver. 2. As thou hast given him power over all stesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. Thou hast given him universal power and domini-"on, but a particular charge of the elect; to them he is to give eternal life, in and by this redempti-" on-hour now come."

4thly, See how our Lord nameth this eternal life which he was to give, and they that were given unto him were to receive: ver. 3. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jejus Christ whom thou hast sent. A most spiritual description of eternal life given by the author of it. It is begun in the faving knowledge of the Father and of the Son, and in the begun fruits of that knowledge. Eternal life is perfect in the perfect knowledge of the Father and Son, and in its perfect fruits: as in Eph. iv. 13. 1 John v. 20. and John xiv. 20.

5thly, Our Lord, in ver. 4. giveth a faithful account of his discharge of the work his Father had given him to do: I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work thou gavest me to do: all but dying: which he was now as ready and willing to do, as any thing he had done before.

6thly, and lastly, Christ prays again (what he had prayed for in ver. 1.) in ver. 5. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own felf, and with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

2. Let us fee what Christ saith here of his people, whom in this prayer he reprefents to his Father. It is to be undoubted by all Christians, that this prayer of Christ doth as really concern all believers in all ages, as it did the apostles themselves. And this Christ Christ tells us in ver. 20. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me thre? their word. It is the prayer of our great High Priest; and all his Ifrael were on his heart in making of it, and reap the bleffing of it.

In it, as concerning them, we find,

1/1. Our Lord names them rightly, ver. 6. They are the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them m; for they are thine. And all are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them, ver. 9, 10. Well doth the good shepherd know, and count, and tell his flock; and he feeth his Father's mark of election upon them, and his own mark of redeeming blood on them; and therefore he cares for them, and prayeth for them,

adly, Christ tells all the good he can of them, and covers their failings: They have kept thy word, ver. 6. Now have they known, that all things whatfrever thou haft given me, are of thee, ver. 7. For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known furely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me, ver. 8. How poorly had they received Christ's word? how weak and staggering was their faith? and how oft had Christ reproved them sharply, for their unbelief, and other faults? Yet not a word of those in Christ's representing them to his Father. They had fpoke one good word in John xvi. 20. Now are we fure that thou knowest all things, and needest not that any man should ask thee: by this we believe that thou camest forth from God. This Christ remembered and tells it to his Father, in ver. 8.; but not a word of what he faid to them, John xvi. 31, 32. Do ye now believe? Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye shall be scattered every man to his own, and shall leave me alone. This is the constant gracious way of our High Priest: He makes no mention of his Ifrael's faults in heaven, but for their expiati-LI Vol. II. on, on, 1 John ii. 1, 2.; whatever reproof and correction he fends to humble his people, and to amend them, Rev. iii. 10.

adly, Christ doth here represent his people to God, his Father, with their necessities and dangers, and prays for help and supply: They are in the world, ver. 11. The world bateth them, ver. 14. There is evil in the world, that they are endangered by, ver. 15.; and therefore prays for their prefervation, ver. 11. 15. a 'fanclification, ver. 17. To be kept from evil, and to increase in true holiness, are the main bleffings believers need till they come to heaven. So Paul's fairh acted, 2 Tim, iv. 18. For the Lord (bull deliver me from every evil work, and will preferve me unto his heavenly kingdom. So he prays for others, I Theff. iii. 13. To the end he may stablish your hearts unblameable in holiness before God even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jefus Christ, with all his faints. 4thly, Christ doth here declare to his Father, that his undertaking and fufferings were for his people's fake: ver. 19. And for their fakes do I fanctify myself. Christ needed no such fanctification as his people do, and as he giveth unto them, by the virtue of the death, by his Spirit. His fanctifying of himself, is his separating and devoting himself to death, as a facrifice for his people. And in this fense a very learned foreign divine understands that dark word in Heb. x. 29. And hath counted the blood of the covenant where with he was fanctified, an unholy thing, or common thing: whereas commonly it is taken, as if the apostate had been ever in some sense sanctified by the blood of the covenant. This learned expolitor doth natively enough from the Greek text take this be that was fanctified by the blood of the covenant, to be but another name of the Son of God, who is trodden under foot by fuch desperate apostates. So that the sense is plain and eafy, and a great aggravation of their apostafy, that they not only despile the Son of God, but also his facred blood by which himfelf was fanctified, and the cove-covenant confirmed unto his people, and made to be his testament and last will. To this same purpose is that other word of the same apostle, Heb. kill, 20. The God of peace brought again from the dead our Lord Jefus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlassing covenant. So that the apossible in Heb. x. 20. describes this dreadful apostasy in three things: open contempt of the person of the Son of God; contempt of his facred redeeming blood, the only price of redemption; and despite to the Spirit of grace, that works by the gospel on mens hearts. Such must fall into the hands of the living God, who lives to revenge such bold affronts done to the most gracious and only faving appearances of God unto men; that is, in his Son, and his blood, and in his Spirit, by the gospel. All is openly and deliberately contemned and despited by such wretches; and they must perish. And though it be hard to make an application of these sad brands of ruin to any man in particular, or fort and body of men; yet this I may venture to fay, that open blaspliemers of the Son of God, (as all are that count him a mere man); all that count the blood of the covenant a common thing, (as they must do that count it but the blood of a mere man); and all that do despite unto the Spirit of grace; fuch, I fay, if they have been once enlightened, as Heb. vi. 4. and have had the Spirit of grace striving with them, and if this contempt of fuch facred things of God be in malice, have far more reason (though I know that such have no inclination) to fear their interest in this dreadful scripture, and in such like, than any of the poor fouls, who, upon their falling from their first love, and first works, or on their faling into some gross conscience-wasting sin, have applied this awful sentence unjustly to themselves. But all fuch are far from it, to whom the Son of God, 2..d his redeeming blood, and his Spirit of grace, are facred and adorable, though they have no comfortable view of their interest therein at present: for though L 1 2

the case of such be sad, yet there is a door of hope for them, in renewing repentance and faith.

But, to return again unto the exhortation given to believers, to confider this glory of Christ in representing his church unto God, I would offer a few things to engage them is the studying of it.

1. Confider the necessity of this representation made by Christ, in order to the acceptance of sinners with God. Christ faw this necessity when he undertook the office. No facrifice but that of himfelf was required; no high priest but himself was called, or able to offer what was effectual to fatisfy the justice of God and to fave finners, Heb. x. 5, -- 10. A finner must fee the necessity of this representation, which Christ only can make unto God; or he will never renource all vain thifts of his own, and betake himfelf only unto this. And a believer must fee the necessity of this representation made by Christ, that he may admire it more, and trust to it only.

2. Confider the glorious excellency of this reprefentation that Christ makes of his church unto God. Glorious in itself, glorious in its fruits and ends. It is the ministration of righteousness, that exceeds in glory: 2 Cor. iii. to, 11. For even that which was made glorious, had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth. And all this glory is in the face of Jelus Christ, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteoufness, and functification, and redemption; and that for two ends: That no flelh should glery in his presence; and that he that glorieth, might glory in the Lord, 1 Cor i. 29, 30, 31. If a man could have any faving wisdom but in and from Christ to know God and the way to heaven, he would glory in that; if he had any justifying righteousness to stand accepted before God in but Christ's, he would glory in that; if Le had any fanctification but what is derived from Christ as its root and fountain, he would glery in that, I' there was any reclemption but what Christ the only Redeemer brings in, he would glory in that : yea

fo proud, and so inclined is slesh to glory in God's presence, that sinners do vainly hunt after, and as vainly imagine they have attained fome matter of glorying before God. But, faith the apodle, "Chriti " is so made of God unto us, as to cut off all preten-" fions to any glorying, but in the Lord." So that a Christian, when he finds he is made wife to falvation, must fay, "This is from Christ:" when he feeth any justifying righteousness upon him, wherein he stands fafe and accepted before God, he must fay, " This is " none of mine, but Christ's righteousness:" when he finds any fanctification in him, in his heart, and way, and worthip, he must fay, "This is but a few "droppings from the fountain Christ; a little of the " ointment that was poured in all fulness on my High " Priest Jesus:" when he gets any piece of redemotion, or acts his faith and hope on compleat redemption, all his acknowledgments, and all his expectations are, and must fingly center in Christ the Redeemer. Yea, the Spirit of God expresseth this thing most strongly. He faith not, that Christ is made unto us the prophet and teacher, and giver of wildom; nor the justifier, and bringer in of righteousness; nor the fanctifier, nor the redeemer; all which are true of Christ, and of God's making him to be, and ofc spoken of him in the word: but he is made unto us the things themselves, wifdom, righteousness, functification, redemption. All of thefe are in Christ, and nothing of any of these is out of him. Wildem out of Christ, is damning folly; righteousness out of Christ, is guilt and condemnation; fanclification out of Chrith, is filth and fin; redemption out of Christ, is bondage and flavery.

3. I would recommend the confidering of Christ's glory in representing his church unto God, from the profit and advantage believers do receive by this exercife. I believe most of you would answer this question, What is the best exercise, and thought of the heart? Surely it is that that bath melt grace in it. Now, what are the best graces of the Spirit? Are they not repentance, faith, and love? And all those, in their lively acts and exercises, do natively flow from the right studying of Christ's representing of us to God for acceptance.

11, Repentance. What do you take it to be? There is too little of it with many professors, and that because it is not well known in its true nature. Many take repentance to be that that is little better than what the devils have. We read of their faith and trembling, James ii. 19.; and this is a greater length than many are got, who are angry if they be not called good Christians. Repentance is not a bare fit of forrow and shame for fin committed, nor fear of God's wrath for fin. This may be in ungodly men. Few malefactors go to the gallows without fomewhat of this. Cain, Pharaoh, Saul, Judas, had this. But true repentance unto life, though it may begin with a difcovery of some particular fin or fins that God fets in order before a man's eyes, Pial. l. 21; yet it is not godly forrow that worketh repentance to falvation, not to be repented of, 2 Cor. 7. 10. till the finner look upon himself as lethfome and abominable in the fight of God, that it becometh one of the greatest riddles and mysteries unto him, how such a God and such a finner should ever be made friends; how God can dook upon him without abhorrence; and how fuch a finner can fland before this hely God with favour and acceptance? And when the glory of Christ as the peace-maker is discovered to, and seen by him in this case, and when he is drawn to trust to it, this faith is acted in the fight and fenfe of his own vileness in himfelt. They are unhappy people, and unfkilful teachers, who take up repentance towards God, and faith fowards our Lord Jefus Christ, Acts xx. 21. and think of them, and study to act them, as if they did interfere with one another; as if repentance were the fruit of the law, and the faith and fruit of the gospel; as if they

they could be acted separately and apart. All gross mistakes. There is no saving grace in our heart, but is Christ's work by his Spirit blessing the gospet. Repentance without faith, is the devil's repentance: and faith without repentance, is the hypocrite's faith. If they be true, they go together; if rightly acted, they act together. And as this sense of sin and self-vileness is inteparable from first believing, so it continueth in all the life of faith in all true growing believers. David dieth with the acting of repeatance

adly, Faith in Jesus Christ. Bring true faith unto a narrow point, to that act in which its nature doth properly stand. For faith is a large comprehensive grace, much spoke of in the word, more talked of than acted by many; and least known, and most mistaken by them that have it not. This faith I speak of, is not a bare believing, or giving an affent unto divine truth, upon the evidence of a divine testimony; nor is it believing and expecting of good from God, upon the ground of his faithful promife; though these are acts of true faith. But faith in Jesus Christ, in its closest, nearest nature, acts thus. The self-condemned finner, 13thfome in his own fight, and persuaded that as he is in himself, he is far more lothsome in God's fight, doth, on the gospel call and promise, try and trust Jesus Christ for making him accepted with God. This is proper believing, Gal. ii. 16. And according as the measure and degree is of our knowledge of fin in us, and of the law's condemning of us for fin; and as the measure is of the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ; so is the measure of that faith that seeth our need of, and taketh up the glory and fafety in Christ's representing us to God for acceptance, and that trusts to it.

adly, The heavenly and everialting grace of love, that is planted in the heart of a believer, and is nou-rished by the grace of the new covenant; that groweth

in true Christians as the new creature doth, and is the only grace that the glorified act in heaven. O. ther graces of the Spirit are the Christian's armour, that is laid afide when they get the perfect victory. Now, what raifeth love to Jesus Christ to the hottest flame? Is it not when Christ's loveliness in himself, and when his love to us, is best seen by us? And are not both most conspicuous in this matter of his gracious representing us to God, covering us with his own righteousness wrought out for us by his precious blood flied, counted to us freely by his grace, and intitling us to the love of God, and to all the great fruits of that love?

It follows to speak of the second exhortation to believers; but that ! shall leave to the next occasion. Only, to press the first, the duty of studying in your hearts Christ's glory in representing his church unto

God. I would add four things.

1. By this representation that Christ makes of you that are believers unto God, you that were enemies are reconciled unto God, Col. i. 20, 21. You are beloved of God. Not only there is no condemnation to you that are in Christ, Rom. viii. 1.; not only are your fins blotted out, and your natural deformity covered from the eye and hand of law and justice, by the covering of Christ's righteousness; but you are so adorned with that garment, that the Father loves you; as Christ tells believers, John xvi. 27. For the Father himself leveth you, because ye have leved me, and have believed that I came out from God. You are not only faved from wrath, and the curfe of the law; but poffessed of God's love, and have a fure right and title to glory, by this grace of Jesus Christ that is come unto you.

2. By this representation of you unto God, you are made as accepted of God as ever any believer was. This many do not rightly understand; and therefore are ready to reproach it. There are degrees of grace on earth, and there may be degrees of glory in heaven: but neither here nor there are there any degrees of acceptance. Accepted, or not accepted, divides and diffinguisheth all mankind in both worlds. Acceptance with God relates to a man's state before God, and not to his frame. We say not, that every or any believer is so good a believer, or so great a faint, as Paul; but yet every true believer, as to the ftate of his person, is as accepted as Paul was as to his personal state. The reason is this: The accep-tance of all believers with God, is only on account of this representation made by Christ for them unto God. And this is made by Christ for all equally: all the tribes of Israel are equally on the heart and breastplate of our great High Priest Jesus Christ, And thus we find in that triumph of faith, Rom. viii. 31,---39. all God's elect are included; and the grounds of that triumph lie equally fair for any believer: Christ is given, and hath died, and rifen again, sitteth at the right hand of God, and maketh intercession for them. Every believer may say so as well as Paul, though we cannot say so with as strong a faith as Paul had. The ground is the same, and common to all believers; but they do not equally build upon this foundation. If our flate of acceptance did fland on any thing be-lievers themselves have, or do, and not singly on what Christ hath done, and daily doth for them; then indeed all believers, who differ fo much from others in their inherent grace, and in the improvement, exercife, and fruits thereof, could not be alike accepted.

3. You that are believers, you are, even now, as much accepted of God as ever you shall be. I say not, that you enjoy God as much; that you are as near, and as like to him, as ever you shall be; but that you are as much accepted as ever you shall be. Believers are not called to glory, nor brought unto it, for acceptance. That is passed, and fixed for eternity,

Vol. II. M m as to all in Christ by faith, before they come there. Only their acceptance in that day is more gloriously declared and proclaimed than it was on earth, Matth. xxv. 44. And the fruits of that acceptance will be bestowed by the Lord, and evjoyed by the gloristed in heaven, vastly beyond what believers can know, receive, or enjoy on earth. A state of acceptance in Christ Jesus, is the common privilege of all believers. He is all in all to all of them without difference, Col. iii. 11. And as it admits of no difference in them that are in him, and represented by him for it; so it admits of no gradations nor increase in any one believer, fave as to the evidence, comfort, and fruits of an accepted flate. And after building by faith on Christ the foundation, all the remaining work of a Conflian stands in feeking after those blessings that flow from our state of acceptance with God by Jesus Chrift.

4. I will adventure to add, in the last place, that which to some seems a hand faying; but it is not so hard in itself, when rightly understood, as some would make, or mistake it. And it is this, That a believer on Christ, and represented by Christ unto God's ac-ceptance, is as accepted of God as Christ the reprefenter is. The same acceptance that Christ the Mediator bath with God, the same acceptance is given to al believers. See John xvii. 23. That the world may know that thou hast loved them, as thou hast loved me. Verse 26. I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them. If we consider Curift and his people afunder and apart, then there is as great a difference betwixt Christ in himself, and his people in themselves, as is betwixt light and darknels, righteousnels and unrighteousnels, Christ and Belial. But if we confider Christ the head, and his church his body, as one, and inseparably united in this mystical representation before God; then the divine acceptance on this representation is one and the fame towards the representer and the represented: as Aaron the high-priest's was within the vail in the holy of holies, and all Ifrael's without the vail, on the day of atonement. The high-priest was accepted as representing all Israel, and all Israel accepted as represented by him. Indeed the difference was very great betwixt the Old Testament type and shadow, and the New Testament substance. that difference is only to the greater glory of our great High Priest, the Son of God, who is passed into the heavens, Heb. iv. 14. ix. 24. and to the greater advantage of his spiritual Israel without the vail. Heb. ix. 13, 14. The same acceptance the Father giveth to his Son, Mediator, the representer of his people, falls on all those for their happiness that are reprefented by him. And it is to be feared, that fuch as cannot receive this truth, have a secret respect to some other way and fort of acceptance with God than that that comes by Christ's representing them to God. And the danger of fuch delutions, is as great as their fouls are worth.

SERMON XIV.

John xvii. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may beheld my glory which theu hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

WO greater, deeper, and larger themes, are not in God's word, than these; the glory of Christ, and the beholding of this glory by his people. They are such as cannot be fully known by any on earth; yet it is very useful to Christians to be exercised in the study of them while they are here.

On the first of these, the glory of Christ, I have spoken at some length, under these two heads. 1. Christ's glory, as he represents God to his church, to be savingly known by them; and, 2. His glory, as he represents his church to God, to be graciously accepted by him. The former I have sinished, and would dispatch the latter at this time. After I had handled the dostrinal part, I made some application; and in that spoke to one exhortation to believers, to study, in the light of the gospel, with the eye of faith, the glory of Christ in his representing his people unto God for his gracious and eternal acceptance.

Exhart. 2. I come now to the fecond exhortation to believers; which is, That they should improve, by the activity of their faith, this glory of Christ. There is nothing sweeter to the eye of faith than this glory of Christ, and nothing more useful to a believer than to have his faith well exercised about it. This glory of Christ in representing, as our High Priest, his church unto Coa, is a matter of pure revelation. It had never been known, unless it had been revealed. All truths that are of pure revelation, can only be managed by faith. When a truth is difcoverable by reason, it is also improvable by reason. But if the truth transcend reason, and the discovery of it is made only by divine revelation, the right improvement of that truth can only be made by faith grounded on that revelation, and that faith wrought by the Spirit of the revealer, Matth. xvi. 17. This truth about the glory of Christ, is not only of pure revelation, but it is the great mystery of godliness, to Tim. iii. 16. And in Christ are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge, Col. ii. 3. In the improving of this truth, faith only can do any thing to purpose; and there is much work for faith in the using of it. I shall therefore on this exhortation handle these two things. 1. In what cases specially believers ought to use and improve Christ's representing them to God's acceptance. 2. In what way and manner they should improve it in all or any case.

First, In what cases specially believers ought by their faith to improve this glorious representation of them unto God. I shall name some particular cases.

1. Be careful to improve this glory of Christ, in all your daily approaches to, and appearances before God. Whenever you come to the court of heaven, and into the presence of the great King, forget not him that only must introduce you, and make your address acceptable: Heb. x. 19, 20, 21, 22. Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the boliess by the blood of Jesus. The apostle is writing unto Christian Hebrews, who were well acquainted with the Old Testament sanctuary and worship; and he speaks to them in that dialect. They knew what the holiest was in that dispensation; and that the high priess alone, and but once a-year, and not without blood, might enter into it, Heb. ix. 7. And this holiest to us in the New Testament, is heaven itself, Heb. ix. 24; into which our High Priess is entered by his own blood.

Heb. ix. 12. and made an entrance for his people: For the way to the holiest of all was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing, Heb. ix. 8. Christ by his blood made an open door to heaven, and by that door we must always enter. and climb up by no other way, lest we be as a thief and a robber, John x. 1, 8. What is the blood of Jesus? It is the blood of the Son of God: the blood of him, as a facrifice offered up by him as our High Priest, for the fins of his people; the blood whereby he brought in that everlasting righteousness in which all his people stand accepted before God. Now, saith the apostle, that privilege that only the high-priest under the law had, of entering into the typical holiest of all by the blood of the typical facrifices, every believer in Jesus Christ hath now under the gospel, and hath a daily entrance into the true holiest of all by the blood of the true sacrifice, Jesus Christ. And he adds in ver. 20. By a new and living way (or a new flain and living way) which he hath confecrated for us thro the vail, that is to fay, his flesh. We need not a door of entrance into heaven only, but a way to walk in. And that way is provided by Christ, and he is it; as John xiv. 6. And Christ as slain, hath by his death confectated it for us; like that in John xvii. 19. For their fakes fanctify I myself. The apostle calls Christ's flesh, the vail, alluding to the vail of the fanctuary, Heb. ix. 1. through which the high-priest passed into the holy of holies. There was a double use of the functuary-vail. It kept the holiest of all from being feen by all the people, and yet made an entrance for the high priest through it unto the holiest of all. So is the vail of Christ's slesh; it vails and hides his divine glory, as Phil. ii. 6, 7. and yet it gives a passage into the glorious presence of God unto believers. What more is needful for a believer's access and acceptance? ver. 21. And having an high priest over the house of God. We not only wanted a door, and a way, but an authorised introducer into heaven. And Christ is all. He is the High Priest, who by his office is the introducer, the representer, and presenter, of his people unto God. Upon this comes the exhortation, ver. 22. Let us draw near: "Let us all go to God, "and to heaven together; you Christians, and I am apostle. We have the encouragements common to " us ; let us jointly improve them." But, alas! moft unbelievers think it an easy thing to draw near to God, though they never think of Christ, nor of using him in their approaches to God, (if they may not rather be called departings from God). They neither care for making them aright, nor care whether they be accepted or not; nor fear the taking God's name in vain, as all do that come not to God by Jesus Christ, John xiv. 6. Christless Christians, and Christless worshippers of God, (if it were proper to call Christ-lets men either Christians, or worshippers of God), are an abomination unto God. But that that is so easy to such careless triflers, is far otherwise unto a ferious foul. When such a person seeth any thing of his own infulness and meanness, and any thing of the hotiness and majesty of God, it is no small difficulty to resolve this question: "How is it possible, that " fuch a defiled creature as I am, can make any ac-"ceptable appearance before fo glorious a God?"

The only resolution is in this: "Christ our High Priest" represents me to the Father." He did all our bufiness with God as our Mediator, and that in our nature, and in our name and stead; and all that we do in worship to God, is to be done by us in his name; and thus acceptance comes to us. Christians, when you pray, when you read and hear God's word, when you fit down at Christ's table, when you perform any you not down at Christ table, when you perform any part or piece of worship to God; if you would have it acceptable to God, and profitable to you, (and these two are inseparable; for no accepted service is unprofitable to us; and if profitable to us, it was first accepted of God), let your faith be exercised on this: "Jesus Christ makes another fort of figure 66 600

" for me in heaven, than I can make for myfelf on " earth."

2. Improve by faith Christ's representing of you to God, in all your judgings and examinings of yourfelves. Self-examination is a great duty, and a necesfary one, 1 Cor. xi. 28. and 2 Cor. xiii. 5. Happy are they that mind it much, that manage it rightly, and iffue it well. I believe, that of all duties required in the word of all men, it is that duty that feweit unbelievers and hypocrites are employed in. It is very doubtful, whether it be possible, that a hypocrite can be at the pains to spend some portion of time in the work of felf-examination. Of all companies, an ungodly man likes least the company and conversation of his own conscience. Psal. iv. 4. Communing with our own hearts; dealing fairly and freely with our own consciences; and not only allowing, but charging them to reply, and do deal freely with us again, and taking well with this freedom, feems to be above the reach of a hypocrite, at least of an ordinary one. But when a Christian is setting about this work of felf-examination, by and in the light of God's word, he should search his heart, his sins, his wants, his graces. But the main thing is his state in God's fight. And the designed end and issue of this trial, is, to have and pass the same judgment on himself that God doth; that he may not, as many do, commend himfelf, when God condemns him, or condemn himfelf. when God approves him. Now, we all know, that God's judgment of mens state is, as they are in Christ, or not in him. So 2 Cor. xiii. 5. Surely you must think they were bold and faucy professors, that fought a proof of Christ's speaking in and by Paul, as ver. 3. To them he faith in effect, "Instead of your trying, " whether Christ speaks by your ministers, inquire if "Christ be in yourselves or not. If Christ be not in 66 you, they have spoken to little good purpose to 66 you: and if Christ be in you, you will quickly " know

"know who they be that speak in Christ's name " unto you, and whether Christ speaks by them to " vou."

3. Improve this truth of Christ's representing his church unto God, in all the misrepresentations that are, or can be made of you to God, or men, or your-felves. They are falle, if they differ from what Christ makes of his people to God. I shall name some of them.

1/t, The devil mifrepresents believers to God, and men, and themselves. Doth Job fear God for nought? Job i, 9. said the devil to God. "He hath been a "good fervant to thee, but thou hast been a good "master to him; take from him what thou hast given " him, and he will ferve thee no more, but curfe hee " to thy face." Impudent flanderer, and a lying prophet! God, to try Job, and to make the devil a lyar, gives the devil a permission. He readily useth it: and Job is made a poor man in one day; but bleffeth God in taking, as well as in giving, ver. 21. Yet Satan gives not over; but, in chap. ii. 5. begs one trial more of Job, on his body. It is also given, and yet not fuccessful, ver. 9, 10. though strengthened by his wife's bad words. It is a fad, but true name of the devil, in Rev. xii. 10. The accuser of the brethren, which accuseth them before our God day and night. They are brethren, God is their God; but yet Satan will be the accuser of them before their God. There is little or no doubt to be made, but that the devil knows who are truly godly. Such a watchful and cunning jailor as he is, cannot be ignorant when any of his prisoners are rescued by Christ, and make their escape, 2 Tim. ii. 26.: and though he know not the hearts of men immediately and perfectly: yet having fo much craft, and long experience, and intelligence, in ways unknown to us, of what is in mens hearts, how can we think that his works should be destroyed, I John iii. 8. and Christ's new work be begun in the heart of a man, and the devil know nothing of it? But Nn Vot. II. as

as to Christians advancing in godliness, Satan knows and hates them, and they know him and result him. Sirs, there is not a Christian amongst you so strong in grace and experience, but the devil can draw fuch a picture of you by his hellish art, from what he knoweth of God and his law, and from what he knows of your heart and ways, and can fer it before your eyes. fo as to confound you, if the Lord do not feafonably interpose for your relief. And it is this the devil drives at: that if he cannot hinder the believer's falvation. (as it is certain he cannot; and it is most probable he knows that he cannot), he may yet diffurb his peace: for this picture and reprefentation of a poor believer is fo artfully drawn, and so cunningly exposed, that when the man feeth ir, he is ready to think and fay with horror, "This is the picture of a "devil, rather than of a man, or of a Christian." Take all the evil that is in the best, and expose that; and hide all the good that is in him, as if it were not, (and this is Satan's way), and you do then expose a hateful object. Now, this truth of Christ's representing his people unto God, is of great comfort to a believer; for by faith he may fay, " My bleffed Advo-" cate in heaven giverh another account of me, than "my malicious accuser from hell doth: and I will " trust to the one, and despile the other.

2dly, The world misrepresents believers. The world hates them, because Christ is kind to them, John xv. 19. We are forbid to marvet at it, 1 John iii. 13. And because the world hates them, therefore they fay all manner of evil falsely against the godly, Matt. v. 10, 11, 12. And thereupon we are bid re-joice, and be exceeding glad; for so they persecuted the prophets before us, and the apostles, yea Christ himfelf. How little did Paul care for the world's opinion of him? 1 Cor. iv. 3, 4. With me it is a very small thing that I should be judged of you, or of man's judgment; he that judgeth me, is the Lord. "I stand at " his bar, and depend upon his fentence, and trust

adly, The law makes a reprefentation of believers, that they must not receive, but set Christ's represen-tation against it. Whoever seeth his own face in the glass of God's holy law, feeth a hateful sported face: For by the law is the knowledge of fin, Rom. ii. 20. Now, if a believer think, that just as he feeth himfelf in this clear glass, so doth he appear in the prefence of God, that were dreadful indeed. But there is another representation that Christ makes of them unto God, that the law knows not of. The more a man knows of the law, the more he knows of his own fin and danger. And this fad condition remains, till he look beyond and above the law, unto the righteoufness of Christ, who hath satisfied and fulfilled the law by himfelf, and makes this over to a believer, and represents him to God, as clothed with it.

4thly, Believers themselves are often misrepresented by believers also. Bleffed be God, that his thoughts of us are not as mens are. Such men that feek after, and value themselves upon good mens thoughts and approbation, feek a thing of small worth, and what is quickly loft. Many are cast at the bar of good men, who stand accepted of God: 2 Cor. x. 18. For not he that commendeth himself, is approved, but ruhom the Lord commendeth. What better was Judas, that the eleven apostles had a better opinion of him, than of themselves, when, hearing Christ's warning of a traitor amongst them, each faid, Lord, is it 1? Believers are never the worse, if other men, worse or better than themselves, pass another judgment on them than God doth.

5thly, The last misrepresentation that the faith of Christ's right representing us to God should support us under, is that that our consciences make of us. This is nearer to us that all the other. The devil and the world are without, and round about us; the law is above us; believers are nearer to us: but conscience is nearest of all. Conscience never condemns a believer, but at the bar of the law, (for which, as condemning, Christ harh redeemed him), and always in and by the working of unbelief. And in a believer, his was riving unbelief acts this way: It looks on the difecte, and forgets the physician; it looks on the debt. and forgets the furety, and his payment of it. Confrience faith, 6 Thou oweit many thousand ta-" lends to the law and justice of God: is it not true, " and can it be denied?" " No, must the believer "fiy; the debt is not to be denied by me; nor 66 Christ's payment of it to be forgotten by me." The law, as a court of judgment, condemns for fin; but Christ's new court of grace acquits the believer in Christ. To this court every believer appeals, and at it he stands.

So much for the third use of this privilege of Christ's representing us to God, under all the misrepresentations that may be made of believers.

4. Improve this privilege under all dispensations of providence that you may neet with. Are you affl fied by the Lord's hand? and would ye have found confolation under it? All are fenfible of afflictions, and all would fain have comfort under them. Sometimes the Lord fends an extraordinary measure of this comfort unto his people, which is above the usual activity of their faith; but though this be very pleafing and ufeful, it is not oft of long continuance, nor is it fit it should. But there is a rejoicing in tribulation, that is a duty that Christians should make concernce of; as well as there is a joy of the Lord that is their flrength, Nehen, viii. 10. which they frould feek and value. This rejoicing is only by fairly; and this faith that produceth the joy, is afted on Christ, and on our interest in him. "I am heavily afflicted by the Lord's " hand, faith the believer: but I am a member of "Christ's body; my head is concerned in it, and " will support me under it. He keeps up the peace " betwixt a correcting father and a corrected child: 66 And

"And as long as the peace stands, no real hurt cau "come to me. Are you tempted of the devil?" as indeed the most part of most Christians lives is taken up with affliction and temptation; and the whole armour of God is provided for, and to be used in and under them, Eph. vi. 10,--18. It was an odd remark of a minister of great learning and grace, "I never "knew an eminent faint, but he had either fingular " afflictions or fingular corruptions to wreftle with." The apostle tells us, 2 Cor. xii. 2. I knew a man in Christ, caught up into the third heavens, doubtless meaning himself. You think it is no strange thing that a man in Christ, one like Paul, should be so dealt with; especially when he faith, Eph. ii. 6. that God bath made us fit together in heavenly places in Christ fefus. But this is more strange, that this man in Christ, this man new come down from heaven, should immediately after be buffeted by Satan. If you be fo dealt with, how is it to be borne? The devil hath many things to fay against us; some too true, that we cannot deny; and some things talle, which we may justly deny, and yet do not through our weakness. But when Satan chargeth us with fin truly, which we cannot deny, I would not have believers reason and parly with him, (he is too cunning a fophister for us); but only tell him fomething of Christ, that we too often forget, and that the devil can neither bear nor answer. "If the devil speak against me as a sunner in mysels, "I fay Amen to all that is true; but if he fay any " thing against Christ the Saviour, I dare say he is a "Iyar." If the tempted believer can but fay, "Ia a " in Christ, and therefore I thall prevail; Christ hath " overcome the devil, and therefore I will refift him;" the victory is near at hand.

5. Improve this privilege of Christ's representing you to God, in all the fervice and obedience you perform to God. All men owe all fervice unto God; all true Christians are in heart devoted to his service; and the best Christians mind it most, and perform it best: but when they review their performances, they fee them so faulty, and short of what they ought to be, that theyfee more reason to mourn over the iniquity of their holy things, than to glory in their holy things. Yer notwithstanding all the failings in the sincere obedience of a true believer, (and he alone is the man in whom fincerity is, and by whom any act of sincere obedience can be performed), yet are they acceptable to God by Jesus Christ, 1 Peter ii. 5. Their fruits of righteousness (though far from being fully ripe and persect) are by Jesus Christ unto the glory and praise of God, Phil. i. 11. Far be it from me, to encourage any believer (much less an unbeliever) to put any confidence in their own works or obedience; but I am fure that it would greatly promote a believer's peace and joy, to look rightly on the fruits of his faith. And that is the right way of judging them by a believer, when he faith concerning his obedience, these four things. " 1. I, the worker, am one in Christ. " 2. The work I do, is the fruit of my faith in Christ, "and of my being in him. 3. The work is done in Christ's name. 4. And as such is put in his hand, to be persumed and presented to God by him." Must not the conclusion of faith be, that Christ will procure a gracious acceptance thereof?

6. Improve this privilege of Christ's representing you unto GoJ, as to your peace with God, and the acceptance of your persons. Build all your desires, expediations, and hopes of acceptance with God, on this alone, even on this representation that Christ makes of you to God. God's favourable ac eptance of a finner never had, nor can have any other foundation: Eph. i. 6. We are accepted in the beloved. Rom. v. 1. Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ. But how comes this peace, this juttification? It is by Christ, who was delivered for our effences, and was raised again for our justification, Rom. iv. 25. How would the peace of believers flow as a river, if their faith were active this way: 66 As

" As Christ represents me to God; so do I stand ac" cepted, furely and eternally?"

7. Laftly, Improve this privilege by faith, in all the views and prospects you have or your last appearing before God. Our appearances before God now are many and confiderable. We are always in his fight; we oft draw near to him in his ordinances; he fometimes is pleafed to admit us into his special gracious presence, and to manifest himself to us: but all these are small things, compared with the last, which is far greater than all that went before it. The native question that starts up in the mind of a man that thinks feriously on this appearance, is this, "How shall I be found of him in peace?" And the only gospel-answer is, "Thou must be found in Christ," Phil. iii. 9. Abide in him; that when he shall appear we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming, 1 John ii. 28. None will be found of him in peace in that day, without fpot and blamelefs, as all should labour for, 2 Peter iii. 14. but only they that are found in him, Phil. iii. 9. and presented spotless by him, Jude, verse 24. I know that the deep and serious thoughts of this awful appearance before God, are fufficient to make a finner see the vanity of all resuges, save that of Christ's righteousness. How much more will the glory of the last day do it? Proud men, and trusters to their own righteousness, will then find too late, that that covering of their nakedness is too narrow; and that the beauty of their works, which they valued themselves upon here, will be but deformity before that tribunal. If there be but one blot, one hole in that robe that a man appears before God at last in, (and all that is a man's own, is but rags, and filthy ones too, Ifa. lxiv. 6.), the fword of justice will enter in, and destroy that man. But to believers found in Christ, and covered with Christ's righteousness, there is no danger. The right coufness is perfect, and their acceptance in it performs a teternal; and the crown of righteoufness given to them, will be given by him, and

and received by them with exceeding joy, Jude, ver. 24. We read that there is joy in heaven, and in the pre-fence of the angels of God, over one sinner that repenteth, Luke xv. 7, 10. How much more joy will there be, when all Christ's children shall be brought home, to his Father's house? when he shall give that account of them, Behold, I, and the children which God hath given me, Heb. ii. 13.? Did Christ lay down the dear price with joy; and that for the joy fet before him, Heb. xii. 2.? and will he not receive his full purchase with exceeding joy? It will be his, and his church's marriage-day, Rev. xix. 7, 8, 9. And never were there fuch lovers, as Christ and his bride. No fuch lover in heaven, as he; and no fuch love on earth, as that the church hath to him. And must not the joy be great, on their everlassing union and communion, at that day! So that we may say, that when a believer kneels to receive the crown of glory from his hand, who bought it for him by his blood shed in love, he cannot say with more joy, "O how "glad am I of this day of my receiving this crown!" than Christ will say, "I am more glad of the day in "which I give it:" for in all things, he must have the "pre-eminence, Col. i. 18. Christians, think justly, and think joyfully, of this great and notable day of the Lord, when he will make the greatest and most public representation of his church unto God, as the glorious head of his glorified body. See what food your faith can gather from that scripture, which, whatever fulfilments it hath had, or may yet have in time, is to be perfectly fulfilled (as many other fcriptures) at the last day, Zeph. iii. 17. The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will fave, he will re-joice over thee with joy: he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with finging. Who of you hath faith to believe this? Where is the believer who dare apply these words with the confidence of faith to himself? Who is fo bold as to fay, (and yet all in Christ ought to fay fo), "The bleffed day is coming, and will " furely come, when Jefus Chrift will be as glad to " fee me in heaven, as I can be to fee him, or myfelf "there? He will rejoice over me with joy; that is, " he will exceedingly rejoice: he will rest in his tove; "that is, he will love for ever, without warying or change: he will joy over me with finging: that is, "his love and joy will break forth into a for?" And indeed the joy of Christ in heaven is the best part of heaven's music. One cloud or frown in Christ's face in heaven, would put an immediate damp on all the holy and happy mirth there. But there is no danger of any interruption: for when the imputed righteousness of Christ is on the glorified in all its glory, (and that is when it appears with all the blessed ends it was wrought out for, and applied for, by Christ); when inherent holiness is perfect in them, and immediate communion with him is enjoyed in this true paradise of God; neither the tempter, nor temptation, nor sin, nor wrath, can enter. The pillars in heaven, as Christ promiseth to make him that overcometh, Rev. iii. 12. are more fixed, than those of the old heavens and earth, which he will shake and remove. Heb. sii. 26, 27, 28. Many doubting Christians get fafe to heaven, that oft feared that they should never get in; but all that get entrance, are immediately affured, that they shall never be turned out again. As, on the other hand, many flatter themselves with vain hopes of heaven, who, when they find at last, to their dreadful surprise, that heaven's door shuts them out, and hell's door shuts them in, they know, that the latter door will never be opened to let them out, nor heaven's door be opened to let them in. Remember, that you will be lodged in your everlasting habitations, by the sentence of the great Judge in that day; that your sentence will be, as your interest in Christ, and his interest in you is, and appears. Do you believe a day of judgment? Then quickly run in to Christ; abide in him, as your only refuge; and let the last Vol. II. day find you in him; and you are fafe now, and shall

know and find your fafety more in that day.

So much for the first thing, In what cases believers should improve this great privilege of Christ's repre-fenting them unto God. A privilege, in which, as Christ's glory appears, so the falvation and peace of believers is fecured.

Secondly, A little on the fecond thing proposed, In what manner is this improvement of this privilege to be made?

1. It is to be improved with the deepest humility and felf-abasement. We are to prone to pride, that not only are natural men proud of their rotten and filthy rags; but believers are not out of danger of being proud of borrowed raiment. The loathfome, naked lafant, that had no eye to pity, no hand to help it, but the Lord's; when its beauty was made perfect through the Lord's comeline's put upon ber, did yet trust in her own beauty, Ezek. xvi. 3,---15. I know, that there the Prophet, in a figure, points at Ifrael's low state the Lord found them in, and the high state he had advanced them to, of his mere grace and mercy; and, from both, is aggravating their fin in forgeting both, and the dreadful wickedness that people fell into from that forgetting: but, by a just parallel, it may be applied unto particular persons. If you make a question, Is it possible that a man can be proud and vain of Christ's righteousness imputed to him for his sceptance with God? l'answer, 1. A man may i-ragine, that he is in Christ, and accepted with God on Christ's account, and may be proud and pussed up. Of this there is no doubt: for false notions in men may make them proud. If the legal Pharifees trufted in themselves that they were righteeus, and despised o-thers, Luke xviii. 9. when they had no ground nor reason for it; why may not a hypocrite make a ground-less boast of his faith and interest in Christ, and in his righteoufness, and be proud and secure upon that imagination? Much of this was in Laodicca's case, Rev-

iii. 17, 18. 2. If a true believer find any vanity rifing in his heart, on the account of Christ's righteous-ness reckoned to him; at that time that person hath the notion of this privilege in his mind and memory, rather than a light fight and sense of it on his heart by faith. For, 3. This great privilege, as it is given by God, that no flesh may glory in his presence; is where it is feen and pondered by faith, it always humbleth the happy partaker of it: for he fill remembers what he was without it before he got it, and what vile nakedness in him is covered by this gifted righteousness. See the latter part of Ezek. xxi. 60, 63.; where the Lord, after all the enumeration and aggravation of Brael's finfulness, comes in with that God-like, Neverthelefs, I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee an everlasting covenant. "It would be but " a short lasting covenant, if it stood upon thy keeping, "or were diffolved by thy breaking of it." What is the end of this marvellous grace? That thou mayest remember, and be confounded, and never open thy mouth any more, because of thy skame. A sa like exercise. But when is it to be done to purpose? When the Lord doth plague and rend Irrael? when he fets their fins in order before them, and writes bitter things a-gainst them? No; but when I am pacified toward thee for all that thou hast done, faith the Lord God. Like the promise in Ezek xxxvi. 31. "When my quarrel against thee for thy sin is laid aside by me, it shall be " taken up by thee in judging and condemning thy-" felf; when thy fins are forgotten by my grace, they shall be remembered by thee for thy felf-abase-"ment." The pardoned man is only the true penitent; and that is the best repentance that is exercised in the reading of our fealed forgiveness. Therein a man feeth that dreadful roll blotted out, but only by free grace in the blood of Jesus. No sin is forgiven, but in the virtue of that blood. When therefore a believer feeth the yilest of all things, his fins, and the most Cos

most facred of all things, the atoning blood of the Son of God, joined together in his charter of pardon; what thoughts the pardoned man must have of fin, of grace in forgiving, and of the way in which this forgiveness cometh, it were happier for you and me to feel, then it is easy for me to express, or for any to think, but such a happy soul that feels it. We have an instance of a great sinner greatly forgiven, in Luke vil. 39,--50. The Lord fend us her bleffing, and her frame. A proud pardoned finner is a monster. Art thou a finner, and proud of thy fin? Then art thou an open rebel against an offended God. Art thou a finner, and proud of any thing? Thou art a fool; proud, when the most debasing thing lieth upon thee! But art thou a pardoned finner, and not humble? What name should such a creature be called by? Canst thou be proud of thy pardon, when thy conscience tells thee truly, that thou descreet to be damned, as juffly as any God ever condemned? and that only free grace made the difference betwixt you and them, in your fentence, when there was no difference betwist their and your deferts? Canft thou be proud of pardon in Christ's blood, when both the guilt and vileness of sin is so discovered in the only way of its expiation; and when the glory of grace in contriving, using, and applying this expiation, thineth fo brightly? Believers, whenever you read your charter of pardon in the new covenant, do but remember who and what is forgiven, and who he is that forgiveth, and on what account he doth forgive; and fee it these will not lay thee, and keep thee low in his fight.

2. This great privilege should be improved by believers, with confidence and affurance of faith. Trembling believers may be true believers: but trembling and doubting believing is never due believing; it neither giveth the glory due to God, nor brings in that peace and fruit that is needful to the believer. Christ represent you to God for acceptance, and do you doubt whether you shall be accepted? Is not this very finfully to question his interest at the highest court? Say not you doubt your acceptance, because of your great unworthiness; for there is no worth but Christ's that is regarded in your acceptance. The question is not, "Am I any way worthy of God's "gracious acceptance?" But it is, "Is Christ worthy, "and able to make such an unworthy sinner as I am, "to be accepted? and is his worthiness for this, to "be fearfully or confidently trufted in by me?" See two passages about this. The one is in an exhortation to all believers; the other is in the triumph of faith of one great believer, in the name of all, and for a pattern to all. The first is in Heb. x. 19, 20, 21, 22, 23.; where we find the apostle, upon the folid and common grounds of every believer's faith, Jesus Christ, and his office, urging drawing near (and to God, as in chap. vii. 19.) with a true heart, in full affurance of faith. Having fuch a door, fuch a way, fuch a high prieft, as Christ is, let us draw near, never doubting our welcome. The other place is in Rom. viii. 31,---39. If God be for us, who can be against us? An unanswerable question. But how do we know that God is for us? Thus, He spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, ver. 32.; the all he fpoke of in ver. 29, 30. But are there not many things justly chargeable on the elect believers? No, faith he, ver. 33, 34. Nothing, by any, can be laid to their charge. Why so? Are they not by mature children of wrath, even as others, Eph. ii. 3.? Yes: But it is Ged that juffifeth; who is he that condemneth? He is a bold devil, or man, or conscience, that condemneth whom God justifieth. But how doth God justify? Is he not the Lawgiver, against whom they have sinned? Yes; but yet he justifieth and justify: It is Christ that died, &c. It is Christ's interest in them, his undertaking and performance for them, his reprefenting them unto God, that is the ground of their justification before God, of their acceptance with God, and of their joy of faith; as Rom. v. 11. We joy in God, through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have now received the atonement. Believers, look on yourselves as oft, and as narrowly as you can; judge and condemn yourfelves as much as you will: but when you look for acceptance with God, mind Christ alone, and give him glory in trusting confidently for acceptance in him.

3. Improve this privilege with diligence and painfulnefs. It is well worthy of our diligence, and diligence is needful for us. I thall name on this but two

1/1, Use diligence to keep this privilege of Christ's representing you to God for acceptance, stedfastly and constantly in the eye of your faith. The peace of Christians would not ebb and flow with every tide, as oft it doth, if this duty were more minded. This is what is called, holding fast the considence, and rejoicing of the hope, firm unto the end; and, holding the beginning of our confilence fiedfast unto the end, Heb. iii. 6, 14. This is what is required of all, in Heb. vi. 11. "And we defire, that every one of you do Shew the fame diligence, to the full affurance of hope unto the end. The thield of raith, as it quencheth all the fiery darts of the devil, Eph. vi. 16.; 10 his most flery darts are flung against it. Such as know not trials of faith, never had the truth of faith. An evil heart of unbelief (and fome roots of it are in the bost believers) will oft affault true faith. Great watch and ward should be kept by faith, about our precious faith; for faith doth waich itself Tath prayed in that man, Lord, help my unbelief, Mask ix. 24. Hath the Lord once or oftener caufed you to hope? as Pfal. exix. 49.; hath he taken you, and made you fit down, and relicon the precions foundation, Jefus Christ? Hold you there. Be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, Col. 1. 23. But as ye have received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, Col. ii. 6. 7. It you try this work, you will quickly find that diligence is needful. If you give diligence in it, you will quickly find the rich profit of it.

2dly, Use diligence in your improving of this privilege, in studying likeness and conformity to Jesus Chrift. Hath he bleffed you with this great grace of reprefeuting you in his righteousness for your acceptance with God? Should not you study to get Christ's image in true holiness, more and more increased in you? True gospel-holiness is only planted by gospelgrace, and nourished by gospel-arguments: and these arguments have neither light nor power on any, but fuch as have received the Spirit of faith; 1 John iii. 3. Every man that bath this hope in him, (it should be read on him, that is, on Christ), purifieth himself, even as he is pure. He is still a-doing, a-purifying; but not perfect as yet. Thus a carnal heart is apt to say, "" Since I cannot be perfectly holy in this life, and "fince I hope I shall be so when Christ appeareth, I will let the study of holiness alone till that day." No, saith the apostle; Every man that bath this hope in Christ, of being like him, when he shall see him as be is, ver. 2. will now study that likeness, although he cannot attain it, as he would. That man's state is naught, and his faith unfound, that finds not his hopes of his glory purifying to his heart and life. Now, fet about the study Tove, and practice of holiness, all you that are favoured with Christ's grace in representing you to God's gracious acceptance: and I make no doubt, but that all that have obtained this grace, and fee it by faith, will be fo exercifed: Rom. vi. 1, 2. Shall we continue in fin, that grace may abound? A plaufible objection, and eafily drawn by a carnal heart, from what is faid, Rom. v. 20. Where fin abounded, grace did much more abound. But if the objection be obvious, the answer is mysterious: God forbid: How skall we that are dead to sin, live any longer therein? It is as if he had faid, " I do not wonder that they that

" that are alive to fin, make this objection; but all " that are dead to fin, fee no weight in it." But how are believers dead to fin, and alive unto God? By the virtue of Christ's death and resurrection, ver. 3, 4, 5, 6. into which every believer is planted. And thence, ver. 11. he bids them, Reckon ye also yourselves to be dead indeed unto sin, but alive unto God through Jesus Christ our Lord. If Christians were more skilful in there reckonings of faith, they would abound more in the fruits of holiness. All true holiness is the fruit of faith; all true faith produceth this fruit; and the strongest believer brings forth most abundant fruit, John xv. 4. 5.

SERMON XV.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

Y OU may remember, that, fome weeks ago, when I first began to speak from this sweet, long, and great verse of Christ's prayer, I did take it up in two parts; the manner, and matter of it. The manner of it is in this word, I will; a way of praying that we do not find Christ used, but here; a way of praying that no Christian should use; for our will is fo foolish and finful a thing, that the less room it hath in our prayers, the better our prayers are: our prayers are to be according to his will, and not ours.

In the matter of Christ's prayer in this verse, I took up four things. 1. The denomination and description he gives and makes of them he pray: for: These whom them hast given me. We cannot direct our prayers as Christ did; he prayed for the elect as elect, and as persons particularly and exactly known to him. 2. The blossing he prays for to those persons: That they may also be with me where I am. 3. The end of his praying for this blessing to them; That they may behold in glery which thou hast given me: Till they are where Christ is, they cannot behold it fully. 4. The argument by which Christ backs this prayer: for thou loveds me before the foundation of the world.

I have fpoke all I mean to fay on the first two things in the matter of this prayer; and am yet upon the third part; which I would conclude at this time. In handling of which, I did propound two heads of discourse. I. What is the glory of Christ that is to be beheld. 2. What is the beholding of it. Of the first I have spoken at length; and because the theme is very large, I comprehended all in two particulars. 1. The glory of Christ as he represents God unto his church, to be favingly known by them; and, 2. His glory as he represents his church unto God, to be graciously accepted of God. There are no faving views of God, but in Chailt; and there are no gracious views God hath of men, but in Christ. If we look on God out of Christ, we are dazzled with an overwhelming, confounding majesty; if God look on us out of Christ, he seeth hateful and hated sinners. To both thefe I have largely spoken, both doctrinally, and with application.

II. I come now to the fecond thing, What is the beholding of Chris's glory? His glory is a divine glory; but the beholding of it is a creature's act. And because his glory is divine, and therefore intinitely great, it is a deeper theme in itself than the beholding Yol. II.

of it; yet some way the beholding of his glory, is darker to us than his glory. We are able to know a fittle more of his glory, than we can know what that beholding of it is that Christ here prays for. But, indeed, both the glory of Christ as manifested in beaven, and the gloristed faints beholding of it there, are themes too deep, and too dark, for any man to conceive or express. My way therefore of speaking to this subject, of the beholding of Christ's glory in heaven, must be by way of comparison, comparing it with such beholdings of his glory as saints on earth have had, or may have. And of such we find fpecially these three.

1. Some beheld Christ's glory before he came into the world; before he took to him man's nature; as Abraham did, John viii. 56. Yeur father Abraham rejeiced to fee my day, and he face it, and was glad. So in John xii. 41. Thefe things faid Efficies (in chap. vi.), when he faw his glory and spake of him. This was by faith; and the light that that faith was begotten by, and afted in, was that of the divers ways and manners in which God communicated his mind to his people before the law; which doubtlefs carried fuch credentials with them, that did fash fy the faith of believers at that time, as really as God's written word now doth a new tell ament believer's faith. If we think that the Spirit of God, by Mofes's pen in Genefis, gives but a finall and thort account of the patriarch's faith, and of the grounds and actings of it in them, both before and after the flood; yet he, by Paul in the new testament, giveth a tuller account of it; as in Help xi. of many of them; and of Abraham more largely, in Rom. iv. and in Gal. iii. 8.; where he tells us, that the gofpel was preached before unto Abraham, is these words, In thee feall all nations be hieffed. Ver. 16. Now to Abraham and his feed were the promifes made. He faith not, And to fieds, as of many; but as of one, And to thy feed which is Christ. What an exact and spiritual commentator was

Paul on Abraham's gospel, In thee and thy feed thall all nations be bleffed? repeated again to liuachis fon, Gen xxvi. 4.; by Isaac given as his blesling to his ion Jicob, Gen. xxviii. 4.; which he calls the blighing of Abraham, as Paul doth, in Gal. iii. 14. This blef. fing the Lord giveth to Jacob, Gen. xxviii. 14. How many do read these sew words in Genesis, that never would have found out that deep gofpel in them that Paul doth? That, 1. This promifed feed, of whom Haac was only a progenitor and a type, was Christ. 2. That this bleffing to be got in him and by him, was justification. 3. That this justification implied a prior condemnation and curse that men were under, and which this bleffing only could remove. 4. That all the families of the earth, to whom this bleffing was defigned to extend, were the Heathen, verse 8. Gentiles, verse 14, 5. That this bleshing is only received by faith, ver. 7, 9. 6. That the law, which was 43 years after, could not difancul this promife and covenant of grace, ver. 17. 7. That every believer on Jefus Christ, whether Jew or Gentile, partakes of Abraham's bleffing, are Abraham's feed, and leirs according to the promife; yea, are all the children of God by faith in Corift Fefus, ver. 26, 28, 29. Flow much despised by many would fuch a comment be, on so few, and to dark words, and words that have to fair an appearance of a less evangelic sense than the apofile purs upon them? But Arangers to that Opinit that dictated the foriginess, will ever prove poor comuleutators upon the moll spiritual part of the scriptures. By this fhort him it doth appear, that the patriorens before the law did behold the glory of Christ, though not yet come: not to speak of the prophets, who, all of them from Samuel, and thoje that follow after, as many as have spoken, have likewise foretoil of these days, as Peter faith, Acts.iii. 24.

2. The next beholding of the glory of Christ was, when he came and lived on the earth, and his people sived with him: when God was manifested in the stelle, Fpz I Tim.

1 Tim. iii, 16. John i. 14. And the Word was made fields, and dwelt among us (and we telled his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the bather) full of grace and truth. This beholding of his glory was on-Iv by tai h: for many who faw with their bodily eyes this appearance of the Son of God, in man's flesh, that faw his works, which none other nan did. John xv. 24. and heard his words, tuch as never man trake, I hn vii 46.; yet faw no glory in him, nor in any rong he did, or faid, or fuffered; but defuited and bated him; and all, because they believed not, John vi. 36. And on them was tuifilled what the Prophet forerold, Ita. liii, 1, 2, 3. Our Lord's humbled flate was a great, thick, and dark vail on his glory: vet his glory shone it it, and through it; and taith beheld it, 1 John i. 1, 2. Envy not the happiness of fach believers as conversed with Christ when he was on earth. though there was a great bleffedness in it, Luke x. 22, 14. and Math. sit. 16, 17; yet Christ given the preference to them that have not feen, and yet have believed, John xx. 29. 1 Peter. i. 8 We may juftly think, that never was the eye of faith more tried, than by the mean and low appearance, that for great a person, as God's only begotten on, and coming with the high character of the Meflias, and on fo great an errand and work, as redeeming his church, made, when he came, and was made manifest to Is act. And therefore faith in him then had a special difficulty in its way, which cars both not, when we fee Jefer crowned with glory and known, Heb. ii. 9. And this difficulty of believing increased, as Christ's low state did. He was at his lowest on his cross, and in his grave. Unbelief, and contempt of him, grew to a dreadful height in his enemies. Faith in him, in them that had ir, and had professed it, was brought into its lowest: Luke xxiv. 21. But we trufled that it had been he which should have redeemed Ifraet. They had once to believed. But what did they now? They were alloaftonified, ver. 22.; they could not tell whether they should repent of their fairb, or of their unbelief. And thus they spoke to Christ himself, but vailed from them. But bleffed Jefus, though entered into his glory, (as verse 26.), had the same pity and tenderness he had so oft before expressed, and goody rebukes. teacheth them, and recovers them. When he was on his crofs, his enemies faw no glory in him, and his friends little elfe fave matter of forrow. Yet one, a thief, and a dying man too, feeth his glory, and faith, Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom. It is not, as Christ's enemies, and this man's companion, both in his crime and punishment, faid, If thou be the Christ. But it is as if he had faid, "I know " thee to be the son of God; and though dying, yet " going to thy kingdom: give me a'share in that " kingdom thou art new buying by thy blood." And he was answered; the rarest believer that ever was, the greatest faith that ever was acted, and the most gracious answer that ever was given, ver. 33. Well did Jefus, dying for finners, know how to receive a finner into heaven.

3. Christ's glory is beheld, when he is in heaven, and his people are on earth. And this is by faith alfo. In this cafe, though there be not a vail of infirmity on the glory of our Lord, as there was when he was on earth; yet there is a vall distance betwist hin, and us; as great as betwint heaven and earth, as betwist the right hand of the Father, where he is in his glory, and our weak eye of taith, who are on earth. Yet this eye, in the light and glass of the gospel, can, and doth behold with open face the glors of the Lord, 2 Cor. iii. 18. Of this beholding of Christ's glory, I would speak in two instances.

1/1, At the first conversion of a samer, when he is made a believer in Christ. None are truly converted to God, but fuch as are made believers in Christ; and none are made believers in Christ, but they to whom the glory of Christ is discovered. It is by the power of this discovery that faith is wrought; and in the light of it faith is acted. Some think, that a man is converted, when the fecure finner is awakened by the light and heat of God's law, when a profane person is made sober in his convertation. But if there be no more, he may be fill as far, yea, farther from true conversion than before: Matth. xxi. 31. Verily I fay unto you, that the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you. And yet the scribes and Pharifees thought themselves in so much better case for heaven than they, that they would not entertain common converse with ordinary finners; boasted that they were better than fuch; yea, turned Christ's grace to his reproach: Luke xv. 2. They murmured, faying, This man receiveth finners, and eateth with them." What were they that faid fo? Were they not finners? Yes; but they did not fee or own themfelves to be fuch. What should a sinner do, but go to Chris? What can come on a finner, if Christ receive him not? Yea, what is a Saviour of finners for, but for receiving tioners, and faving them from their fine, Matth. i. 21 ? And yet finners coming to Christ, and Christ's welcome of them, makes upbelievers murmur, both against Christ and believers. So fure it is, that no mun can fee any glory in that grace of Christ, that he hath no tight per feafe of his own need of. But when was Paul converted, an eminent Pharifee, the best scholar in Gamaliel's febool, Gal. i. 14, 15, 16 " It was when Ged revealed his Son in Lim, It is ver at a state Paul has heard of Jetes Christ, while . It if e; but it is certain, that he hated him, his value mane, and all that belonged to him. But when the "s time was come to call this chosen vessel by the see, when he intends to subdue and conquer Park rebel-Lous spirit, a revelation of Christ is made to him: and the rubel yields, and is made a loyal fubject all his days. Would you know when you were converted? If ever it was, it was when you had the first view of the glory of Christ as a Saylorr. When this fight is got, then the finner employs Christ in his raving office, trusts him in it, and is faved by him.

adly, Chrift's glary is beheld by believers, when Christ is in heaven, and they on earth, in the following manifestations of Christ, and of his glory to them. Whenever Christ is seen, it is by his manifesting of himself. No torch, nor candle, nor fire, could make one fee the fun, if its own shining did not. His penple, to whom he bath manifested himself once, need to have it repeated again and again. And this bleffing he promifeth, John xiv. 21, 23. It is very fulpicious, that that man's state is bad, that never had but one discovery of Christ's glory. Those manifesttations of his glory are various, both in measure, duration, and their feafons. Sometimes, upon feed I diligence in feeking of the Lord by faith in process. What Christian is there that is not able to witness to this, that the times of his special seeking bave been the times of his special finding? If there was more of Mofes's spirit, (though it may be there was somewhat in it that was above, both what is either allowable to ask, or attainable by ordinary believers), Exed xxxiii. 18. I befeech thee show me thy glory, it would be better with us. If we were more importunate in begging new and clearer visions of the glory of Christ, and renewed visits from him for that end, he would not deny us. If we'did go to himfelf, with that defire that fome came with to one of his disciples, John xii. 21. Sir, we would fee Jefus: can any think he would be displeased? But, alas! we receive not, because we alk not. Sometimes Christ manifelts himself in a fpecial manner to his people, in the furnace of affiliation. especially if it be for his fake; yea, in the easiest or those sufferings: 1 Peter iv. 14. If ye be reproseded for the name of Christ, happy are ye; for the spirit of glory and of God restets upon you.

Sometimes the Lord manifelts his glory to his prople at their dying. And it is then very defirable. Old Simeon had a gradious promite, that he shoult

not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ. He chused a sweet season of dying, when the promise was fulfilled, and when he had . Christ in his arms. and faith and leve in his heart burfling out into a fong, Luke ii. 27,--29. The first martyr, Stephen, died happily; he died witnessing for Christ: and Christ winefied for him, when the martyr faid, Behold, I fee the Leavens opened, and the Son of man standing on the right hand of God, Acts vii. 55, 56. This was better than Moscs's dying, Deut. xxxii. 49, 50. and xxxiv. 1. -- 5. It was a strange journey and call, Go up and die, and only take a view of the land that he must not enter into. He saw the land of Canaan, and that was all: but he faw by faith the true Canaan, and entered into it; and there abideth still; fave one errand Mofes was fent upon with Elias, to wait on their Master on the mount of transfiguration. Matth, xvii. 2.

These are a few inflances of the seasons in which the Lord manifelts his glory to his people, and in which they do behold it. But this text and theme I am upon, relates to fomewhat far higher and greater, than all the beholdings of his glory that ever any faint on earth received. What it is, I cannot tell you, and I am fure that none can; though many may easily tell more of it than I can. There is both a danger and fnare in prying within God's vail. I shall therefore content myself with comparing the beholding of Christ's glory by believers on earth, with this beholding of it that our Lord here prays for to all his peo-

This only I would premise unto this discourse that fuch as are wholly unacquainted in their own experience, with the beholding of the glory of Christ, by the eye of faith in the gospel-glass, they will, they can, they must understand nothing that can be said of the beholding of Christ's glory in heaven.

These two beholdings of Christ's glory, the one on earth, and the other in heaven, may be compared, and yet differ in feveral things; of which take

1. They differ greatly in the measure of glory manifested by him, and seen by the beholders. Christ's glory is infinite; and no creature, in its most exalted capacity, can take a full view of it all. Therefore, though the glorified beholders of it are eternal beholders thereof, yet they never fee it all fully, nor can comprehend it. The beholdings of his glory by us on earth, are according to the small measures of its discovery, and suited unto our small capacity. Our old bottles are not fit for this new wine. Believers know this well by their experience. Sometimes they have more, sometimes less of Christ's glory manisched to them; but always less than what they think they need, and would be at. This is so universal in the spiritual sense and experience of Christians, that these two feem to be established, as from the word of God, fo from the common experience of believers. 1. That they whose views of Christ's glory are constantly the fame, without any changes and vicissi udes of light and darkness, day and night: and, 2. That they who fee as much of Christ's glory as they defire to fee, fuch never truly faw any thing of it at all. Was ever true faith in the same activity? Do not all experienced believers witness by their spiritual sense, that sometimes in the word read or heard, there is a beam of light, and life, and power, that darts upon a word, that they often before had read and heard without any fuch enjoyment, and which they may remember and think again upon afterwards, without any power to recal the same mercy to their taste again? So it is in prayer, and in all ordinances wherein we feek communion with him. Some have lefs, fome have more; and some believers, at some times of their life, have fuch manifestations of Christ's glory in his love, tendernefs, and familiarity with them, as they can hardly contain. But the best enjoyment for kind, and largest for measure, is far short of what the smallest vessel in Vol. II. Chrift's

Christ's upper-house is fit to receive, and doth receive. The feeing of the Lord's power and glory in his fanctuary on earth, is greatly and justly defired by his people, Pfal. Land, 2. and is well made their one thing, Pfal, xxvii. 4. and when they obtain communion with him, they all fay as one did, Pfal. lxxxiv. 10. A day in thy courts is better than a thousand: I had rather be a door-keeper in the house of my God, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. He was a great man, and a great faint, that faid it. But one hour in the court of heaven, is better than a thousand years in God's lower courts. There are days of heaven upon the earth, Dent xi. 21. Such are clear and bright days; but the days of heaven in heaven, are unspeakably more fo. What we now receive, is, as Song ii. o. Behold, he franceth behind our wall, he looket's fort's at the windows, shewing himself through the lattice. But then all walls and windows, all means of communion with him, shall be removed, as useful no more: Rev. xxi. 22. And I faw no temple therein : for the Lord God alnughty, and the Lamb, are the temple of it. Christ himself speaks of this list day, Matth. xxv. 31. When the Son of man shall come in his glory, --- then shall be fit on the throne of his glory. Then will his glory appear, and his people shall appear with him in glory, Col. iii. 4.

2. In the next place, The way whereby we behold Christ's glory on earth, and thall behold it in heaven, differ greatly. As they differ in measures, to in the manner and ways of beholding: 1 Cor. xiii. 12. For now we see through a glass sairly, (se in a riddle), but then face to face. Now I know in part; but then shall I know, even as I also am thown. There are three ways of knowing of things that God provides for us. Our fenses, for femible things; our understanding, for fuch things as fall not under our fenfes; and faith, for fuch things that are beyond the reach of both fense and reason. When Christ was first on earth, he was the object of mens fenfes, but few knew him; few could could fay as t John i. 2. And when he returns again, every eye shall see him, Rev. i. 7.; but all shall not have a comfortable view of him. Every one shall hear his voice, and rife when called, but to a different fentence, John v. 28, 29. By that wifdom that God bath put in the inward parts, and by that understanding he both given to the heart, Job xxxviii. 36. For he teacheth us more than the beafts of the earth, and maketh us wifer than the foruls of beaver, Job xxxv. 11. By this noble power men know clearly and furely many things which are beyond the reach of our oatward fenfes. But beyond both is faith, which is as the eye of the new creature, planted by the Lord: whereby the things of God, that can neither be taken up by our external fenses, nor be traced by the eye of our minds, are yer, in the light of God's word revealing them, by faith feen and embraced, I Cor. ii. 9, 10. Heb. xi. 1. And this exercise of faith, with its fruits, is the utmost that believers reach or can attain while they are on earth. But this beholding of Christ's glory by them that shall be with him where he is, is unspeakably beyond all.

To begin with the first, our bodily senses, they will be perfect in the refurrection-state, in all the children of the refurrection, as our Lord calls them, Luka xx. 36. The apostle, in disputing about, and proving, and explaining of this article of the Christian faith, in a Cor. xv. 44. calls the body that is raifed a spiritual bady: There is a natural body, and there is a spiritual body. The raised body is a real body, and not a spirit; it is the real true body of every faint that he lived in, that he ferved Christ in and by; that very body that he departed from at death, and left to the corruption of the grave, that is raised again in glory, in power, in incorruption, as ver. 42, 43.; that same once vice body that is then changed, that it may be fashioned like unto Christ's glorious body, Phil. iii. 21. As the body is, fo are its fenfes and powers. A natural body hath natural

tural powers; and as it decays, those powers decay also; elegantly described in Eccl. sii. 1,---7. But what a spiritual body is, and what its powers are, we do not, we cannot know. But this we know, that there will be a glorious appearance of Christ in that day, that will fall under, and will be taken up by those spiritual senses of the raised bodies of saints, and will be no small part of their happiness. The bodily eye of John, tho' it was used to the beholding of Christ and his glory on earth, could not bear a little beam of Christ's heavenly glory, Rev. i. 17. Strange; that John should need that Christ should tell him who he was, verse 18. But what John, while in his natural body, could not bear, every faint in his spiritual body will not only be able to bear, but will with delight behold more than what was like to have killed that beloved disciple.

Again, for the powers of the mind, they in that day will be perfect, so as that all the glory of Christ that shall be discovered, will be beheld by them perfeetly, for the perfecting of their bleffedness, I Cor.

xiii. 11, 12

But for faith, for as needful and ufeful as it is now, it will then be laid afide as useless. A believer now takes up a little of Christ's glory; but how? In the word, as in a glass, 2 Cor. iii. 18. No other glass but the gospel-glass discovers Christ's glory to us now; and it is not faith, but dreaming and dotting, to fludy Christ but in that glass. But when both the glass of the gefpel, and the eye of faith, shall be laid aside, (the two most useful and needful blessings to a believer while out of heaven, and useful and needful to bring him to heaven), what shall make up the want of them? Even Christ himself seen in his glory. Even as Christ come in the flesh, rendered all the types and shadows of him in the old testament no more needful: so Christ appearing in his glory, will do as to the new testament dispensation.

3. Let us consider and compare these two beholdings of Christ's glory by believers on earth, and faints in heaven, with respect to the case of the beholders thereof. How vasily do they differ? There are three things in a believer that all the glorised beholders of Christ's glory in heaven are perfectly freed from, sin, infirmity, and affliction.

till, Sin dwelleth in us, in the best, and always while here. There are no sinless beholders of Christ's glory on earth, and there are no sinful beholders of his glory in heaven; and this makes a great difference between them. The believer, when his day is fairest, when his eye is clearest, when his faith is strongest, there is yet sin in him, a body of deads hanging about him. Sin in its being in him, is like a film on the eye of faith, and mars clear seeing.

Brethren, there was never a finless believer on earth but one, and that was Jesus Christ; and it is as far above us to know how he believed, (fave that he did fo perfectly), as to tell what it is to fee him as he is in heaven. The first Adam while he stood, was nor a finless believer, but a finless worker; and when he fell, he and all his posterity became sinners. When God's grace falls on any of them, they are made believers through that grace, and believers on it; yet fin remains in them still. Though its guilt is forgiven, and its filth washed away, and its power subdued; yet its being and indwelling remaineth: and this is a great impediment in the acting of taith. If any befiever had that privilege, (which I think none ever had, nor none should defire), to be but a little while in the exercise of faith, without any indwelling fin in him; furely that man would believe wonderfully, and would think that he never believed before. It is true, that all true believers are fanctified, and that all true acts of faith are fanctifying; yet no believer is perfectly fanctified on earth. But it is certain alfo, that the first acting of faith on Christ, is in the fight and fense of our ruin by the power of fin in our pature; and the after actings of faith are from the fame fense of remaining corruption in us. Proper faith is, a finner's dealing with the Saviour of finners for falvation from fin. Till we obtain perfect falvation from fin, we must act faith for it, and while we act that faith, fin is mixed with our very believing, fo as that we must pray as he did, Mark ix. 24. Lord, I believe, bely thou mine unbelief.

adly, There are infirmities in believers, in all their beholdings of the glory of Christ, while they are on earth. There are infirmities in our bodies that all are fenfible of; and fuch have no small influence on the actings of the foul. There are also infirmities in our fouls: darkness and dulness in our intellectual powers. But above all these are the infirmities of the new creature. Although it be created in Christ Jesus, although it be supported by his power, and is maintained and fed by influences from him, as its head and root; yet is it still a weak and infirm thing, and is like a new-born babe, I Peter ii. 2. But none of these infirmities are in them that behold Christ's glory above; they have outgrown them all, and are become perfect in Christ Jesus. Whatever other times that word hath been, or shall be fulfilled in, its fulfilment will be at Christ's appearing: Ifa. xxx. 26. The light of the moon shall be as the light of the fun, and the light of the fun shall be sevenfold, as the light of seven days. If such a dispensation in the course of nature were, that the moon shone by night as bright as the sun by day; and if the fun by day did shine sevenfold brighter than now it doth; where would there be eyes to endure it? Surely, none fuch as ours be. So is it as to the light of that glorious day. Our best eyes that now we have got and use, would fail us; but the Lord provides eyes fuitable to the light he will make to shine.

adly, Besides our insirmities we labour under, we have manifold afflictions also, which the glorified beholders of Christ's glory are free from. No affliction can have room in heaven, Rev. xxi. 4.: yet through much tribulation must we enter into the kingdom of God, Acts xiv. 22. Afflictions are trials of faith; faith is to be acted in and under them; often is faith shaken by them. Sometimes believing is strongest, when the believer is in greatest distress. But though this be a duty laid on all, it is not the attainment of all believers. But still affliction is an evil in itself, though the Lord turns it into good. Now, take all together; fin is in us, infirmities compass us about, affliction is laid on us; must not all together make a great difference betwixt us, in our beholding of Christ's glory now, from their beholding of his glory who are fully rid of all these things?

4. Consider and compare the difference betwixt our beholding of Christ's glory on earth, and theirs in heaven, as to the fruits and effects thereof. These fruits are of the same nature and kind, and so are expressed in the word. I shall name but three of them. 1. Conformity. 2. Satisfaction. 3. Expression of that fatisfaction.

1/1, Conformity to Christ is the native fruit of beholding of his glory. As it is beheld, this conformity is wrought in the beholder. The natural eye in feeing takes in the visible objects, species, and shape, by its faculty; the mind in knowing takes into itself the intelligible species of the things known: but above thefe, faith takes in Christ's glory in the gospel; and, beyond faith, the feeing eye of the glorified takes in Christ's glory as it shines in heaven, and is conformed thereunto. Compare 2 Cor. iii. 18, which relates to believers on earth, with 1 John iii. 2. which relates to the glorified in heaven. The object is the fame, Christ and his glory; the effect of conformity is the same in kind, but not in degree; because the object is not feen by both in the same light, nor with the same eye. The one seeth him as he is; the other feeth him as he appears in the gospel-glass. On this I would lead you to confider. (i)

(1.) How any likeness and conformity to Christ begins. We all by nature bear the image of the earthly Adam, 1 Cor. xv. 49. And this is a vile image, of fin, and flesh, and death; nothing like, but quite unlike and contrary to Christ's image: yet, through rich and free grace, many that have borne this fad and finful image, are bleffed with the image of the heavenly man, the Lord from heaven. When and how is this great change made? Then only when Christ is formed in them, Gal. iv. 19. when he is revealed to them, and when they by faith fee the glory of Christ as a Saviour. They begin to live, when they first look on him as lifted up as God's only ordinance for faving, John iii. 14, 15. There are two discoveries of Christ made to beginners; one is to all, the other only to some. The general to all believers is that that is both the cause and the ground of faith in him; and that it is such a discovery of Christ's ability and good-will to fave, as doth engage their heart to trust him, and him alone, with this great concern of their falvation. The other is fuch a discovery of Christ's glory as doth produce peace in the believer: for in this he not only feeth Christ's all-sufficiency for saving, So as to trust him with it; but he seeth also, that this trustee is so good and faithful, that this concern must be fafe, because it is lodged with him. This is like that faith in 2 Tim. i. 12. I know whom I have believed, and I am perfuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him, against that day.

(2.) How this conformity to Christ is carried on and advanced. Even as it was begun, Collos. ii. 6, 7. Growth in grace is by growing in the knowledge of Christ, 2 Pet. iii. 18. Abiding in Christ is the way to have our fruits to abound, John xv. 4, 5. Many true Christians cannot tell when they were first converted, when they first believed; but all Christians can tell when they were most holy; and that is always when Christ manifests himself most clearly to them. As to their first believing, they cannot determine that so well, because they cannot easily remember when Christ first revealed himself to them; he hath done it fo oft, and every new manifestation of his glory to them, draws forth a new acting of their taith on him; and it may be fuch a distinct and strong act, as they think they never before did put forth the like. comething of this made a great believer, and an aged divine, when freaking of the time of his converhor. fay, "I cannot tell it, for I have been more than an " hundred times converted:" not that he was ignorant or doubtful, that a true convertion is but once, in Ged's working it; but that it may have many appearances in our fense and experience. David, after his fad fall, prays, Pfalm li 10. Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me; when before this he had God's tellimony, that he was a man according to God's own heart, Act xiii 22. from I Sam. xili. 14. A witness not only to the truth, but to the eminency of his faintthip. Christ calls that recovery unto Peter, a new fort of conversion, Luke xxii. 32. which he, in amazing grace, promifeth to him, just before his shameful fall: and yet he was a true believer before, and bleffed by Chrift, on his profession and acting of faith, Matth. xvi. 16, 17. Another thing may have fome influence on Christians ignorance of the time of their conversion; and that is, they can better remember the alarms they had in their conscience by a law-work, than they can the still and calm voice of the gospel. The one not only makes more noise, but it is more readily felt and remembered by us, than the fecret opening of the heart by Christ's love. But whatever mistakes Christians may labour under, and different thoughts and experience they may have as to the time of his love, and the day of his power; yet all true believers are of one mind as to the feafons of their greatest holiness. There are different measures of it dispensed by the Lord, and attained by his people. None of them have at-VOL. II. Rr tained

tained as much as they would have; and they that have attained moth, think least of their attainments, and prefs most for perfection. But all can readily and unanimously declare, when it is that their graces are most lively, their corruptions most low and least rampant, when their work is most sweet, and Christ's yoke and burden molt easy and light; even when Christ is nearest to them, and they to him, and when most of his glory appears unto them: and this not from the might of their faith as it is their 28, (though in fuch featons it is in belt case), but from the virtue and power of Christ's grace that falls on them, when he is pleased to manifest himself to them. This blesfed experience of special likeness to Christ, by his special manifelling of himself to them, is not without fome danger, that many faints have fallen into: for when things are so well with them, that the favour of Christ's knowledge perfumes their hearts, and that their fecret corruption shrinks into a corner, (as Christ's glory and our corruptions are contraries), the believer is ready to fay, as David did, Pfalm xxx. 6. I faid in my prosperity, I shall never be moved; yet quickly was he moved: and so will ail be that say as he did; for the flronger that carnal and felf-con-Edence is, the nearer is the man to a shameful fa'l, as Peter.

(3.) In the last place, Consider how this conformity and likeness is perfected; and that is, as it was begun and advanced, even by the discovery of Christ's glory in heaven: I John iii. 1, 2. We are the fons of God: but the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. The world knows God's children well enough. to despile, hate, and perfecute them; and so did the world know Chrift: but this fort of knowledge is nothing but ignorance, both of Christ and of Christians. And it doth not yet appear what we shall be. But it will at length appear; when and how? But we know, that when he shall appear, we shall be like him: for we shall see him as he is. Yet all these things are food only only for humble faith; every thing in it is deep and unsearchable. What is his appearing? What it is to be like him? What it is to see him, and that as he is? and, How this fight of him will make us like him! are unanswerable questions even to an apostle, and to all out of heaven. If it be a dark unintelligible riddle to every natural man, (whatever knowledge he may have of the letter of the world), how a fight of Christ by faith doth begin, and carry on a real begun likenefs to Christ in believers on earth; it must much more be dark to them, yea to believers themselves, how the fight of Christ's glory in heaven doth perfect and complete this likeness! We must long for it, and believe it, and leave it to the day that will declare it.

adly, On this conformity to Christ, followeth fatisfaction and bleffedness. Of which David speaks, Pfal. xvii. 15. But as for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness: I shall be satisfied, when I awake with thy likeness. According to the measure of the manifestation of Christ's glory to his people, so is the degree of their likeness to him; and as this likeness to him is, fo is the fatisfaction and blifs of them that have it. All is begun on earth with the heirs, all is perfect in heaven in the partakers and possessors of glory. A. little of both, in comparing them together. Believers on earth, that fee his glory, are transformed into the fame image, 2 Cor. iii. 18. This conformity always works fatisfaction. David speaks of it in Pfal. iv. 6, 7. Lord, lift thou up the light of thy countenance upon us. Thou hast put gladness in my heart, more than in the time that their corn and their wine increased. And indeed they know not the light of God's countenance, that feel not a joy in their heart that all the world can neither give nor take away. Christ promiseth us this joy, John xvi. 22. I will fee you again, and your beart Shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you. Paul prays highly for this blefling, Rom. xv. 13. Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that R r 2

that we may abound in hope, through the power of the H by Ghost. Poter speaks of joy, as an attainment of believers on earth: 1 Peter i. 8. Whom having not pen, ye leve; in whom, though now ye fee him not, yet believing, we rejoice with joy unspeakable, and full of g'or. The joy is unspeakable that is felt by believers, when they do (as fometimes, by his light, they do) fee fome begun likeness to that lovely image of Christ, that won their heart the first time they faw ir, and when it darted its beams of life and love upon their dying fouls, and did leave that fcent of heaven in their heart, that they cannot rest, till they apprekend that for which they were apprehended of Christ Jesus, Thil. iii. 12. In the day that Christ apprehended them, and faid to them in love, "Stop, finners, in your race to hell: follow me, and I will give you " eternal life;" then do they in faith answer, " Be-" hold, we come unto thee, and cannot leave thee; " for thou hast the words of eternal life." And thus is fulfilled that bleffed faying of our Lord, John iv. 14. Who/sever drinketh of the water that I shall give bim, fall never thirst: but the water that I shall give him, shall be in him a well of water, springing up into ever-lating life. The original spring is heaven and eterpallife; and this given well will foring up as high as its original. Can there be any fatisfaction comparable to this, to behold by faith, eternal life, descending from heaven unto us, in Christ's love and grace; and to find at the same time this same faith climbing up to the poffession of this life? This happinets is great enough to differace and disparage the poor portion of the worldling, that not only perisheth with the using: but he that hath it, must perish, because he hath no better things, nor things that accompany falvation. But yet, though the believer, in and by his fellowthip with the Father and the Son, by the Spirit, hath a joy that the stranger cannot intermeddle with; yet his joy, when most full, is greatly short of theirs in heaven. Only where perfect feeing is, perfect likeness

adly. This fatisfaction and bleffedness is expressed by the enjoyer, in love and praise. Groning under mifery, is not more natural to the afflicted, than exultation is to the happy. As believers feel their prefent, or fee their future greater happiness, so is their praise and their love. But how feeble are all their expressions of it? Our best praises on earth are little better than fweet and delightful gronings under the heavy, yet dear load of loving-kindness. David, the best artist at praise of any faint, how doth he praise? 2 Sam. vii. 18, 19, 20. Who am I? and what is my bouse, that thou hast brought me hitherto? And is this the manner of man, O Lord? And what can David fay more unto thee? He asks questions he cannot answer; he is filenced as foon as he begins to praife, and thus he praifeth rightly. Whoever thinks he hath balances to weigh mercy in, never felt the load of mercy: and that man is farthest from right praising, that thinks he can praise, and is best pleased with his praising. But perfect praising is referred for heaven; and none can learn that fong, but they that are with the Lamb in that mount of Sion, Rev. xiv. 1,---4. Perfect seeing of Christ's glory, perfect likeness to him by that fight, perfect happiness by that likeness, and perfect expression of that happiness, are all within the vail; and all we have and know on earth, are but faint and dark fliadows thereof.

5. and laftly, Confider and compare the beholding of the glory of Christ in earth and in heaven, in the duration of them. In this they differ as much as in any of the former. The one is a time-enjoyment, and for a little time too; the other is eternal. If a believer get a view of the glory of Christ by faith now, it is but a transient glance, very sweet, but very short. In our sweetest enjoyments of Christ's company on earth, he may please to awake, and leave us without it, Cant. ii. 7.; and not only reserveth he a sovereign latitude in giving or with-holding his fensible presence, but, in love and wildom for our good, he draws near, or withdraws; and his people are made to feel their profit in these changes. But no such changes in heaven. Changes are only for time, not in eternity. I believe, that as foon as any man passeth out of time into eternity, he knows immediately and certainly, that he is now come into an eternal and unalterable state. The light of eternity demonstrates it. So that the faint entering into heaven knows, that the everlasting doors that were opened to let him in, are shut on him to keep him in that state to eternity; and this is a great part of his bleffedness. And the damned that go down into the pit, do know, that the bars of hell are locked upon them, that they can never get out; and this adds to their begun, but never-ending mifery. It is indeed an amazing both fruit and proof of the power of unbelief in men, that though they pretend they know this, yet most men do not in earnest think where, and in what place and condition, they shall be for eternity; and yet bestow many careful thoughts about the condition wherein they may spend their short time on earth.

So much for the doctrinal part about the beholding of Christ's glory in heaven.

APPLICATION. 1. Learn from this to behold and understand Christ's last design on his people. It is to have them to behold his glory. Christ will never leave any whom the Father hath given him, till he hath brought them to this. Let believers learn to give Christ his will and his way; give him trust, and give him time, and wait patiently. Art thou given to him? art thou a believer on him? Behold with faith what his design upon thee is. It is to bring thee into that place where he is, that thou mayest behold his glory. Many strange and deep ways and methods doth he use to carry it on. Submit to these, and believe the end of the Lord. 2. · Is

2. Is this Christ's design, to have his people with him where he is, that they may behold his glory? Then fee that it be your design too. Many desire to be in heaven, that have nothing of this end in their defires. If your end in defiring to be in heaven, be not the fame with Christ's end in desiring it for you, how can you think that your defire is right, or will be accomplished? Some men defire to be in heaven for ever, because they cannot stay always on earth: but if they might live in health and ease, if it were a thousand years on earth, they would never make a hearty prayer for heaven. But thefe are earth-worms, and God will destroy them. Others desire to be in heaven, only because they think hell is bad quarters, and that they would be kept from. In effect, all carnal mens defires for heaven amount to no more but this, " Lord, fave me from hell." They think, that heaven is better than hell, but not fo good as the earth, if they might flay comfortably in it. They know, that they must be eternally in heaven or hell: and that the states are so different, that it is easy to chuse which is best for them. But how can a natural. unrenewed man defire heaven? A heaven of his own imagination he may desire; but true heaven, heaven described in the gospel, a state of bliss in the beholding of the glory of Christ, this no unbeliever can have any relish of, or defire after. He can never fay a hearty Amen to Christ's prayer in my text; they know not Christ's presence; they never faw any thing of his glory, as it surpaffeth all glory. Never will a man defire to make a voyage through death, to fee that in heaven that he never had any relish of, nor favour of, on earth; yea, it is impossible he should.

3. Lastly, Let us from hence learn to praise the dead that die in the Lord, Rev. xiv. 13. I allude to the word in Eccl. iv. 2. Wherefore I praised the dead which are already dead, more than the living which are yet alive. Christ will have them where he is, that they may behold his glory; and when he calls and takes takes them, they do behold it. This is their happiness: and we should bless them, and rejoice in their bliss. We have an affecting passage in Acts xx. 37, 38. after a farewel-sermon and prayer of Paul's: (Here we have an apostolic pattern for farewel fermons and prayers; but no where have we any for funeral ones):

They all wept fore, and fell on Paul's neck and kissed him, forrowing most of all for the words which he spake, that they should see his face no more, verse 25. You may juffly think, that as the elders, and others of the church of Ephefus, were excellent perfons, and were full of love and value for fuch an eminent apostle as Paul was; so their grief was great at this fad parting. You in this city have frequently the cause of the like forrow, if ye had the same spirit as they had. Not that I mean to compare any ministers you have, or have lost, with this apostle: for as I am persuaded we have none like him; fo am I, that if there was any liker him than any of us are, confidering the spirit of the day we live in, that minister would be the most despised and reproached of any; though, I hope, some would be found to differn his true worth. If, upon fuch occasions of the loss of faithful ministers, or useful Christians, you are forrowing, and saying, " I shall " fee his face no more, and hear his voice no more, "and fee his tender walking no more;" call this also to mind, " If I shall see his face no more, he seeth "Christ's face for ever; which is better for him, "than the other would be to me." There is not a believer in heaven, but he knows this text better than all divines on earth can. Whenever a believer is entered within the gates of the heavenly Jerusalem, this bleffed beholding of Christ's glory is better known to him, than angels or men can teach him now. This is indeed the white stone, and in it the new name written, which no man knoweth, faving he that receiveth it, Rev. ii. 17. I would only add, that it would be sweet speaking, and sweet hearing of heaven, if we at the fame time felt something of it: and though we cannot yet get up into it; yet if, through his grace. something of heaven did come down to us; if the joy of our Lord did enter into our hearts, as an earnest of our entering into it. Matth. xxv. 21, 22.; for ia that day it will be too big to enter into them. All our work now is to be well acquaint with Christ as the way. Christ is both the way and the home. We must walk in him, and be travelling towards him: and he is our guide and leader in the way. The work and life of grace is in living on him by faith, and the happiness of heaven is in living with him for ever. O come and fee, go and fee. He will call you up in due time. Bleffed is that believer who is as willing to be in heaven, as Christ is to have him there.

SERMON XVI.

JOHN XVII. 24.

Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me: for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.

HE last clause of this verse only now remains THE last clause of this verice on, in to be spoken to. And it is, as you have heard, the fourth and last thing I took up in the matter of Christ's prayer here. The argument which Christ useth to back his desire of having his people with him: it is in these words, For thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. This I would briefly speak to, and at this time conclude this text. An I this ar-Vol. II. gument SI gument of Christ I would speak unto two ways. 1. Unto the words in themselves; and, 2. As they are used by our Lord, relating to his prayer.

I. As these words are in themselves. They contain Christ's afferting of the eternal love of the Father unto the Son. For this word, before the foundation of the world, and another, before the world was, and before the world began, are all to the same purpose, and are the Holy Ghoff's expressing of eternity prior to time: for before the world began, there was nothing but eternity; and God inhabiting it, as the prophet fpeaks, Ita. lvii. 15. Of this eternal love of the Father to the Son, I would fpeak briefly.

1. Confider this eternal love in the Father to the person of his Son. This I own is too deep for us to fathom; but it is a bleffed deep to fwim in. The manner of the everlasting begetting of the person of the Son by the Father, is unfearchable by all creatures, and, it may be, will be so eternally. The state of glory was not defigned for fatisfying curiofity, and instructing men in points of mere speculation, or in things beyond all created reach. So it paffeth our understanding to know how the Father leveth his only begotten Son. How one divine person loveth another divine person, who but a divine person can understand? There are some forts of love that I would name, all which this love greatly transcendeth.

if. The love of one creature to another. This is fometimes very firong, and is in fome cases allowed to be very great. 2diy, The love wherewith a believer loveth Christ, is yet greater. For though the lover be but a creature, yet the beloved is more than a creature, and deferves more love than we can pay. Christ cannot be over-loved; but any creature may, adly, There is the love of God towards his chosen. This is greater than the former. It is this love that God is called, love, from 1 John iv. 8.--16. 4tbly, There is the love Christ bears to his church, that is exceeding exceeding great, and much spoke of in the word, Eph. iii. 18, 19 and v. 25, 26. In the first love, one creature loveth another, and with a love that hath bounds and limits fet to it by God's will, lest it exceed. In the fecond, a creature loves God. In the third, God loves a creature, In the last, Christ loveth his own body, and every member of it. So that in all of them, either the lover or the beloved is a creature. But where God the Father is the lover, and God he Son is the beloved, who can tell what that love is! But I pass it, as too deep for us. Here faith must believe and adore, and cry out, O the depths!

2. Christ is eternally beloved of his Father in his office of Mediator betwirt God and man. Unto this office he was from eternity defigned; and as foon as fin entered, and the breach between God and man was made, he entered upon this office. In it he is God's fervant whom he upholds, his elect in whom his foul delighteth, Ifa. xlii. 1. Under the name of Wifdom, he speaks in Prov. viii. 22, --- 31. The Lerd pofselfed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old. I was let up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. And after an elegant account of the work of creation, he adds, that before any thing was made, and when all things were a-making, then I was by him, as one brought up with him; and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him; rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth, and my delights were with the fons of men. Here are adorable delights and rejoicings; the Father delighting in his Son, the Son delighting in the Father; yea, the Son rejoicing in his people, and in that earth they were to live on, though neither they nor it were as yet created. And why may not our faith take in the comfort of this thought, that these uttermost parts of the earth where we live, and where the greatest harvest hath been in these latter days, were in Christ's heart and eye with delight from eternity! Christ the Redeemer was verily fore-ordained before the foundation of the S 1 2 world. world, but was manifest in these last times for you, i Peter i. 20. Yea, he is called in Rev. xiii. 8, the Lamb stain from the foundation of the world. This high effice of Mediator, the Father, in love to, and for glorifying of his Son, put him in, Heb. v. 4, 5. In this office he did always pleate his Father, and his Father witnessed to it often and many ways. It should be a great encouragement unto all that have business with Christ as Mediator, to consider how the Father delights in him in his office. Salvation is given to a believer in Christ, with 28 good will, by the Father, as the ptice of salvation was laid down by the Son. No man can please the Father better, nor so much, as by believing on the Son, and by giving him employment in his office and calling of saving.

3. Jefus Christ, the Son of God, is eternally beloved of the Father, as he is the head of his body the church; as he is the fecond Adam, the reprefentative of all his people. Of which already at fome length.

4. Christ was beloved of the Father in his lowest estate, and when dying. This is what is in the text. Christ was now near his lowest when he afferts this leve. He was going to the garden, and to his agony in it; he was there betrayed, and apprehended, carried to judgment, condemned, and put to death next day, and buried next evening. This was the depth of the eclipse of the Sun of Righteonfuels. Yet in all this the eternal love of the Father to him did not ceafe. When Christ came into the world first, we find what great joy there was on that account. An angel first published the good news to the shepherds, and then a multitude of the heavenly hoft fung a fong of praife for it, Luke ii. 9, ... 14. The Father proclaims him on his coming as the object of heavenly worship: Heb. i. 6. When he bringeth in the first begotten into the world, he faith, And ich all the angels of God wor-Ship him. There is no angel to high, nor to great in tower power and might, 2 Peter ii. 11. but must serve and worthip the Son of God in his lowest and meanest appearance on earth. He was feen of angels, 1 Tim. iii. 16.; and it was their duty, their glory, and their blife, to worship and serve him. When Christ comes into the world, Heb. x. 5, 6, 7. he faith, as rejoicing, A body thou hast prepared me; Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. And that will was to make a facrifice of that body; and he did offer it with delight. When he is baptized, Matth. iii. 17. the Father, by a voice from the excellent glory, 2 Peter i. 17. Witnetfed his love to his Son: This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased, hear ye bim, Matth. xvii. 5. In Luke ix. 30, 31. we have a special hint of the subject of the discourse that Moses and Elias had with our Lord on the mount of transfiguration, who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem. We would be ready to think. if it was not for this hint, that glorified faints come from heaven, and waiting on their Lord in his begun glory, should rather have spoke of his approaching perfect glory, than of his decease. But as that decease was the appointed way to his glory, as Luke xxiv. 26.; fo this tells us, that Christ's death is a theme fit for the most heavenly perfous in their most evalued heavenly state. The song of the redeemed is principally on his death, and its fruits, Rev. v. 9, 10. 12. As it is the root of all our falvation, fo it should be the ground of all our fongs of falvation.

But here an obvious objection riteth. It is faid, That Christ was beloved of his Father in his lowest state. But what brought him into this low state, but his Father's anger? Did it not please Jehovah to bruise him, and to put him to grief, Ifa. III. 10.? How could this eternal love, and his fore fufferings, confid? I would premife fome things more generally for removing this difficulty, and then come closer to the matter.

1. There is fomething amongst men required or God, and practifed by them; and that is, in parents correcting their children in love. It should always be so, but is not, Heb. xii. 10. He tells us what is too common, that earthly parents chasten their children aster their own pleasure, or to vent their displeasure. Parents cannot distinguish betwist the child and the fault, as they ought.

2. We have a greater instance in Abraham's dealing with Isaac at God's command, Gen. xxii. Isaac was innocent, Abraham loved him; yet the Lord commands him to offer him for a burnt-offering. Now the Lord did not command, nor allow Abraham to abate ought of that love to his fon, that both nature and grace had planted in his heart towards Isaac; and no doubt but love continued in Abraham's heart in all his journey to the appointed place, and in all the preparation he made for the offering the commanded facrifice: only Abraham was a strong believer, and therefore was all obedience. His love to Isaac did not turn to harred, when he firetched forth his hand, and took the knife to flay his fon, ver. 10. But only his love to Ifaic shrunk up as it were to nothing, through the strength of his faith, and his readiness to obey the will of his God. Isaac's question to his father was an addition to Abraham's trial, ver. 7. And Abraham's answer to it was a great act of his faith in his trial, ver. 8. Ifaac faid, Behold the fire and the wood; but where is the lamb for a burnt-offering? The instruments for the burnt-offering were ready and feen: the wood was on Isaac's back, and the fire and the knife were in Abraham's hand, ver. 6. but no facrifice was visible. Abraham answers, My fon, God will provide bimfeif a lamb for a burnt-offering, ver. 8. Linte did Isaac think that himself was the commanded sacrifice, and to be facrificed by his own father's own hands; though, without doubt, Abraham did afterwards tell Isaac the command of God, when he built an altar on the place God had told him of, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar upon the wood, ver. 9. And as little did Abra-

Abraham think of any other facrifice but that of his fon Isaac. But by Heb. xi. 17, 18, 19. Abraham's faith did act on divine power, that could raise Isaac to life again, when Abraham had shed his blood, and the wood and fire had burnt his body; being perfuaded, that as no command of God was to be diffeuted, so no promise of God would fail of its accomplishment. And the iffue of this trial was in the Lord's gracious acceptance of his obedience, in stopping the execution of Isaac, and substituting a ram in his stead. and in adding of a divine oath unto that promife of God, that Abraham's faith was fo strongly fixed upon. Compare Gen. xxii. 11,---19. with Heb. vi. 12,---20. where we find the grounds of Abraham's faith are common to all believers under the new teftament, whatever trembling and finful shortcomings are with us in the acts and exercise of our falth.

3. So our Lord requires of his people in the cafe of fuffering for him: Luke xiv. 26. If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and fifters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple. A positive hating of our relations is forbid to all, by the law of nature, and by the word of God. To be without natural affection, is a great fin, Rom. i. 31. But when the glory of Christ and his truth is so concerned, (as oft it is, that a man must either deny Christ, or forego all for his fake; then is he called to teltify by his choice, like Moses's, Heb. xi. 24, 25, 26. that Christ is dearer to him than all. Thus the martyr faid, when fome spoke to him of the desolate state he was to leave his wife and children in, "God is my witness, that of if I had all the riches of the world, I would chear-66 fully give it all to live with my wife and children; " but now when my testimony to Christ and his gos-" pel, by my death, is called for, I as chearfully leave « all."

4. The Lord's dealing in love, and yet in apparent anger with his people: Rev. iii. 19. As many as I love, I reI rebuke and chaffen. Heb. xii. 6. For whom the Lord loveth, he chaffeneth, and fourgeth every fon whom he receiveth. It is a common, but a finful way of arguing with many Christians, that they are not God's children, because they are so much corrected by him. To question our state because of assistion, or to conclude our state to be good because of prosperity and cafe, are equally false and foolish, though not equally dangerous; for it is far more fo, falfely to conclude a good state when it is not, than unbelievingly to difturb a good state where it is. It is certain, that the Lord loveth his people with an everlasting love, Jer. xxxi. 2.; that his mercy is from everlasting to everlasting to them, Plalm cili. 17 : and that this love and mercy runs through, and is mixed with all his dealings with them. Yet how hardly is this owned by them? Let us begin with the Lord's beginning to deal with them, to draw them to himself, to bring them into Christ's chariot of falvation, the mids? whereof is paved with love, Cant. iii. 10. Doth not the Lord appear at first to them as an enemy, not only declaring war against them, but using his irresistible arms against them, and his arrows pierce their hearts, as Pfal. xlv. 5.? Little did Paul think of Christ's love to him, when he fell on the earth, trembling and astonished, Acis ix. 3, 4, 5. Yet afterwards he well knew it, and did count it as long as he lived, the best day he ever faw. Then when the Lord bath subdued their hearts, and given them rest in their souls, his yoke and his burden is laid on them, Matt. xi, 28, 29. Whatsoever is common to man, 1 Cor. x. 13. or to a believer, that they should lay their account with. The cross of suffering any thing for Christ's sake, is oft laid on them, and always in love; yet it is judgment, 1 Peter iv. 17. and a fiery trial, ver. 12. Manifold cutward afflictions are laid on them. And let all Christians in this furnace fay, if they find it easy to believe his love to them, when his hand preffeth them

fore. Beyond these is Satan's sieve of temptation, Luke xxii. 21. Can there be love in the Lord's letting the devil loofe upon one of his own children? Yes, fo did the Lord with Job; Paul, 2 Cor. xii. 7.; yea, with Christ himself, Matth. iv. 3. But above all, is the Lord's hiding his face, and dealing as an enemy, and that for fin; when his wrath is kindled but a little, as Pfalm ii 12. and in the light and hear of that fire, the fiery law (as it is called in Deut. xxxii. 2.) is read in the conscience, who can believe love in this, that looks fo like hell? Yet David did fo, Pfal. exvi. 3; and Jonah did fo, chap. ii. 2, 3, 4.: and after a life of fightings without, and fears within, (as 2 Cor. vii. 5.), when the Lord is to finish his work and defign of love on his people, then the left enemy is to be fought with, 1 Cor. xv. 26. Death, that to nature looks like the wages of fin, is made the door to glory. But how hard is it to believe it? He must have a firong faith, that can call his own dying a fleeping in Jesus, as 1 Thess. iv. 14.; that can make use of Jacob's words concerning his fleeping place, Gen. xxviii. 16, 17. This is the gate of heaven. It is the great work and difficulty, and yet duty in Christianity, to believe unfeen and unfelt love, in and under wellfeen and well-feit diffress. Sometimes the Lord joins them, as in 2 Thess. i. 6. and 1 Peter iv. 14 and then it is easy. But of the wrath is felt, and the love is hid in the promise, and there only active faith can find it.

But all these instances are so far short of this we are speaking of, that they afford very little light about this. Therefore I would come nearer, and offer a tew things that may help to direct your thoughts unto a due reconciling of this eternal love the Father had to the Son, with the hard fervice he put him to as Mediator.

1. It was the anger of an offended judge and lawgiver, and not the anger of an offended father, that Imote Jesus Christ. Christ suffered, he was flain, and Vol. II. died ;

died: and the bitterness of that low condition was from the justice and wrath of God, which he felt in his foul: which was well expressed by a godly miniiter, "Christ's foul-fusterings were the foul of his "fusierings:" that is, the main and most butter part of them. Yet in the depth of all these Christ was pleafing to his Father, and highly fo: John x. 17. Therefore doth my Father love me, because I lay down my life, that I might take it again. Who took Christ's life away but his Father? The wicked instruments used in this work, were of no confideration in the matter. To the chief of them, Pilate, the cowardly self-condemned judge, he said, John xix. 11. Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above. It was this interest his Father had in his sufferings, that made him say as in John xviii. 11. The cup which my Father hath given me, shall I not drink it? Our Lord on his cross, our Lord when dying, when dead, was as lovely in his Father's eyes, as ever before or lince. But the justice and law of an offended judge exacted thus upon him.

2. This stroke of justice fell only on the man Christ, on his human nature. His divine person was untouched and untouchable by his tufferings. Christ's body was the facrifice; it was his foul and body that the fword of divine justice did pierce. So that this stroke was some way but like a blow on a man's garment. The divine person of the Son of God dweiling in slesh, was neither reached, nor reachable by the fword of divine justice; though the dignity of his divine perfon did infinitely inhance the merit of the fuffering of the man Christ.

3. This stroke of divine justice on the man Christ, was not for any fault of his own, (for he had none), but for the fins of his people, Ifa. liii. 5, 6. Christ's finleffacts in himfelf, and his dying for the fins of his people, are the fundamentals in Christian religion. If he had had any fin of his own, he could not have been a fit facrifice for the fins of others. If he had not died for our fins, all finners must have died in, and for their own fins. Now, proper insupportable divine displeasure is for a person's own sing. This is the cup full of mixture. Pfalm 1xxv. 8.; and this is of wrath with wrath; and without mixture, Rev. xiv. 10. withcut any mixture of mercy with it: nothing but mere wrath in it. This cup all that die in their fins, must drink of: but he that died for the fins of others, did not drink of it. It is true, that all the wrath that their fins deferved, he did drink of; but the fin deferving it, was none of his own. If hard usage from men be lightened from this, as David found it, Pfalm lix. 3. Not for my transgression, nor for my sin, O Lord; if a good confcience be a continual feast, furely Christ had this in perfection in all his fufferings. He had a troubled foul, but a most quiet conscience in all. The foul may be troubled by the imputed fin of others; but conscience is never disquieted, but for one's own fin. That Italian martyr understood this well, and used it nobly; who being asked by one, "Why he " was fo merry at his approaching death, when Christ " himfelf was in an agony before his death?" anfwered, "That Christ sustained in his body all the " forrows and conflicts with death and hell due to us; 66 by whose suffering we are delivered from forrow, " and fear of them all."

4. The Father knew the perfect sufficiency of his Son, to bear all that was laid on him. If it be an act of his grace on his people, not to fuffer them to be tempted above what they are able, I Cor. x. 13.; much more was it so in his dealing with Christ, Psal. lxxx, 17. and lxxxix. 19. He knew (what we cannot conceive) what a vast load of wrath this strong one could bear. None but Christ could stand before an angry God, could bear his wrath, and fatisfy justice. If I may use such a similitude, when the sword of justice was drawn against Christ, and pierced through his foul and body, the Father knew well that his Son was so armed, that he could not be hurt thereby. His divine nature, and his Father's presence with him, John xvi. 32. and the ineffable union betwixt the Father and the Son, were as armour of proof about the man Christ; that though justice slew him, it did him neither any wrong, nor real hurt, whatever smart was in the stroke.

5. The Father knew the glorious victory that his Son would obtain in, and by, and over all his sufferings; that for the suffering of death, he should be crowned with glory and honour, Heb. ii. 9.; that he should be highly exalted, Phil. ii. 9. So that what Christ was put to, was but like a father's sending his son to a ftormy fea, and a dangerous voyage, from which he knew he should return safe and rich; or like a king's fending his fon to war, wherein he was fure he should conquer, and return in triumph. Divine prescience is another thing in God's eye, than angel or man can possibly think. And this was eminently in Christ's sufferings, Acts ii. 23. and iv. 28.

6. There were great and glorious ends God had before him, in all the fufferings that Christ was put to endure; great glory to his grace, great glory to his Son, and a great falvation to his people: of which the word is full. And all that read, or hear, or think of Christ's death and sufferings, without regard to the ends thereof, they mind only a bare history and matter of fact, without any fruit thereby.

7. Laftly, The Father loved the Son in dying and for dying, as in John x. 17, 18. For Christ in dying offered up the highest and most acceptable worship and service to God that ever was offered; Eph. v. 2. Christ leved us, and hath given himself for us, an of-fering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour. And it is the sweet smell of this sacrifice that drowns, as it were, the flink of all the fins and finners it was offered for. His death could not be a propitiation, if it were not so. The two greatest sins that ever were, were the first Adam's first sinning. All mens sins since, and Adam's own finning after, (as doubtlefs he did for nine hundred and thirty years), were all the fin-ning of finners: but his first fin was a finless man's finning; besides, it was the most damning sin that ever was, or can be. The other great fin, was the crucifying the second Adam, the Prince of life, and the Lord of glory. It is not only charitably believed by the church of God in all ages, that Adam obtained mercy; but hath been proved by fome hints in the word, that both Adam and Eve were believers. But for the other great fin, the murdering of the Son of God, it is past doubt, that many guilty of his blood were forgiven in the virtue of it. A singular case were they in. The cry of Christ's blood defiled and disturbed their consciences, (and most justly); and the voice of this blood sprinkling their consciences, purged and pacified them. Now, if to these great sins you add all the fins of all the finners that were ever forgiven, (and no man can count them, or weigh them), conclude, that there was fomewhat offered to God, more pleafing to him than all fin was displeafing; and this was only the facrifice of Jefus Christ. Abraham's offering up of his Son at God's command, was highly pleasing to God; but it was but a type and shadow of Christ's offering up of himself without spot unto God, Heb. ix. 14. Abraham in that action on the mount was to be a prieft, and his fon the facrifice; but he only did offer to be fo, and the Lord did accept the will for the deed. But when Christ came to offer himfelf, for all the perfect will he had to do it, the facrifice must be offered, and was; and therein was performed the greatest, highest, and most acceptable worship to God. None was ever like it before; and none comparable to it, will, or can ever be. The praises of the glorified in heaven will be high and acceptable worship; but no way to be compared with that worship Christ paid, and God accepted in Christ's death. And nse it.

And thus much to these words in themselves, as they affert the eternal love of the Father to the Son.

- II. I would now speak to them, with respect to Christ's scope in using them; and therein would obterve three things.
- 1. Our Lord Jesus Christ was now near to his lowest; and he comforts himself with the faith of his Father's eternal love. So must Christians do. ever the Lord brings you to, if it were to the brink of death, you must study to imitate Jesus Christ, and take in the comfort of his everlasting love. For tho' the love the Father hath to the Son, and that love he hath to believers, do differ vastly; yet they agree in this, that they are both eternal; and in this also, that the faith of this love is supporting to his people, as it was to Christ himself. It is no wonder that believers have fo little comfort; even because they do not by faith feek out and dig up the right fprings and wells of consolation, and are so little exercised in drawing and drinking out of them. I fay not, that this spring of consolation, eternal love, is the first, and plainest, and easiest to come at; but only that it is the strongest, when a believer can find it out, and
- 2. Consider this word of Christ, as it is an argument backing his prayer, and every petition in it. He calls God Father; and rightly, because thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. "Glorify thy Son, " for thou lovedst me. I pray for thine and mine, for " thou lovedst me." How boldly may a believer pray, when he bath this argument in the hand of his faith to pray upon: " Lord, hear me; for thou hast 66 loved me in thy Son before the foundation of the " world."
- 3. The main thing in the fcope of these words of Christ is this, that the Father's love to Christ is the fountain of all good to his people. Christ is praying in this verse for the greatest good to his people, even for heaven; and this fuit he urgeth on this argument, For thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. You would think, that the argument would have run more plainly, (but it would not have run fo fweetly. and fo firongly), if it had been thus: "I will that they may be with me where I am; that they may " behold my glory: for thou hast loved them, and "I have loved them before the foundation of the " world." But it is best as Christ useth it, For thou hast loved me.

On this truth, That the Father's love to Christ is the fountain of all good to his people, I would give a few inflances of it, and conclude this text with a few words of application.

Instances are, 1. Election, that sovereign purpose and grace of God, is given us in Christ Jesus, before the world began, 2 Tim. i. 9. We are chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world, Eph. i. 4. Chrift did not purchase the grace of election for us; yet there is no election but in Christ, and unto the sprinkling of bis blood, I Peter i. 2. The end, falvation; the way and means reaching to this end, faith and fanclification, are joined in this purpose, 2 Thest. ii. 13. and Christ's interest in it, I Thest. v. 9. For God bath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain falvation by our Lord Jefus Christ: and this salvation in Jesus Christ. with eternal glory, is obtained by the elect, 2 Tim. ii. 10.

2. The grace of redemption comes to us from the Father's love to his Son. This love feat him to be Redeemer, and accepted the price of his life for his flock. Abstracting from his eternal counsel and covenant, God was at liberty to have left man in the pit he had thrown himfelf in, and to appoint no Redeemer. But, not to trouble our heads with such unprofitable speculations, it is plain, that the whole business of redemption by Christ was transacted before time, promifed in time, and dispatched in the fulness time, in love to Christ the Redeemer, as well as in love to the redeemed.

3. Christ's intercession in heaven. Whence is it fo prevalent, but from that great favour Christ stands in heaven in? It is from the love the Father hath to the Son, that Christ's desires for his people are so successful. It is upon this love that Christ prays for heaven to his people in this text. And this whole prayer in this chapter, was a mediatory prayer of Christ when on earth, and the best copy we have of his intercesfion in heaven.

More particularly, 1. The quickening of a finner dead in fins and trespasses, is from the Father's love to his Son. All the dispensations of converting grace on finners, are acts and fruits of the Father's love to Christ: John vi. 44, 45. No man can come to me, except the Father which hath fent me, draw him. "And "when he is drawn, and cometh, I will welcome him, " and give a good account of him one day." And I will raise him up at the last day. But how doth the Father draw men to Christ? By his way of teaching. It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard and learned of the Father, cometh unto me. Till Christ's Father, by his Spirit, teach a finner, and tell him good news of Christ the Saviour, he will not, he cannot come to Christ by faith: for divine teaching doth at the same time reveal Christ as the object of faith, and work the grace of faith, and draw forth the act of faith. We are oft complaining, (and not without cause, if we had a right frame of heart in it), that many finners continue dead under the report of Christ in the gospel; and that conversion and quickening of the dead is rarely heard of, and feen. What is the cause of this rareness? Is it not that sinners are without man's teaching, but because Christ's Father doth not teach them; and till he do, they will never mifs, nor value, nor feek divine teaching. They feek but the shell of the gospel, they seek but the field where the treasure is hid, Matth. xiii. 44.; and that they think any minister can show them. But the finding the hid treasure in it, no apostle was ever able to teach a man to do. All they can fay is, that this enriching treature is in the field of the gospel, and no where elfe; but it is hid in it; and till there come light from heaven, you will never find it, but die as poor as your father Adam left you, and in worse case than if you had never heard of this field. But what should we do in this fad condition? Wait on the Lord. who bath the times and feafons in his own hand; and while you wait, pray and cry for his teaching, and make use of this argument of the Father's eternal love to the Son. Say, "As thou lovest thy bon, teach " me, and many perishing sinners like me, to know " thy Son."

2. The justification and acceptance of a finner with God, comes only from the Father's love to his Son. We are accepted in that beloved, Eph, i. 6. and are translated into the kingdom of the Son of his love, Coi. i. 13. All the love believers partake of from God, is but a drop, a sprinkling of that love he hath to Jesus Christ. Therefore saith our Lord in this prayer, ver. 23. I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me; and ver. 26. And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me, may be in them, and I in them. No love, no grace, no favour comes from the Father immediately, but all in and by Jefus Christ the Mediator. Without a Mediator the Father dealeth not with us when he doth us good; and without a Mediator we must not deal with God, if we would please him.

3. Believers are preserved in Jesus Christ in this accepted state, Jude, ver. 1. Every one that is raifed up by Christ is preserved as safely in a state of grace, as Christ is in the state of glory. Because I Un live VOL. II.

live, ye shall live also, John xiv. 19. and x. 27, 28, 29. The weakest lamb in Christ's slock, that hath heard the great and the good Shepherd's voice, and follows him, though feebly, and with many fears, shall have eternal life; and he shall be kept by the power of God through faith, till he possess it, i Pet. i. 5. Christ's arm, and his Father's arm, are more than we can conceive; and yet no lefs than is needful, to fecure the weakest, against the greatest dangers. 4. Lastly, The bliss of glory in heaven is the joy of our Lord, Matth. xxv. 21, 23. All the eternal embracements of divine love they get there, are on the account of the Father's love to the Son. It will mainly be fulfilled then, what Christ promised, John xiv. 20. At that day, 3e shall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

APPLICATION. 1. How should this endear Christ to us, the Father's love to us in him, and ali the fruits of this marvellous love? How precious to us should all be? Should not all fay, as one did, Plat. xxvi. 7. How excellent is thy loving kindness, O God! Did ever a man see it by faith, did ever one taste that the Lord is gracious, did ever any hope for it, that did not count it marvellous loving kindness, as it is called, Psalm xvii. 7. and xxxi. 21.? The love of such a God as he is, unto fuch vile creatures as we be; and this love flowing to us in fuch a channel as this, God's love to his own Son, and streaming forth in all the bleflings of grace and glory, is a love that all that know it wonder at, and that all that talle of it know best, and wonder most at. Enjoyments of this love, and admiring at it, are inseparable, both in earth, in believers; and in heaven, in beholders. You have not come under the warm beams of this love, that do not fland aftonished at its nature and greatness, and who do not find fomething both of the depth and blor-fedness of that word, I John iv. 16. We have known and believed the love that God bath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love, dwelleth in God, and God in him. Try to fay this particularly of yourfelves, and you will find its difficulty. If you attain to it by the Spirit of faith, you will find its blessedness. Yea, what are all the bleffed beholders and enjoyers of this love in heaven, but a bleffed company of wonderers at this love? They are in the midst of the ocean of this love, (whereof a few drops tafted by them on earth, made a begun heaven to them), bleffedly fwiming, diving, drinking, and admiring. But it is but very little of what they get there, and of what they do there, that we do or can know while we are here. Yet, believers, do you receive any spiritual bleffing? Is it not a lovely spring it flows from, the Father's love to his Son, Eph. i. 2.? Is it not a sweet name that thou shouldst by taith give to thy pardon, to thy fandification, to the Spirit of prayer, and to any fellowship with God: "This, and thar, and all " and every good I obtain, is all from the love of "God in Jefus Christ my Lord, Rom. viii. 39. ? This way of conveyance proclaims, that all is of free grace; and this way makes the bleffings fure and fweet. Thankfulness for his unspeakable gift would rife higher, and be purer, and more constant, if we could read the name of the Father's love to his Son written (as furely it always is, though not always read) on all our mercies. This would make a crumb from the Master's table be earnestly begged, when we are hungry; and would make us, when we get it, prize it more than the greatest revenues of the wicked. This love of God in Christ is an ingredient in mercy, that makes the mercy swell up to heaven. It is an ingredient in the bitterest cup of affliction, that not only prevents any poison apprehended to be in it (and what is more usual to our unbelief than to call God's physic pollon?), and promotes our health thereby; but it doth also cool the hery furnace, and fweeten it, and make it the place of love and praise; as it was to the three children, in Dan. iii. 25.

2. Learn, Christians, to use this argument in Christ's prayer, in your prayers also. You see our Lord prays for his people on this argument, For thou loved the before the foundation of the world. Let your faith chime to this prayer, and fay, "Father, I would be " with Christ where he is, that I may behold his glo-" ry which thou half given him; for thou lovedst him " before the foundation of the world." You daily hear, that you should pray to the Father in Christ's name. Now, what is it, but to raife our faith, and to embolden our confidence with God, merely on the account of that high love the Father bears to the Son? Biefied is the believer that can plead with Gol on the argument of the Father's love to his Son, That tho' we have nothing in us that is lovely in God's fight; though we can do nothing to make ourselves acceptab'e, or our defires successful; yea, though there be a cloud upon God's love to us yet we build all our hopes of acceptance and success, and all these hopes flrong and high, on this lovely and beloved one Jefus Christ, and on the Father's love to him. Whatever you want of Ged, you may ask, and ask it on the same grounds Christ prays for you upon. You will fay, May every one ask on this argument? I answer, Every believer may, and ought; and if he be wife, he will; and if he doth plead thus, he will prevail. But how may I know that I am a believer on Jefus Christ? The Spirit of Christ sometimes suddenly suiches the doubting foul; and that is a great mercy. He thinks on the promife, and makes it bright; thines on faith, and makes it firong and active; and manifelts Chuill's glory to as the the heart cannot forbear to believe, and love, and know that it doth for But the common way, and the way of our duty is, to fatisfy our hearts as to our being true believers on Christ, by repeating the ading of faith on him. I fay not, Believe that you do believe; but I fay, Believe on Jefus Chrift, and you final know that you are believers on him; as in I John v. 13. Thefe things have I written to you that that believe on the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God. Faith is the evidence of things not feen, Heb. xi. 1.; and the Spirit of faith in believers giveth evidence to faith itself. By this Spirit we know the things that are freely given us of God, 1 Cor. ii 12. and faith is a special gift of God. The word in I John v. 10, is of great extent, He that believeth on the Son of God, bath the witness in himself. I dare be bold to fay, that there are few true believers, who are in the lively exercise of faith in Christ, and while in that exercise, but they are some way persuaded, that they are believers: in so far, that if Satan should say to the contrary, yea, or if the Lord himfelf should feem to fay to the contrary; yet they cannot deny that they are believers on Christ. How can this be? fay you. I answer. It is from the sense and inward feeling of the workings of their hearts, in dependence and truth on Jefus Christ for salvation. Is it not thus with you, Christians, whenever you are thoughtful about falvition; whenever you are terrified by the law; whenever Saran affanlis you by the remembrance of your fins and ill-defervings : yea, whenever God writes bitter things against you, and maketh you to possess the iniquities of your youth, or riper ago. Job sill. 26.? What do ye do? Whither do ye go? Is it not always to Jesus Christ by faith? Every true believer can readuy answer these three questions, which no unbeliever can, Ifa. x. 2. What will ye do in the day of vifitation, and in the defolition which shall come from far? to rubom will we flee for help? and where well ye wave your glory? Every believer can anfiner, " Come what " defolation will, I know what to do, I know whi-" ther to go for help, and where to leave my glory; " even on Jesus Christ by faith." You have no other answer to give to the law of God coademning you, to the devil accusing you, nor to your own conscience challenging you, but only this: 6 Isfus Christ came " into the world to fave finners; his Father, in eve

to him and finners, fent him; he came and died in "love to finners: and I, on the good report of him in the gospel, do daily come to him to be faved by " him, and do look for falvation in him, and by " him, and from him; and all my fins, and unwor-"thinefs, and fears, and the fad grounds of thefe fears, are all but so many cords to draw me more 66 and more to Christ by faith, and to bind me faster " to him. And if I am a believer on him, I am one " of those he prayed for in this chapter, and in this verse, Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, he with me where I am; that they may behold the glory which thou hast given me; for thou hold the before the foundation of the world. If " Chrift prayed to for me, I may furely pray to for "myfelf; for a better copy I cannot follow. If Christ prayed fo for me, he was furely answered, and the bleffing will be given; and I may firmly believe, and patiently wait for the falvation of God. And "I may also use the same argument for strengthening " of my faith, that Christ used to enforce his suit; " even the eternal love of the Father to his Son."

This is indeed a great and marvellous falvation which God hath provided for his people. Marvellous in the way, Jefus Christ; and that the gospel doth now declare. Marvellous in the beginning and progress of this falvation. A sunner must feei grace before he know the grace of God in truth, Col. i. 6. He must have faith wrought in him, and asted by him, before he know what believing to the faving of the foul is, Heb. x. 29. He must be in heaven, before he know well what heaven is: yea, which is: 2 strange, the believer must be in heaven, before he know perfectly the way to heaven. We have that Christis is the way; that we must enter no own by faith, as he is the way; that we must enter no own by faith, as he is the way; that we must wask in him, and abide in him, and live on him, till we come home to his Father's house. But how Christ became the way to heaven; how he is the new and living way:

how he confecrated himfelf as the way; how he was beloved of the Father, and bruifed with divine wrath at the fame time; how Christ the living head draws dead lumps of hell, and makes them lively members of his own body; how he knits and nourisheth them by spiritual joints and bands, Col. ii, 19. till he perfest them in himfelf, Eph. iv. 19. and Col. i. 28.; how he gives the last pull and drawing at death, and receiveth them unto himself, John xiv. 2, 3.; what Christ is now doing in preparing a place for them; and what he will at last do, in receiving them, and prefenting them to his Father; thefe, and many fuch things, are matter for our daily exercise, in faith, and hope, and wonder. Our main work while we are here, and without the vail, is, to be fluiving to get more and more into Christ by faith; and not only to get within the gates and walls of this city of refuge, (and the walls are falvation, and the gates praife, Ifa. lx. 18.), but also to get into his palaces, where he giveth his loves. His love is better than wine, Song i. 2. The taste of this love would quickly make all the wells of this world's confolation to be as tasteless and empty to us as they are in themselves. Unspeakably both strong and sweet is that mortification and deadness to the world, that is wrought in the believer, by the shedding abroad of the love of God in his heart by the Holy Ghoft, Rom. v. 5. You live in an evil world. It will mock you, and hate you: but do you pity it. A believer is a phiful creature in the eyes of the ungodly; looking at things that are not feen, and not looking at things that are feen, 2 Cor. iv. 18.; despising this world and all things in it as a portion, and feeking an unfeen and future glory in an unknown world to come. To baild all our hopes of partaking and possessing of it on an unseen Christ; to bottom our faith on him, upon a word from him; to live and die upon his promise, and to do both chearfully, are the glory of a Christian. But this glory is turned into shame by the thoughts and reproaches of all unbelievers. But let the righteous hold on his way: and he that bath clean hands, shall wax stronger and fironger, John xvii. 9. Your path is as the spining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day, Prov. iv. 18. Pass through this world, believers in Jefus, liking nothing in it, caring for nothing in it, content and fatisfied with nothing it can give, moved with nothing in it; neither much taken up with the much evil, or the little good of it; neither cast down with the frowns, nor lifted up with the smiles of this vain deceitful world. Pass on, and press forward for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus, Philip. iii. 14. You have greater things to look to. greater things to fix your hearts and hopes upon, than all this world: even to that bleffed state, when we shall be with Christ where he is, and shall behold his glory which his Father hath given him: for the Father loved his Son and our Saviour before the foundation of the world.
